MINES TO RUN T TAYLORVILLE ESPITE STRIKERS

otection Sought Either by Use of 1200 Special Dep- ties or by Calling Out National Guard.

ARCHERS ARE EXPECTED BACK

abody Interests Decide to Operate Shafts After Obtaining Two Big Railroad Contracts.

a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

TAYLORVILLE, Ill., Aug. 20.— termined to operate the four big abody Coal Co. mines in Chris- n County Monday regardless of opposition of the rank and file the miners' union, company of- ials conferred with peace officers evening about ways and means protecting the workers from in- ference at the hands of pickets. It is regarded as a foregone con- sion that the miners protesting inst the new reduced wage scale be on hand again Monday ning, possibly in numbers as at as those of Thursday when y converged on Taylorville from south and northwest and made h a show of numbers that every ft in the county stood idle on following morning.

For adequate protection the com- ny has two courses open. One to invoke the aid of 1200 special puties sworn in by Sheriff arles Wieneke and ready for call. other is to appeal to Gov. Em- erson, through Sheriff Wieneke, the aid of the National Guard.

Begins Selecting Deputies.

Tonight Sheriff Wieneke began ection of special deputies for y at the mine shafts Monday rning. Whether their names are luded in the previous list of 1200 not learned. It appeared un- ly that more than 200 would used to preserve order unless an ergency developed.

ve Captains and Lieutenants the National Guard were in Tay- ville tonight with instructions remain over Monday. One of m will be on duty at each of the r mine shafts Monday morning the fifth will remain in Tay- ville in touch with headquarters Springfield.

Four National Guard companies, lled from their summer train- amp at Rockford, Ill., are now ding by in their armories at catur and Springfield, less than miles away, ready to move on ylorville on a half hour's notice.

Two Big Coal Contracts.

Whatever the means of protec- n, it is acknowledged by com- y officials that they intend to rate the mines. New contracts h two railroads calling for a to- of 160 cars of coal a day make imperative that the shafts oper- .

Meanwhile, there has been no idence of effort by either side to ect a compromise with the oth- . On the one side stand the coal erators, President Lewis of the ited Mine Workers, President lker of the Illinois district, and portion of the membership, gen- lly conceded to be a minority. the other stand the rank and members who contend that new wage contract was made devious means and in violation the constitution of the United e Workers of America.

The movement leading to a new e scale began in July when the 000 miners in Illinois voted on proposed schedule and by an rwhelming vote killed it, as be- too radical a reduction. The posal was re-drawn, certain ses pertaining particularly to ing conditions were amended withdrawn and the proposal, bodying virtually the same wage le as the first, was re-submitted.

Tally Sheets Disappeared.

What the result of the second was, is a matter of speculation. tally sheets from each local re forwarded to Springfield and ked in a safe deposit box on the ht of Aug. 9. On the following ning two tellers from the union dquarters took them out to ry them to the office for the .

On the way, they reported, they re held up and the tally sheets re stolen. Two watchers of the k and file group, however, de- red that they saw the tellers ce them in an automobile just or to the report that they were bed.

In any event, the union officials n consummated the new wage tract, embodying the reduction which the rank and file had

EMPIRE TRADE CONFERENCE ENDS WITH SIGNING OF RECIPROCAL TARIFF PACTS

Agreements Put Duty on Wheat and Copper and Preference on Lumber—Colorful Ceremony at Close.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

OTTAWA, Ont., Aug. 20.—Nine weary politicians leading the delegations of independent nations within the British commonwealth wound up the first Imperial Economic Conference here today by staging a show for the news reels in the fine oak chamber of Canada's House of Commons, signing 12 trade agreements with bright red pens, and exchanging apologies for harsh words that have passed between them.

The Anglo-Canadian commercial pact, which hinged on a guarantee against Soviet Russia, was initialed by Stanley Baldwin of Great Britain and R. B. Bennett of Canada at 2:30 a. m. today. The fight over meat preferences in favor of Australia and New Zealand, as against the vast surplus production of the Argentine, was not settled until 2 a. m., and the definite official formula of all these agreements will not be made known until tomorrow.

This morning at 10:30, however, the nine chief protagonists in the semi-secret drama which has been unrolling here for a month sat down together at an oblong table in the deep, green-carpeted well of the House of Commons, with Kleig lights and the hum of motion picture cameras in the galleries beating down upon them, and said a lot of kind words to each other.

Bennett at Head of Table.

Prime Minister Bennett, as host of the conference, sat at the head of the table. Down the right side were Stanley Baldwin, J. G. Coates of New Zealand, Sean O'Kelley of the Irish Free State, and Sir Atul Chatterjee of India. Down the left side were Stanley M. Bruce of Australia, N. C. Havenga of South Africa, F. C. Alderdyce, Premier of Newfoundland, and H. W. Moffatt, Premier of Southern Rhodesia.

They went through their motions according to a protocol established last night, adopting reports of committees, delivering eulogies of Bennett, and signing the treaties. Bennett, on behalf of all the delegates, presented a large silver salver to Baldwin, in recollection of the Briton's sixty-fifth birthday which came early in the conference. Baldwin, after shining off his trophy with a bright red handkerchief, gave Bennett a similar silver platter, in token of the esteem which he said the visiting delegates always would have for him.

A swarthy, French-Canadian sergeant-at-arms went rushing through the press galleries above, delivering copies of committee reports that have leaked out piecemeal, and shortly thereafter the telegraph wires out of Ottawa began to flicker and beat with the considered statement of Neville Chamberlain, Chancellor of the British Exchequer, concerning British financial policy.

Chamberlain's Statement.

Chamberlain told the world that Great Britain would not return to the gold standard until after such a settlement was reached on political, economic, financial and monetary problems as would make another desertion of that glittering plateau extremely unlikely. Included in these problems to be settled were those of war debts and reparations. He took note also that the world faced the problem of adjusting production of natural goods to the possibilities of human consumption, and set that down as one of the tasks for the world economic conference to be called in England this autumn.

There was a touch of romance in the sudden emergence of Chamberlain into the white glow of world publicity that beats on statesmen at important moments. Prime Minister Bennett of Canada, rising when it came time during this morning's performance to sign the Anglo-Canadian accord with formality, recalled that Chamberlain's father, the Hon. Joseph Chamberlain of Birmingham, England, was the father also of the imperial tariff idol, which was triumphing today, long after the death of its author.

That idea, at last adopted, was enabling, Bennett said, the laying of a new foundation for the British Empire, based on exchange of business preferences. Therefore, Chamberlain and not Baldwin was called on to sign the Anglo-Canadian treaty on behalf of the United Kingdom. The scion of a Victorian hero from an inconspicuous bench on the left of the hall, where he had been seated with J. H. Thomas and Viscount Hailsham, came forward and took the chair which Baldwin yielded. Big typewritten pages, decked with ribbons, were laid before him and he pushed his pen potently.

Changes Costume Frequently Fishes and Walks Before Cameras at Camp.

By the Associated Press.

CAMP RAPIDAN, Va., Aug. 20.—With their rustic Rapidan Mountain camp as a setting, President and Mrs. Hoover today re-enacted parts of their customary outdoor routine before the cameras of 20 newsreel and newspaper photographers.

With a small group of newspaper correspondents, the photographers were entertained as guests at the mountain retreat and were served with luncheon before departing.

Smiling despite often conflicting demands from half a dozen camera men, Mr. Hoover posed for an hour and a half at fishing, riding, sitting in repose with a book and playing with the White House dogs, "Pat" and "Weejie." Many of the pictures taken will be used in Mr. Hoover's campaign for re-election.

The President placed himself in the hands of his guest photographers soon after their arrival at the camp. Donning boots and taking his favorite rod, he whipped the shallow waters of Mills Creek for 15 minutes while the camera men swarmed along its banks and over the bridge that crosses it. The group on shore frightened away the fish and he caught nothing.

Then the President went to his cabin and emerged a few minutes in gray whipcord breeches, high shoes and leggins. With Mrs. Hoover he walked back and forth from his porch to his cabin and then posed upon a tiny patch of green lawn under spreading trees, with a small waterfall as background.

Next he mounted his favorite gelding, "Billy," with a saddle cloth bearing the presidential coat of arms and four stars.

Later he took a walk. Many of his guests heard Gov. Roosevelt's speech at Columbus, O., on the radio. When the President returned from his walk, he was informed of some of the high spots of Gov. Roosevelt's address, but had no public comment to make.

JONES, OF '5-AND-10' DRY LAW FOR PROHIBITION RESUBMISSION

Senator From State of Washington Says His Personal Views As Dry Have Not Changed.

By the Associated Press.

SEATTLE, Wash., Aug. 20.—Senator Wesley L. Jones (Rep.), Washington, author of the drastic Jones "5-and-10" dry law, issued a statement from his campaign headquarters here today in which he said that while his personal views in favor of prohibition had not changed, he believed the prohibition question should be resubmitted to the people. He added, "I shall vote to do so at the first opportunity."

OSTRACISM VOTE AGAINST ARISTIDES DUG UP AT ATHENS

2400-Year-Old Ballot for Exile of Themistocles Also Found.

By the Associated Press.

PRINCETON, N. J., Aug. 20.—Two rare ostraka, pottery fragments on which were inscribed votes cast 2400 years ago by Greek citizens in ostracism proceedings against Aristides and Themistocles, Greek statesmen, have been unearthed in the ancient market place at Athens, Dr. T. Leslie Shear of the department of archeology of Princeton University, was informed today, by cable. Dr. Shear is field director of the American School of Classical Studies at Athens now engaged in digging up the Athenian agora.

Only four ostraka are known to exist. Once a year the citizens of Athens met in a specially appointed place to decide whether any citizen be ostracized, or banished.

Aristides and Themistocles were long rival statesmen in Athens. Themistocles developed the Athenian navy and saved Greece from the Persians. He succeeded in having his rival, Aristides, ostracized. The latter, however, was pardoned and returned to win from his fellow citizens the title, "The Just," and to see Themistocles ostracized. Themistocles died among the Persians, an expatriate.

The discovery of the ostraka was made in an old well explored by Dr. Homer A. Thompson of the University of Michigan, a member of Dr. Shear's staff at Athens.

MRS. M'CORMICK SUFFERS SINKING SPELL BUT RALLIES

Previously She Had Roused Herself to Greet Her Brother, John D. Rockefeller Jr.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Aug. 20.—Mrs. Edith Rockefeller McCormick suffered a sudden sinking spell tonight but rallied after the application of stimulants and doctors later said her condition was "the same as it was this afternoon."

The entire family circle was gathered in Mrs. McCormick's suite shortly after 6 o'clock when she began to gasp for breath and apparently was dying. An hour later, physicians pronounced Mrs. McCormick out of immediate danger, but reiterated their opinion that the end might come at any moment or that she might linger for days, or even weeks.

Earlier in the day, Mrs. McCormick was cheered by the arrival of her brother, John D. Rockefeller Jr., from his summer home in Maine. She had repeatedly asked for him.

Rockefeller made a hurried trip from Maine against his doctor's orders to help cheer his sister. Mrs. McCormick roused herself, embraced her brother feebly and they conversed a while. The sick woman talked with great difficulty.

With her brother, her former husband, Harold F. McCormick, and their three children around her, Mrs. McCormick lacked only the presence of her 92-year-old father, John D. Rockefeller Sr.

"I think it is inadvisable for him to travel because of his age," his son said today.

Mrs. McCormick has not seen her father since her divorce in 1921.

CATHLEEN VANDERBILT CUSHING OBTAINS DIVORCE IN NEVADA

Gets Decree Day After New York Learns of Her Intention; Charges Cruelty.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LAS VEGAS, Nev., Aug. 20.—One day after the first public intimation leaked out in New York that Mrs. Cathleen Vanderbilt Cushing was living in this part of the country, the Vanderbilt heiress obtained a divorce today from Harry Cooke Cushing III.

Mrs. Cushing charged extreme cruelty. She testified before District Judge W. E. Orr that her husband continually criticised her, objected to her friends, used vile language and had a violent temper.

Cushing, who gave up his Wall street career after marrying Miss Vanderbilt, is living temporarily in Surrey, England.

The Cushings were married June 20, 1923, in New York by the Rev. William B. Martin of St. Patrick's Cathedral. Mrs. Cushing is the daughter of Reginald C. Vanderbilt.

WOMAN, 80, LOST ON MOUNTAIN

Frail Camper "A Little Tired" When Found After Two Days.

By the Associated Press.

LA GRANDE, Ore., Aug. 20.—Lost near the summit of Mount Emily two days, Mrs. J. C. Vinzelburg, 80 years old, was found alive and in fair condition this afternoon three miles from the camp out of which she had wandered Thursday.

The frail woman, who weighs less than 90 pounds, had withstood the cold of the mountain side for two nights and had been without food except for huckleberries she found in the woods. She observed when found that she was a "little tired."

U. S. UNCOVERS FURTHER EVIDENCE OF CHICAGO GRAFT

Records of Police Captains With Huge Bank Accounts Reported Gathered by Operatives.

PROSECUTION PLANS TAX EVASION CASES

Possibility Former City Officials and Politicians May Be Embarrassed by Disclosures.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Aug. 20.—The Federal Government was reported today to have taken a hand in investigations of purported police-gangster alliances in Chicago.

In the United States Attorney's office, it was learned, were records of police Captains with huge bank accounts and living far beyond their annual $4000 salaries.

Charges that countless dollars from liquor, gambling and vice have reached police pockets in recent years form the basis of the investigation. There is a possibility, Federal authorities indicated, that former city officials and politicians may be embarrassed by the disclosures.

Seeking Tax Evasion Evidence.

Charges on which the Government will attempt prosecution will be evasion of income taxes—the same grounds that sent Al Capone and several followers to penitentiaries. Much of the evidence against several of the police Captains was reported to have been gathered by a Cook County grand jury which looked into graft charges a year ago.

The Federal inquiry was the last undertaken by District Attorney George E. Q. Johnson and was practically ready for presentation to a grand jury when he was promoted last week to a Federal Judgeship. It will be concluded by Dwight H. Green, the 35-year-old prosecutor who succeeded Johnson.

Evidence was reported today to have been gathered as far back as 1929 when the famous "million-dollar slot machine syndicate" flourished in Chicago and brought wealth to Capone and his associates.

$500 a Week to Captains.

Prosecutors said at that time they had evidence of six police Captains receiving $500 a week and up for gangster gambling concessions in their districts. Daniel C. Rockola, the state's chief witness, told the grand jury of countless alleged cases of graft.

But, when the cases came to trial, Rockola chose to serve a year in jail on contempt charges rather than tell his story in open court.

As recently as a week ago, Capt. John E. Ptacek charged he was being removed from his district because of refusing to tolerate gambling. City officials immediately declared Ptacek was being transferred because he would not stop gambling. Both sides hinted at charges of graft.

Charges and counter-charges have been made in many other cases and dozens of investigations have been started. But the one now under way is authorized at Washington and backed by the United States Government.

FARM BOARD WANTS BRAZIL TO MODIFY COFFEE CONTRACT

Increased Sale of Product Sought Due to Shortage in This Country.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20. — The United States Farm Board has asked the Government of Brazil to modify its contract so the board will be enabled to sell more than 62,500 bags of coffee a month. Under the present contract, the board cannot sell more than that amount. The coffee was taken by the board in exchange for wheat a little over a year ago.

The request was made at the instance of coffee roasters in this country who are faced with a coffee shortage and rising prices as the result of internal troubles in Brazil. The Farm Board has on hand 1,050,000 bags of coffee each weighing 132 pounds.

Ileana's Husband Unwilling Pilot.

VIENNA, Aug. 20.—Archduke Anton of Austria, who has been a father six days, became the somewhat unwilling airplane pilot today for Dowager Queen Marie of Rumania, his mother-in-law. The young father did not want to leave his wife, Princess Ileana, but Marie refused to entrust her life to any other pilot. With Anton at the controls, they took off for Carlsbad. Marie is on her way to Castle Koenigswart, where she will visit Alfonso and Victoria, the former King and Queen of Spain.

WISCONSIN GETS $3,000,000 LOAN FROM THE R. F. C.

State Asked for $6,414,865 but Board Contended Many Counties Lacked Proper Relief Agencies.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20. — The Reconstruction Finance Corporation today lent Wisconsin $3,000,000 and at the same time the Interstate Commerce Commission authorized the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad to borrow $31,626,000 more from the relief agency.

The Wisconsin loan was granted for destitution relief in several counties. Gov. Philip F. La Follette informed the corporation that 57 of the State's 71 counties needed Federal funds to supplement local efforts. He had asked for $6,414,865 to bolster State relief funds from Sept. 1 to Dec. 31.

The Corporation Board contended that about one-third of the 57 counties asking for aid were not properly organized for relief and, because of this, it could not be established at this time "that these particular localities know the extent of their needs or have exhausted their own resources to meet the need."

Private relief agencies were described as having done good work in the State.

"It is urged," the Corporation Board said, "that such private efforts and contributions be maintained and emphasis laid upon the fact that any Federal relief funds made available under the emergency relief act are not in lieu of, but merely supplementary, not only to local and state funds, but to private contributions as well."

The Baltimore & Ohio was authorized to make its loan as part of a plan for refinancing a $63,250,000 bond issue due March 1, 1933. If the loan is granted, the refinancing will start immediately and be completed by Jan. 1.

The Baltimore & Ohio and its subsidiary, the Alton, already have received $35,000,000 in loans from the corporation to pay off equipment trust securities and bank loans maturing before Jan. 1.

Its Own Program in Effect, Pennsylvania Again Seeks Loan.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Aug. 20.—Pennsylvania, with a new $12,000,000 state aid program for unemployment relief in effect, looked with renewed hope today for an advance loan from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

Gov. Pinchot, immediately after signing the bills making the relief plan effective yesterday, dispatched a letter to Atlee Pomerene, R. F. C. chairman, expressing "strong hope" that Pennsylvania's recent request for a $45,000,000 loan would be granted.

Pomerene informed the Governor and other State and legislative officials several weeks ago that Federal money could not be advanced to Pennsylvania because the State and the Legislature had not done "its full duty" for the State's 1,150,000 jobless.

PRIEST, WOMAN ARE FOUND DEAD AT PARISH HOUSE

School Teacher's Body in Rectory at New Haven, Conn., His in Auto in Garage at the Rear.

By the Associated Press.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Aug. 20.—Authorities are investigating the circumstances of the death of Miss Lavinia Moran, 39-year-old school teacher, in a bedroom of the rectory of St. Louis Catholic Church about the time carbon monoxide killed the pastor of the church, Father Joseph P. Cournoyer, 43, in his garage.

There were no external marks of violence on the woman's body. Coroner James J. Corrigan has ordered that an analysis be made of her internal organs, but he declined to make public any theories.

Search for Miss Moran's dress, missing when her partly clad body was found under some bedding in the rectory, was fruitless, the Coroner said. The room bore no signs of a struggle, he reported.

An autopsy showed both the woman, an active worker in the parish, and Father Cournoyer had been dead since Wednesday. Each was last seen on that day—Miss Moran when she went into the rectory in the afternoon and the priest when he drove his two sisters, his housekeepers, to a train at 6 p. m.

Some officials expressed an opinion that Miss Moran had been looking after the parish house while Father Cournoyer's sisters were on a vacation, but her family said she had merely gone there for a brief call.

Her body was discovered by police summoned to the rectory by Adolph Groleau, the assistant sexton, who, seeing doors and windows open at the rear of the building, thought burglars were in the place.

With the finding of Miss Moran's body, Groleau recalled that Father Cournoyer had not officiated at mass Thursday or Friday mornings. Parishioners had supposed the priest had joined his sisters on their trip and said nothing, but Groleau told the officers of his absence.

A search led to the garage 100 feet in the rear of the rectory, where the priest was found dead in his automobile. The garage doors were closed, police said, and the motor of the car was stalled. The ignition switch was on.

Father Cournoyer's funeral will be Monday morning in his church, situated in a foreign section east of the business district. At the same time mass will be said at St. Brendan's Church for Miss Moran.

ROOSEVELT SEES NO HOPE IN HOOVER'S UTTERANCES

Attacks Acceptance Speech and G. O. P. Platform in Opening His Road Campaign Before 25,000 at Columbus, O.

OFFERS PROGRAM OF NINE REMEDIES

Declares Republican Administration Failed to Correct Evils After Its Policies Caused Crash — Denounces Exploitation.

By the Associated Press.

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 20.—Nine "fundamental" economic remedies, which he said were for the protection of the "great mass of average American men and women," were proposed this afternoon by Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, Democratic nominee for the presidency, in the opening speech of his road campaign.

Gov. Roosevelt spoke to an audience of more than 25,000 in the new baseball park of the Columbus American Association team. Many delegates to the State Democratic convention which was in session earlier in the day were present. Gov. White of Ohio and James A. Farley, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, spoke briefly after which Gov. Roosevelt was introduced by former Gov. James M. Cox, who was the Democratic presidential nominee in 1920.

Crowd Cheers Utterances.

Gov. Roosevelt read his speech in a clear, deliberate manner. Occasionally he pounded on the desk his fist to emphasize a point.

His sarcasm as he used "Alice in Wonderland" figures of speech to illustrate big business methods amused his audience that repeatedly interrupted him with laughter and cheers.

The longest applause came when he asked, "Has the Republican elephant spotted with mire suddenly by miracle overnight become a sacred white elephant of spotless purity, or has it merely been scrubbed and whitewashed by cunning showmen in the hope that they can deceive a credulous electorate for four more years?"

"Not Honest With the People."

Another roar of approval went up as he said "the administration was not frank, not honest with the people and by blundering statements and actions postponed necessary readjustments."

There was laughter when the Governor, in referring to former President Coolidge, said "perhaps forseeing (what would happen in the economic world) a shrewd man from New England, typed on a narrow strip of paper the historic words, 'I do not choose to run.'"

He diverged only slightly in text and not at all in the meaning from advance copies of his speech.

Gov. Roosevelt finished his speech in 43 minutes, after which he and his party went to the executive mansion for tea with Gov. White.

Later the Roosevelt party had dinner on his private car in the railroad yards. The Governor was in high spirits, and was anxious to know how his speech went. He was well satisfied with his reception in Ohio. His train pulled out for the East at 5:49 p. m.

In his speech, Gov. Roosevelt, charging that President Hoover's acceptance speech and the Republican platform are "empty of hope," attacked the policies of the Hoover administration.

"I propose an orderly, explicit and practical group of fundamental remedies," Gov. Roosevelt declared. "These will protect not the few, but the great mass of average American men and women who, I am not ashamed to repeat, have been forgotten by those in power."

Nine Remedies.

Roosevelt's nine proposals are:

1. Prevention of the issuance of "manufactured and unnecessary securities of all kinds, which are brought out merely for the purpose of enriching those who handle their sale" and a requirement that sellers of legitimate securities disclose bonuses and commissions paid by them.

2. Full Federal regulation of "holding companies which sell securities in interstate commerce."

3. Federal regulation of "exchanges in the business of buying and selling securities and commodities."

4. More rigid supervision of na-

EDUCATORS' IDEAS SOUGHT ON WHAT'S WRONG WITH U. S.

National League of Commission Merchants Appeals to 300 for New Guidance.

TWELVE QUESTIONS ARE SUBMITTED

Requests Received Here by Chancellor Throop, Father Johnston and Father Husslein.

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
201-205 Kellogg Bldg.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—The business men who make up the National League of Commission Merchants have taken the unusual step of appealing to 300 leading educators of the country, mainly college presidents and teachers of the social sciences, for leadership in the present confused state of the nation's affairs.

"Produce row" has turned to the campus for light and guidance.

In an open letter signed by their president, Robert F. Blair of Cleveland, and other officers, the commission men ask the professors to tell them, for publication, what is wrong with the country and how to make it right.

Among those to whom the appeal, made public here today, has been sent, are seven Missourians: George R. Throop, chancellor of Washington University, St. Louis; the Rev. Robert S. Johnston, president of St. Louis University; Walter Williams, president of the University of Missouri; T. W. Nadal, president of Drury College, Springfield; John F. Herget, president of William Jewell College, Liberty; the Rev. Joseph Husslein, dean of the School of Sociology, St. Louis University, and Frederick P. Kenkel, director of the Central Bureau, Catholic Central Society, St. Louis.

"Where Are We Going?"

The educators are asked:

"Nationally, where are we going?"

"Where should we go?"

"If we are off the road leading to a desirable civic and social future, how are we to get back to the right road?"

The business men express dissatisfaction with the leadership provided by "practical politicians." They explain the purpose of their letter thus: "This is an effort to bring into action a new force. To us, it seems logical to turn to our recognized educational leadership, appealing to it for an authoritative interpretation of the economic trends, the significance of current legislative commitments, and the logic of these commitments when projected into future social, business and civic relations. This is an appeal from one group, mired in conflicting interests, to the trained intelligence of the country, urging it to undertake a fuller measure of leadership."

The Twelve Questions.

Twelve questions are asked:

"1. Which trends in the United States since the World War do wou believe to be the most disquieting?

"2. Does hope for permanently improved industrial conditions rest in governmental or some form of private action?

"3. Has individualism failed as a vital force in the development of this country along desirable lines? If so, what is to take its place?

"4. Should we have more or less paternalism in government?

"5. Have we too much or not enough government interference in business?

"6. What is likely to be the political and social effect of governmental subsidies to large groups of citizens (such as tariffs, pensions, reconstruction loans to banks, railroads, farmers, etc.)?

"7. To what do you attribute the growing contempt for governmental authority, Congress, courts and statutory laws?

"8. Is modern 'racketeering' a new manifestation and application of the 'ethics' of big business?

"9. How far is it safe to go with political remedies for economic ills? (Can a government, for example, abrogate the law of supply and deman?)

"10. Are 'efficiency' and 'standardization' killing originality and initiative in this country?

"11. Would legitimate business be in any stronger position if the purely speculative or gambling tivities were eliminated?

12. In view of the traditions of the United States, is the Federal Government justified in placing its authority and financial resources at the disposal of one group of citizens in competition with another group of citizens denied a like support?"

"Vicious" Marketing Act.

Dealing with their particular problems, the commission merchants ask:

"Are we wrong—is our judgment altogether warped by our self-interest—when we find in the agricultural marketing act, governmental sanction for almost every vicious license that organized society has devised? We set forth here, frankly and honestly, our reaction to this legislation, and ask you to accept it as typical of the attitudes of independent business men of the country toward the encroachment of Government on business and governmental interference with the rights of individual citizens in all walks of life."

The views expressed are a vigorous arraignment of the Agricultural Marketing act, which is described as "an instrumentality of corruption unsurpassed in potential menace by any legislation enacted in the history of the United States."

AN incident of the abortive Royalist uprising in Madrid. One of the rebels is shown, half dragged and carried from the Spanish Ministry Building by loyal troops after the rebels failed in their opening drive on the Government Building.

THREATENS BANKRUPTCY SUIT AGAINST LAKE COUNTY, IND.

Chicago Company Plans Action Over $100,000 Bill for Food Furnished Indigents.

By the Associated Press.

CROWN POINT, Ind., Aug. 20.—Lake County officials have been informed that a suit to throw the county into involuntary bankruptcy will soon be filed.

The action is planned by the B. A. Railton Co., Inc., of Chicago. H. P. Peters, general manager of the firm, told county officials the suit would be filed after failing to collect part or all of $100,000 he said the county owes his company for furnishing food to North Township indigents.

Lake is the second largest county in Indiana.

EVICTED VETERAN WOUNDED

Chicagoan in Sidewalk Camp Resisted Arrest.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Aug. 20.—Police shot Bryan Moss, an evicted tenant living on the sidewalk in front of his home, when he resisted their attempt to serve a warrant charging disorderly conduct today. He was slightly wounded in the left thigh.

Moss has delivered nightly harangues to large crowds who have visited the sidewalk camp where he stayed with his wife, four children and his furniture. He marked his furniture with chalk signs such as "War Vet Evicted," "17 Months Overseas," and "The Heroes of 1917 Are the Bums of 1932."

Barbara Henika, daughter of the owner of the house, obtained the warrant. The family of Moss was taken care of by friends. Police said Moss refused many offers of free rent and food and asked for contributions from passers-by.

Caught in His First Robbery.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Aug. 20.—A man who said he was Peter Rosenbach, 21 years old, a former Wall street broker's clerk living at Astoria, N. Y., turned robber today, with a screw driver disguised as a pistol. Police apprehended him as he fled from a shoe store where he obtained $103 after sealing the lips and binding the hands and feet of the manager. Rosenbach said he arrived here with his wife and took rooms at a downtown hotel. "I was broke and had no money to pay for the room so I decided to rob someone," he said.

Gen. Tapia New Mexico City Mayor

By the Associated Press.

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 20.—Gen. Jose Maria Tapia today was named chief of the Federal District Government or Mayor of Mexico City, filling the place left vacant by the resignation of Vicente Estrada Cajical last Thursday. Gen. Tapia was chief of staff to Provisional President Portes Gil in 1929.

ANSWERS SENATOR'S CHARGES OF ABUSES AT BOULDER DAM

Acting Secretary of Interior Says Workers are Paid in Cash and Are Free to Buy.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—Replying to criticism by Senator Oddie concerning operations at Hoover Dam, Acting Secretary Dixon of the Interior Department today telegraphed the Nevadan that he had been "seriously misinformed."

Oddie telegraphed the Interior Department charging among other things that the builders of the dam were paying wages in scrip which could be used at face value for merchandise only at the company store and that this was causing unfair competition with Boulder Dam and Las Vegas merchants.

Dixon replied that no workers were required to take scrip, but on the contrary were paid twice monthly in cash "and when taking scrip workers do so at their own election and generally because they wish credit in advance in this manner."

"All workers," Dixon said, "are free to buy wherever they please, including other stores operated by Government lessors. Prices at Boulder City are not exorbitant, but to the contrary Las Vegas citizens have heretofore objected that Boulder City would draw trade from Las Vegas."

Regarding a statement by Oddie that contractors have collected thousands of dollars from the workers for poll taxes and are holding it, Dixon said this question is pending in the courts and will be settled there.

Broker Held on Check Charge.

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 20.—Alfred C. Read Jr., San Francisco broker sued for divorce recently because of his friendship for Claire Windsor of the films, was placed in jail here today on a charge of obtaining labor by false pretenses. He said the complaint arose from a check for a $16 motor car repair bill and that there was money in the bank to meet the check until his wife, Marion Read, who also is suing Miss Windsor for alienation of his affections, tied up the funds with a restraining order.

Publishers Indorse Roosevelt.

By the Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, Aug. 20.—A resolution indorsing Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt's policies and promising him aid in his campaign for the presidency was adopted by the Association of Publishers of Foreign Language newspapers in Ohio. It was opposed, however, by the Cincinnati Freie Presse, the Polish Daily News of Cleveland, and the American Echo, Polish newspaper publisher at Toledo.

WALKER EXPECTED TO QUESTION G.O.P. CHIEFS AT HEARING

Examination, It Is Indicated, Will Be Based on Contention Ouster Action Is Republican Plot.

COURT TO PASS ON INJUNCTION

To Hear Argument Tomorrow for Writ to Stop Proceedings on Ground Governor Exceeds Authority.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—Mayor James J. Walker of New York City prepared today to ask some questions in Albany next week of eight of the most important Republican leaders in the State who have been subpenaed to appear as his witnesses at the hearing before Gov. Roosevelt on charges demanding Walker's removal from office.

It is likely that Walker will question them himself, and it has been indicated the questions will cover the contention made by his friends ever since the Hofstadter legislative investigation of his administration began—that the whole thing was a Republican plot, designed to embarrass both Walker and Gov. Roosevelt, who even two years ago was a leading candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Before W. Kingsland Macy, Republican State Chairman, and his associates appear, however, there will be argument in the Supreme Court in Albany on a legal move by Walker to put an end to the ouster proceedings against him on the ground that the Governor is acting outside his constitutional authority.

Court Action Tomorrow.

Walker's chief counsel, John J. Curtin, will appear at 9 a. m. Monday before Supreme Court Justice Ellis J. Staley, to argue for a writ to stop the hearing.

Justice Staley heard similar argument Friday from Sidney Levine, counsel for George Donnelly, secretary of the Bronx Chamber of Commerce, and announced he would reserve his decision until after he had heard Curtin.

On behalf of the Governor, Assistant Attorney-General Henry Epstein—son-in-law of Max Steuer, one of Tammany's leading lawyers—argued that the courts have not the power to restrain the Governor from acting, since under the Constitution the executive, judiciary and legislative branches of the Government have equal powers.

What action Gov. Roosevelt may take, should Justice Staley order the proceedings stopped, has not been indicated. He has insisted from the start that he is acting within his jurisdiction, and that he is not bound by the courts.

As a "courtesy" to the courts, however, he agreed to withhold his decision with regard to the Mayor until after Justice Staley had given his ruling. Meanwhile, he has ordered that the hearing proceed on Monday, beginning at 12:30 p. m.

22 Witnesses Called.

With 22 new witnesses, none of whom appeared before the Hofstadter committee and among whom are included eight Republican leaders, Mayor Walker is expected to begin his defense on Monday.

In addition to Macy, the Republicans who have been called are: Samuel Koenig, New York City leader; William L. Ward, Westchester County leader; Walter W. Westall and Seabury C. Mastick, Westchester County State Senators who at first voted against the measure creating the Hofstadter Legislative Committee, but later voted for it; Senator Samuel H. Hofstadter, chairman of the committee; Federal Judge John Knight of the Western New York District, who was Republican leader in the Senate when the measure was passed; and Fred Bradley, former Erie County leader.

The Mayor is spending the week end at the home of his friend, A. C. Blumenthal, at Scarsdale, Westchester County.

Curtin Charges Plot.

The Herald-Tribune quotes Curtin as saying:

"We intend to take this whole Seabury inquiry back to its source. There is no question in our minds that it started in Washington and its aim was to stop either or both of the men recognized by Republican chieftains as the most likely presidential candidate the Democrats would have to offer. The strategy was to pick out, smear Tammany, and with it Al Smith or Gov. Roosevelt, whoever won the nomination. See how beautifully the thing was planned from a political standpoint. It started in 1931, not 1932, which would have been too obvious; then, although the entire inquiry should have been completed in a year, dragged along to reach the present year.

"Last May the work was speeded up. The only target left to shoot at was Mayor Walker, but it was recognized that he would do pretty well. Front-page headlines were still assured.'"

VISCOSE CO. RE-EMPLOYS 3000 TO 4000 WORKERS

Resumption of Operation at Five Plants of Rayon Firm Is Announced.

By the Associated Press.

MARCUS HOOK, Pa., Aug. 20.—Resumption of operations in the five plants of the Viscose Co., rayon manufacturers, with recall of 1500 to 2000 workers in each plant, was announced at the main office of the firm here today.

The factories are located at Roanoke, Va.; Parkersburg, W. Va. and Marcus Hook, Lewistown and Meadville, Pa.

The plants were closed early in June, it was stated, and the resumption of work began with receipt of increasingly large orders several weeks ago. Additional workers are being recalled gradually and officials expressed the belief that orders will warrant continued operation.

BANK OF ENGLAND GOVERNOR REACHES U. S. FOR BRIEF STAY

Montagu Norman Declines to Say Whom He Will See in This Country.

By the Associated Press.

BOSTON, Aug. 20.—Montagu C. Norman, Governor of the Bank of England, arrived today aboard the liner Brittanic. On ship board he was listed as Prof. Clarence Skinner but he freely admitted his identity to ship reporters.

He declined to say whom he expected to see in this country, but he declared he intended to leave by train for New York at once. He said he would return to England in a week.

FATHER COX TO GO ON TOUR

Asks Vice-Presidential Candidate to Draft Farm Policy.

By the Associated Press.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Aug. 20.—Final Plans for the Jobless party's national campaign were laid today by the Rev. James R. Cox, militant pastor of Old St. Patrick's Catholic Church and presidential candidate of the party.

He will start a speaking campaign next week in Chicago, while his motor journey will carry him as far west as Oklahoma, where Dr. V. C. Tisdal of Elk City, Ok., will be officially notified of his selection as vice-presidential candidate. The ceremonies will be held during the State fair. Dr. Tisdal will be asked to draft a farm policy for the party and to speak throughout the West. Father Cox has suggested inclusion of a Department of Health in the Cabinet and of laws which will make uniform requirements for physicians in all states.

Minnesotans Rebuff Coxey.

By the Associated Press.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Aug. 20.—Emil Regnier, State Farmer-Labor party manager, in a statement today charged that "some outside force, probably the Republican party," was financing Jacob S. Coxey's appearances in Minnesota, in an effort to disrupt the State organization. Regnier, a State Senator, made the statement after Coxey, Mayor of Massillon, O., asked Minnesota Farmer-Labor leaders to place his name on the State ballot as a candidate for the presidency. The request was refused.

tional banks "for the protection of depositors."

5. Discouragement and prevention of the "unrestrained use of bank deposits in speculation, to the detriment of local credit."

6. Separation of investment and commercial banking.

7. Restriction of Federal Reserve banks, whose funds, prior to 1929, "were used practically without check for many speculative purposes."

Policies of Open Dealing.

Of the other two, the Governor said:

"Finally I propose two new policies for which legislation is not required.

"They are policies of fair and open dealing on the part of the administration with the American public.

"In the first place I promise you that it will no longer be possible for international bankers or others to sell to the investing public of America, foreign securities on the implied understanding that these securities have been passed on or approved by the State Department or any other agency of the Federal Government.

"In the second place, I assure you that high public officials in the next administration will neither by word nor by deed seek to influence the prices of stocks and bonds."

The Governor then turned to the Hoover administration.

"I sum up the history of the last administration in four sentences," he said. "It encouraged speculation and over-production through its false economic policies.

"It attempted to minimize the crash and misled the people as to its gravity.

"It erroneously charged the cause to other nations of the world.

"It refused to recognize and correct the evils at home which brought it forth, delayed relief, and forgot to reform."

Roosevelt's Economic Creed.

Before listing his "remedies" Gov. Roosevelt outlined what he called his "economic creed," five beliefs on which he said he based his proposals.

"I believe," he said, "in individualism; but I mean it in everything the word implies. I believe that our industrial and economic system is made for individual men and women, and not individual men and women for the benefit of the system.

"I believe that the individual should have full liberty of action to make the most of himself, but I do not believe that in the name of that sacred word a few powerful interests should be permitted to make industrial cannon-fodder of the lives of half of the population of the United States.

"I believe in the sacredness of private property, which means I do not believe it should be subjected to the ruthless manipulation of professional gamblers in the stock markets in the corporate system.

"I believe that the Government, without becoming a prying bureaucracy, can act as a check or counter-balance to this oligarchy so as to secure initiative, life, a chance to work, and the safety of savings to men and women, rather than safety of exploitation to the exploiter, safety of manipulation to the financial manipulator, safety of unlicensed power to those who would speculate to the bitter end with the welfare and property of other people."

Hoover's Speech "Empty of Hope."

He said he offered his "remedies" in contrast "to the complete silence" of the Republicans "and in contrast to the theories of the year 1928 which I have shown that the Republican leaders still hold."

"The acceptance speech of the distinguished gentleman who is running against me," he said, "is equally empty of hope on this subject.

"There is an eloquent description of the storm through which we are passing; glimpses through the clouds, of troubled officers pacing the deck wondering what to do; belated recognition that the storm rose out of a hot current of speculation; stout adherence to the alibi that the secondary phases came from abroad; the outline of the ship clouded in vague phrases about the 'intrepid soul of our people.'

"Changing the figure of speech, he speaks with feeling of 'soil poisoned by speculation' in which grew 'ugly weeds of waste, exploitation and abuse of financial power,' but not of the beneficent sun of administrative approval under the rays of which these weeds sprouted and flourished.

"As to the claim to economic captaincy, the address is completely unregenerate.

"The only approach to the protection of the investing public beyond temporary and immediate loans is a vague reference to a stronger banking system."

Clearing the Ground.

The Governor said he regretted the necessity of making "severe criticism" of the administration, and added: "But to build we must first clear the ground. . . . to justify our right to build we must show not only a sound plan but why, in contrast, this plan offers the hope of better things."

Before surrendering to Grundy and the Republican leaders on "the highest tariff in the history of the world" he said:

"The President hesitated, because he must have seen the awful nature of the choice. But his courage failed. Grundyism had its way; and American industry, accelerated to a pace never before known, suddenly found the brakes locked on a slippery road. The law of gravity did the rest.

"The confidence which the administration has asked us as individual citizens to have in ourselves is not enough. The kind of confidence we most need is confidence in the integrity, the soundness, the liberalism, the vision and the old-fashioned horse sense of our national leadership.

"Without that kind of confidence we are forever insecure. With that kind of confidence the future is ours to conquer."

OHIO DEMOCRATS AVOID PROHIBITION ISSUE

Indorse National Platform and Pledge Economy and Restoration of Confidence.

By the Associated Press.

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 20.—Prohibition was pushed into a corner by Ohio Democrats today as they adopted a State platform that pledged the party to a policy of economy and restoration of public confidence.

Delegates, impatient to hear Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, quickly approved the platform after the Resolutions Committee blocked a weak attempt to insert a plank advocating repeal of the State prohibition enforcement laws.

The convention, however, approved the repeal of the eighteenth amendment by indorsing "in its entirety," the national party platform adopted in Chicago.

The platform declared for [illegible] "essential purposes": Permanent restoration of public confidence, recovery from the disastrous results of policies long pursued in the Federal Government and return to the course of progress and domestic happiness from which inept guidance has swerved the nation.

Economy in Government was cited as the outstanding issue of the campaign, and economies amounting to $10,000,000 in State government were attributed to Gov. White, the gubernatorial nominee, who opposes David S. Ingalls in November.

U. S. LEADS CHINESE IMPORTS

Supplies 27 Pct. of Goods, While Japan Is Second, with 13 Pct.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—The United States supplied 27 per cent of China's imports during the first five months of this year. Chinese customs statistics announced today by the Department of Commerce showed that Japan supplied 13 per cent and Great Britain 10 per cent. British India sent 8 per cent; Germany 6 per cent; Dutch Indies 6 per cent; French Indo-China 4 per cent; Siam 3 per cent, and France 1 per cent.

During the period, 26 per cent of China's exports went to Japan, 11 per cent to the United States, 7 per cent to Germany and 6 per cent to Great Britain.

Administration, arbitrator of a rice issue raised by St. Louis Dairy o.
The base milk price remains at .74 a hundred pounds, 3.8 per nt butterfat. The price of sur-us milk for by-products is to be sed on the Chicago butterfat erage, as formerly, except that the Chicago market averages re than 18 cents a pound, the rplus price is to be computed om that figure.
The complainant had held that nder current prices it was paying ore than competitors which did ot use the base and surplus plan, ut Dean Loeb judged that the dif-
rence in price was compensated r by advantages of stable sup-ly and quality under the base and plus plan.
Remarking that there was no isagreement concerning the bene-ts of the plan, or the evils that ight follow its abandonment, he id, "While its advantages have en curtailed by the fact that at ast 50 per cent of the milk sup-ly is marketed on a different sis, it remains the chief stab-zing and quality improvement ctor in the entire milkshed."

OHIO DEMOCRATS AVOID PROHIBITION ISSUE

Indorse National Platform and Pledge Economy and Restoration of Confidence.

By the Associated Press.

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 20.—Prohibition was pushed into a corner by Ohio Democrats today as they adopted a State platform that pledged the party to a policy of economy and restoration of public confidence.

Delegates, impatient to hear Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, quickly approved the platform after the Resolutions Committee blocked a weak attempt to insert a plank advocating repeal of the State prohibition enforcement laws.

The convention, however, approved the repeal of the eighteenth amendment by indorsing, "in its entirety," the national party platform adopted in Chicago.

The platform declared for it "essential purposes": Permanent restoration of public confidence, recovery from the disastrous results of policies long pursued in the Federal Government and return to the course of progress and domestic happiness from which inept guidance has swerved the nation.

Economy in Government was cited as the outstanding issue of the campaign, and economies amounting to $10,000,000 in State government were attributed to Gov. White, the gubernatorial nominee, who opposes David S. Ingalls in November.

U. S. LEADS CHINESE IMPORTS

Supplies 27 Pct. of Goods, While Japan Is Second, with 13 Pct.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20. — The United States supplied 27 per cent of China's imports during the first five months of this year. Chinese customs statistics announced today by the Department of Commerce showed that Japan supplied 13 per cent and Great Britain 10 per cent. British India sent 8 per cent; Germany 6 per cent; Dutch Indies 6 per cent; French Indo-China 4 per cent; Siam 3 per cent, and France 1 per cent.

During the period, 26 per cent of China's exports went to Japan, 11 per cent to the United States, 7 per cent to Germany and 6 per cent to Great Britain.

in the integrity, the soundness, the liberalism, the vision and the old-fashioned horse sense of our national leadership.

WOMAN FLYERS PLAN TO STAY UP UNTIL TOMORROW

Mrs. Marsalis and Mrs. Thaden Will Complete Week in Air If Still Aloft This Afternoon.

AR PAST RECORD FOR THEIR SEX

Edna May Cooper and Bobby Trout, Whose Mark They Exceeded, Send Congratulations.

By the Associated Press.

CURTISS FIELD, N. Y., Aug. 20.—With new minutes added to their women's endurance flight record every time they wheeled over Curtiss Field, Mrs. Frances Marsalis and Mrs. Louise Thaden planned tonight to fly so long that no other women could touch that record."

The women completed their sixth day in the air this afternoon and a few hours later had surpassed the previous women's record by a full 24 hours, but they kept their "flying boudoir" in lazy circles over Long Island airports.

When they first took off the pair said they hoped to "stay up a week." It seemed a long time then, but today, with everything going well and the end of the week in sight, they decided to delay their landing still further.

"We won't be down until Monday," they notified their ground crew, "maybe not until Wednesday."

Two refueling contacts were made today. Along with gasoline and food, the flyers received dozens of congratulatory messages. One came from Edna May Cooper, co-holder with Evelyn (Bobby) Trout of the 123-hour record which was broken yesterday.

MILK PRICES LEFT VIRTUALLY UNCHANGED IN ARBITRATION

Dean Isidor Loeb Arbitrates Wholesale Rate Issue Raised by Local Dairy.

Prices paid the Sanitary Milk Producers were left virtually unchanged for August by a decision, announced yesterday, of Dean Isidor Loeb of Washington University School of Business and Public Administration, arbitrator of a price issue raised by St. Louis Dairy Co.

The base milk price remains at $1.74 a hundred pounds, 3.8 per cent butterfat. The price of surplus milk for by-products is to be based on the Chicago butterfat average, as formerly, except that if the Chicago market averages more than 18 cents a pound, the surplus price is to be computed from that figure.

The complainant had held that under current prices it was paying more than competitors which did not use the base and surplus plan, but Dean Loeb judged that the difference in price was compensated for by advantages of stable supply and quality under the base and surplus plan.

Remarking that there was no disagreement concerning the benefits of the plan, or the evils that might follow its abandonment, he said, "While its advantages have been curtailed by the fact that at least 50 per cent of the milk supply is marketed on a different basis, it remains the chief stabilizing and quality improvement factor in the entire milkshed."

CLASH WITH COMMUNISTS

Police and Radicals Exchange 50 Shots at Buenos Aires.

By the Associated Press.

BUENOS AIRES, Aug. 20.—A Communist demonstration was snuffed out tonight when police exchanged some 50 shots with fleeing radicals and raided the offices of the Communist newspaper La Protesta, uncovering a few firearms. There were no casualties.

The manifestation was stimulated by a mass meeting called in the Plaza Congreso to protest against the growth of Communist activities in the city and to oppose diplomatic or commercial relations with Soviet Russia. About 2000 persons heard speakers advocate a Fascist movement to combat Communism. Police were on the watch for possible anti-semitic riots and arrested several persons upbraiding communists and Jews. The Jewish districts remained calm.

Treasure Salvage Ship in Port.

By the Associated Press.

NORFOLK, Va., Aug. 20.—The salvage ship Salvor which has been searching for the steamer Merida, with treasure estimated at $4,000,000 to $6,000,000, off the Virginia capes, returned to Norfolk today for supplies. Capt. Harry L. Bowdoin said he was "satisfied with progress" during the search, but would not elaborate on the statement.

4 MINES TO RUN AT TAYLORVILLE DESPITE STRIKERS

taken exception. This, opponents of the reduction argue, was unnecessary, not to say illegal. Duplicates of each tally sheet were retained by the local unions, and it would have been a matter of six hours at the most to get copies into Springfield for a count of the vote.

As Both Sides See It.

The opponents argue further that since the second proposal was substantially the same as the first, it must also have been defeated, and suggest that the robbery story was simply a device to avoid a defeat of the proposition.

The present impasse leaves both operators and miners in positions that are obviously difficult. Operators say they can not run the mines at the old scale and hope to compete with the coal from West Virginia and Kentucky, mined by low price labor. Their only alternative, they declare, is to put the mines to work, utilizing the labor of the union miners who are willing to work at the new scale.

The protesting miners, on the other hand, face this dilemma: If they got to work at the new scale, they lose all the ground toward living wages that they have gained through a long period of years, at great expense, and at the loss of many lives; if they elect to stay out, and keep the mines idle, they face not only participation in inevitable disorder, but are also confronted with the probability that their jobs may be gone, when the struggle is over.

"Right to Living Wage."

Leaders of the protesting diggers declare that the sole principle at stake is their light to a living wage, which they declare will be taken if the new scale goes into effect. The operators, on the other hand, protest just as firmly that they are bound to protect their investment and meet the competition of other fields where living conditions of mine workers are bad. With continuation of the old scale, they declare, the Illinois mines can do nothing but close up and leave the workings to the ravages of water and weather.

The new scale provided reductions for workers ranging all the way down the line from the skilled machine operator, who drives the coal-cutting machine, to the humble slate pickers, who work "on top." Following are the wages provided in the new scale as compared with the old:

	New Scale, Per Day.	Old Scale, Per Day.
Machine operators	$7.00	$10.07
Helpers	6.25	10.07
Electricians and repairmen	6.00	6.64
Drillers	5.75	8.20
Cleanup men (loaders)	5.70	7.50 to 6.10
Haulage men	5.40	7.50
Switchmen, etc.	5.00	6.10
Slate nickers	4.00	5.61
Slate pickers, unskilled	3.00	3.50

A Part-Time Job.

Even the wages embodied in the new scale look comparatively imposing in depression times until it is realized that the miners' job is by no means a full-time one. Mines in operation in the Central Illinois field up to the present difficulty were working their men a maximum of three days a week, and many miners worked only a day and a half a week, so that the average wage was estimated to be somewhere between $400 and $600 a year.

In the slate pickers' classification, the skilled pickers formerly used long-handled picks, the unskilled short-handled implements. In this and preceding scales which differentiated on the basis of tools used, the miners found they had laid themselves open to new reductions. The Peabody Coal Co. and other operators, the miners declare, deal out nothing but short-handled picks regardless of the status of the picker.

In the "hand mines" where coal is brought up through old-fashioned methods to insure a cleaner and more select product, the miners formerly received 91 cents for each ton they sent to the top. Under the new scale they get 68 cents. They contend a man can average only six tons a day, that his expense for powder, caps and carbide is $1 a day and that therefore he can not hope to run his earnings above $3.50 or $4 net. The operators, on the other hand, contend a good man can load 11 tons a day.

Calls Strike "Fiasco."

This afternoon President Walker of the Illinois District issued a statement at Springfield charging that nonunion and antiunion forces interested in forcing down the wages of the Illinois diggers, are really behind the movement against the reduced wage scale.

He called the strike movement a "fiasco" and declared its leaders were men whom the locals had repudiated in recent elections. Holding to the contention that the new scale is really a $5 schedule, he pointed out that Kentucky miners are working 10 to 11 hours a day for $1.50.

"Coal is being dug there for as low as 20 cents a ton," he said. "In the Pittsburgh district miners are loading five-ton cars for 65 cents—13 cents a ton. The Illinois cost per ton is 68 cents in the car."

But this, leaders of the protesting miners replied, has nothing to do with the case.

"If the Kentucky miners and the men in other fields are forced to work for starvation wages," one of them said, "it does not follow that we must, too. They are close to slavery. Shall we follow them, giving up all we have fought for? Far better to stick to our own standard. We are entitled to a living wage no matter what the operators pay their men in Kentucky and the Pittsburgh district."

Franklin County Has Warrants Ready for Strikers' Invasion.

By the Associated Press.

BENTON, Ill., Aug. 20.—Warrants charging inciting to riot were placed in the hands of Sheriff Robinson of Franklin County today to be served on 122 striking miners, should they invade this county Monday in an effort to halt operation of coal mines.

This action was taken after a conference here attended by State's Attorneys Marion M. Hart of Franklin County; Fletcher Lewis of Jackson; Max Hanson of Perry; D. F. Rumsey of Saline, and Arthur Melvin of Williamson.

They announced that they would unite to keep miners from other parts of the State out of their five counties.

Leaders in the movement to keep union miners from returning to work, following the acceptance of the new wage scale, were among those named in the warrants, prepared in anticipation of an invasion.

THREE MEN ACCUSED OF KILLING RECLUSE

Held on East Side for Fatal Torturing of Cisne, Ill., Resident.

Murder warrants charging three East St. Louis men with torturing and fatally injuring Fremont Pearce, 69-year-old recluse of Cisne, Ill., in an attempt to get money he was reputed to have hidden were issued yesterday at Fairfield, Ill.

The men, who were arrested during the last two days, described themselves as Raymond Mollicott, 25 years old, a salesman, of Granite City; Charles Roy, 38, manager of a roadhouse near Collinsville; and Ves Campbell, 52, a stockyard employe, of East St. Louis.

Mallicott and Roy were taken to Fairfield yesterday from the St. Clair County jail at Belleville and Campbell will be taken there today.

Special Deputy Sheriff J. G. Schrader, of East St. Louis obtained the aid of State policemen in arresting the three prisoners. Schrader said he recovered Pearce's watch at Mallicott's home.

Pearce was attacked last July 13 and died Aug. 5. The robbers beat Pearce, burned him with matches and tore out several of his toenails with pinchers but throughout the torture he continued to deny that he had any money hidden. The robbers obtained less than $30.

TO ENLIST BUSINESS MEN FOR SERVICE AT POLLS

Kansas City Election Board Head to Act on Complaints of Irregularities.

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Aug. 20.—William Bucholz, a Republican, chairman of the City Election Board, said tonight that business executives will be among those selected as precinct judges and clerks for the general registration in September and for the November election.

Bucholz, who yesterday conferred with Gov. Caulfield in the interest of honest elections in Kansas City, said that many of these business men would be commissioned to serve in North Side precincts where complaints of fraud have been frequent. He asserted there would be no discrimination between Republican and Democratic business men in the selections.

After referring to the Democratic organization in Kansas City as "a hard-boiled machine," Bucholz said: "To combat the activities of that party, the Republicans must present a militant fighting front and be on the job at all times to register the voters, get them to the polls on election day, check the vote lists and keep off those they are convinced are not legal and fight for the party's rights throughout."

FUNERAL HALTS AT CITY HALL IN COMMUNIST DEMONSTRATION

Speakers, Despite Contrary Autopsy Report, Hold Negro Woman Died of Injuries in Riot.

Despite the findings of a physician and the report of an autopsy that Mrs. Morgan Boyington, a Negro, died of natural causes, the Unemployed Councils of St. Louis, a Communist organization, held an orderly demonstration yesterday afternoon on the steps of City Hall. Speakers contended she had died of injuries received in the riot at City Hall July 11.

The demonstration was preceded by a noisy two-mile funeral procession from headquarters at 1243 North Garrison avenue.

The City Hall was closed for the Saturday half holiday when the procession, composed of about 300 men and women, most of them Negroes, reached there. A police detail remained across Twelfth boulevard. After speakers had held up Mrs. Boyington as "a martyr to the workers' cause," the meeting disbanded. The cortege of nine automobiles proceeded to Dixon Cemetery, Webster Groves.

Dr. Murray Winn, who performed the autopsy, reported death was due to diffuse peritonitis resulting from an intestinal obstruction.

CUBAN DEBT LIQUIDATION PLAN

Commission Expected to Conclude Study Next Week.

HAVANA, Aug. 20.—Juan Maspons, secretary to the Government Economic Commission, said today that the commission expected to conclude next week its study of a plan to liquidate Cuba's internal debt, estimated at between $30,000,000 and $40,000,000.

A plan is under consideration which would involve payment of internal obligations, including back salaries and unfulfilled contracts, directly with 5½ per cent bonds the maturity date of which has not yet been decided. The commission also is tentatively considering a recommendation to increase the present sales tax from 1½ per cent to 2½ per cent.

Receivership Petition Dismissed.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Aug. 20.—A petition for a receivership for the Central Life Insurance Co., filed two days ago on behalf of John Benson, owner of 20 shares of the company's stock, was dismissed today by Judge Ross Hall for want of equity. "Not an iota of evidence to justify this petition has been produced here." Judge Hall said. "The petition is dismissed for want of equity."

PATROLMAN IS SHOT CHASING AUTO THIEVES

Sergeant's Pistol Discharged Accidentally When He Dodges Speeding Car.

Patrolman William Newman, Central District, is at City Hospital recovering from a flesh wound suffered early yesterday when the revolver of Sergt. Charles Ostrander was accidentally discharged during an attempt to halt three Negroes in a stolen automobile at Seventh and St. Charles streets.

The officers fired nine shots at the Negroes, who escaped, apparently uninjured. The machine, with three bullet holes in the rear, was later found abandoned behind a billboard at 2915 Washington boulevard.

Patrolman Herbert Hedtkamp, walking a beat on Washington avenue, recognized the machine as one stolen earlier in the night from James E. Crawford of Clayton, insurance agent. Hedtkamp ran to St. Charles street as the Negroes circled the block. He met Sergt. Ostrander and Patrolman Newman, who were patroling in a scout car, and advised them of the situation as the stolen machine approached from the east.

Sergt. Ostrander stood in the street and waved to the Negroes to halt. The driver increased speed and swerved toward Ostrander, who was forced to jump backwards to escape being run down. Ostrander had his revolver in his hand and, as he partly fell against the police machine in his haste, the weapon was discharged. The bullet struck Patrolman Newman, who had reached the street by the time. It entered beneath the shoulder blade and emerged below the right armpit. The stolen car swerved against a taxicab as the police stood in the street and fired at it. Because of Newman's wound the officers did not pursue the Negroes.

Newman is 44 years old and lives at 4411 Virginia avenue.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Aug. 20.—Ranton A. McClachlan, carrier for the Star, admitted today he made up the story of having been kidnaped by gangsters and tossed from the Hannibal bridge to the Missouri River 60 feet beneath with his hands wired behind him. He declared, however, that he had been taken to the river and ducked.

COUNSEL HOPES LIBBY HOLMAN CAN STAND TRIAL IN OCTOBER

Lawyers, Returning From Conference With Client, Says Her Condition Has Improved.

By the Associated Press.

WINSTON SALEM, N. C., Aug. 20.—Counsel for Libby Holman said here today they are hopeful the former Broadway blues singer would be strong enough to stand trial in October in the killing, six weeks ago, of Smith Reynolds, her millionaire husband, shot to death after a birthday party on his estate here.

William Graves and Benet Polikoff, the attorneys, returned to Winston-Salem today after several conferences with their client at the Oakington (Md.) estate where she has been in retreat since she was released in $25,000 bail at a habeas corpus hearing at Wentworth, N. C., 10 days ago.

Both attorneys said they found the 26-year-old widow in better physical condition than when she came back to North Carolina to surrender to officers and seek her freedom on bail.

Both attorneys said their client was anxious to go on trial at the earliest moment. They said if she continues to improve, the case may be docketed for a term of the Forsyth County Court beginning Oct. 3.

MRS. EMELIA GECKS' FUNERAL TOMORROW

Died While on Way to Bury Husband, Symphony Musician.

Funeral services for Mrs. Emelia Gecks, who died suddenly Friday afternoon at the Kriegshauser mortuary, 4228 South Kingshighway, following services for her husband, Frank Gecks, former Symphony Orchestra violinist, will be held at 2:30 p. m. tomorrow from the same mortuary. Burial will be in Bellefontaine Cemetery beside her husband.

Mrs. Gecks, who has been under treatment for heart disease, collapsed as her husband's funeral procession was about to leave for the cemetery. Dr. O. C. Pfeifer of 4523A South Kingshighway was called and found that Mrs. Gecks had suffered an acute heart attack as a result of shock and grief over her husband's death. She died a short time later without regaining consciousness.

The mourners went on to the cemetery without learning of the serious nature of Mrs. Geck's collapse. She was 64 years old. Surviving are her sister, Mrs. George A. Held, and a brother, Frank Niemetz.

Mr. Gecks, who was 66 years old, died last Wednesday after a long illness. He helped to organize the Symphony Orchestra, of which he became concert master, and in addition conducted the orchestra of the St. Louis Philharmonic Society for 30 years.

ORGANIZED WETS LIKELY TO SOLIDLY BACK DEMOCRATS

Speech of Curtis and Other Events of Week Strengthen Groups' Opposition to Republicans.

7,000,000 SIGN PETITION FOR BEER

Shouse's Election by Anti-Dry Law Association Also Viewed as Favoring Roosevelt Ticket.

By PAUL Y. ANDERSON,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—Events of the last few days indicate that the organized wets of the country will be virtually solid in their support of the Democratic presidential ticket and its platform pledge of unconditional repeal of the eighteenth amendment. The Congressional Districts' Modification League today declared for unconditional repeal, and, in addition, announced that it has obtained 7,000,000 signers to a petition demanding that wine and beer be legalized by the next Congress.

Earlier in the week the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment not only came out for unconditional repeal, but announced the election of Jouett Shouse, former executive chairman of the Democratic National Committee, as president of the association. The declaration amounted to an indorsement of the Democratic position as against the moderately wet position taken by President Hoover in his acceptance speech, and the still drier plank adopted by the Republican national convention two months earlier at the President's insistence.

The Crusaders, made up of several hundred thousand of the younger opponents of prohibition, have declared for unqualified repeal, and are expected, not only to indorse the Democratic ticket, but to campaign for it actively.

Curtis' Speech Helps Wets.

Vice-President Curtis' action in declaring against repeal in his speech of acceptance has strengthened the disposition of the organized wets to support Roosevelt and Garner. It was pointed out today that the Vice-President, as the presiding officer of the Senate, would have considerably more to do with the process of repeal than the President. His rulings could either facilitate or delay the adoption of a repeal resolution, and in case of tie votes on questions of procedure he would decide the issue.

A. J. Kummer, president of the Congressional Districts' Modification League, today expressed concern that the organized wets, in their interest in repeal, might overlook the importance of electing representatives pledged to immediate modification of the Volstead act to permit the return of wine and beer. Although emphasizing the league's advocacy of repeal, he pointed out that the process probably will require years.

"The first step in our battle is to secure modification of the Volstead act, and the time to do that is now, when the candidates for election are before the voters," Kummer said. "To underestimate the intelligence and resources of our opponents, backed as they are to a large extent, whether with their knowledge or not, by certain organized interests to whose advantage it is to maintain the present status—to underestimate these opponents, I repeat, is a serious mistake. They are fully aware that in the legal delays of repealing the eighteenth amendment rests their one hope of added years of power. Modification will seriously impair if not destroy this power, and they, the holders of it, will use every resource at their command in the coming elections to elect candidates to postpone legislative action."

Legal Questions on Repeal.

Some of the technical legal questions which Kummer said would be raised by submission of a repeal amendment with the qualification that it must be acted upon by conventions rather than by legislatures, are:

"Has Congress the power to prescribe the manner in which delegates to these conventions will be elected and will it have the power to prescribe how these conventions will carry on their work?

"After Congress has submitted the proposed amendment to the states, and assuming that it does not prescribe the manner in which these conventions shall operate, either because it does not have the power to do so, or because it does not desire to do so, how and when shall these state conventions be called together?

"If a convention is to be called to pass on the proposed amendment will it be necessary for the State Legislature to call this convention?

"If so, will it be mandatory upon the part of the state legislature to call such a convention?

"Assuming that the state legislature does not call such a convention, will it be possible in those states which have adopted the initiative to have a law initiated and passed upon by the people of the state providing for the calling of a state convention, thus making it unnecessary to have the legislature pass on the question of whether or not it will call a state convention?"

But, he added:

"The one immediate hope of curing the intolerable conditions which even President Hoover admitted as existing, lies in electing a Congress committed to modification, and in order to do this support and encouragement must be given to the voters who will elect those Congressmen, and if this is not accomplished in the coming November elections, two years will elapse before the voters of the country will have another opportunity to declare their demands."

80 Flyers to Start Today In 7-Day $10,000 Derby

Groups to Leave Los Angeles and Washington as Preliminary Event to Cleveland Air Races.

By the Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, Aug. 20.—Eighty of America's leading pilots will take to the air tomorrow in the preliminary event to aviation's annual big show, the 1932 National Air Races.

Ready tonight at Washington and Los Angeles for the Cord Cup race transcontinental handicap sweepstakes derby, they face a week-long race across the continent to finish at Cleveland Saturday, opening day of the races.

All wings will be toward Cleveland for the 10 days between Aug. 27 and Sept. 5, with most of the nation's crack speed pilots gathered for an assault on world speed marks.

Flying each day over fixed laps and handicapped according to speed and type of plane, the Cord Cup pilots, both men and women, will fight it out on a point-award basis for $10,000 in prizes, the Cord Cup and two custom manufactured automobiles. They will compete in two divisions, meeting at Bartlesville, Ok., and racing together from there into Cleveland.

Route of Flyers.

The West-to-East wing will stop at Yuma and Phoenix, Ariz., Roswell, N. M., and El Paso, Lubbock and Abilene, Tex. The East-to-West wing will stop at Winston-Salem, N. C., Spartonburg, S. C., Atlanta, Ga., Birmingham, Ala., Jackson, Miss., and Shreveport, La. From Bartlesville the route will be through Jefferson City, Mo., East St. Louis, Ill., Indianapolis, Ind., and Cincinnati and Akron, O.

Maj. James H. Doolittle, St. Louis, who made a spectacular dash across the continent in the 1931 air races to establish a transcontinental speed record of 11 hours and 15 minutes, will try the same dash again this year in an effort to lower his mark.

As in 1931, he will make the attempt in the Bendix Trophy race from Los Angeles, touching his wheels at Cleveland to conform with race rules before going on to Newark, N. J. Doolittle will fly the Laird with which he set the record. He has reconstructed the wings and fuselage but left intact the fail surfaces and the Wasp Jr. motor.

The Thompson Trophy race, speed classic of the United States and the climax to the races, will also be competed in by Doolittle, who was forced out of the 100-mile grind last fall by motor trouble.

French Flyer Entered.

The first international entry in the Thompson event is Lieut. Jean Assolant, French trans-Atlantic flyer, who will pilot a ship lent by the French Air Ministry. Many designers and racing associations have entered two or three ships in the race.

The specially constructed racing power plants are freely predicted to atain speeds of 300 miles an hour this year and to surpass by at least 15 miles an hour the 236-mile-an-hour average set in the event last year by Lowell Bayles, Springfield, Mass.

Since 1929, when pilots of the United States first began their assault on the world's land plane speed record of 278 miles an hour set in France by Warrant Officer Bonnett, four pilots have been killed in futile attempts to surpass the mark.

Doug Davis, Atlanta, Ga., is the only surviving winner of the 100-mile closed course event, which in 1930 became the Thompson race. Davis won in 1929 with an average speed of 194 miles an hour.

Charles W. (Speed) Holman, winner in 1930 with an average of 201 miles an hour, and Bayles both were killed in subsequent attempts to set new marks.

URGES SCOTCH HOME RULE

Robert Cunninghame Graham Addresses Edinburgh Meeting.

By the Associated Press.

EDINBURGH, Scotland, Aug. 20.—What Scotland needs, said Robert Bontine Cunninghame Graham, leader of the Scotch Nationalists, here today is a King crowned in Edinburgh as well as at Westminster, with a member of the royal family permanently in Edinburgh as Viceroy. Graham spoke at a Nationalist demonstration at Elderslie. "The Scottish Nationalists," he said, "have created such an atmosphere in Scotland that no parliamentary candidate—Conservative, Liberal, Labor or Communist—dares answer no to the question, are you in favor of home rule for Scotland?"

William Power, author, said: "If you wait, 10, 15 or 20 years without forcing the issue of home rule for Scotland, then Scotland will be gone altogether."

Liner Washington Launched.

By the Associated Press.

CAMDEN, N. J., Aug. 20.—The large liner Washington, sister ship of the recently completed Manhattan, was launched in the Delaware River today. The vessel was christened by Mrs. T. V. O'Connor of Buffalo, wife of the chairman of the U. S. Shipping Board. Mrs. O'Connor broke a bottle containing water from Mount Vernon, the Virginia home of George Washington, over the ship's bow.

TWO MEN SOUGHT IN KILLING OF DEPUTY SHERIFF CAPTURED

Texas Officer Shot in Fight at Ranch in Attempt to Arrest Bank Robbers.

By the Associated Press.

AMARILLO, Tex., Aug. 20.—Lee Pebworth and Stanley Hedwick of Portales, N. M., sought for the slaying of Deputy Sheriff Harvey Bolin in a fight with officers at Pebworth's New Mexico ranch, were captured by a posse of citizens near Tatum, N. M., late today.

They were held in jail at Portales, according to a telephone message to the Amarillo News.

The rancher had been wounded in the fight at his home this morning, which followed an attempt of Texas and New Mexico officers to arrest three men there as bank robbery suspects. Four men found at the home shot their way to freedom.

Bob Crim, Sheriff of Lamb County, Tex., had warrants for the arrest of Pebworth, A. C. Hunsucker and Jack Sullivan. He said they are wanted for questioning in connection with bank robberies at O'Donald and Olton, Tex., and Shawnee, Ok.

Bolin was a Plainview (Tex.) officer. Deputy Sheriff R. L. Hollis of Portales was wounded dangerously in the fight at the ranch. The suspects fled from the ranch together by motor car, heading toward the Mexican border.

Leader in Prison Break Caught.

By the Associated Press.

ARDMORE, Ok., Aug. 20.—Leon Lemmons, leader of the break in which 23 prisoners escaped last Sunday night from the State reformatory at Granite, was captured near here today. Lemmons, who is under a 10-year sentence for robbery, offered no resistance. One of the fugitives, Finis Beard, was slain Thursday night in Ardmore when police attempted to recapture him. Twelve of the convicts remain at large.

URGES GREATER USE OF TRADE ACCEPTANCES

U. S. Chamber of Commerce Executive Committee Approves Expansion of Credit.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—Expansion of banking credit through greater use of trade acceptances was recommended today by the Executive Committee of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States.

Prompt consideration of ways to encourage a wider and proper use of the trade acceptance as a substitute for the "open book account" between buyer and seller of merchandise will be urged on business firms and organizations belonging to the national chamber.

A statement by the chamber said while it had no mandate from its members to approve or disapprove the trade acceptance, the Executime Committee believed "that an early expansion of the volume of trade bills would be of material assistance in improving general business conditions."

"The proper use of the trade acceptance in relation to both buying and selling transactions," the committee feels, "will assist in the release of credit from banks, including Federal Reserve banks."

Supporting the committee's action, Robert V. Fleming, president of the Riggs National Bank of Washington and a finance director of the chamber, said there was no question "but that the greater use of the trade acceptance will stimulate the flow of credit into commerce and trade."

"In the past few months," Fleming said, "many large industrial concerns have adopted the practice of taking short-term acceptances from responsible customers in payment for goods sold to them, and issuing trade acceptances promptly in payment for goods purchased.

"The trade acceptance is the best known form of prime commercial paper, arising from a specific business transaction, bearing the names, as drawer and acceptor, of two solvent concerns. It is eligible for purchase or rediscount by the Reserve banks, and thus constitutes the legal basis for Reserve Bank currency."

BRUISED BODY OF BOY, 10, FOUND HANGING FROM LIMB

Father and Stepmother Both Held in Kentucky; Witnesses Say They Often Beat Child.

By the Associated Press.

OLIVE HILL, Ky., Aug. 20.—The bruised body of Roy Rickey, 10 years old, was found hanging from the limb of a tree today near the home of his father, Clyde Rickey, 52, at Soldier, Ky. Coroner Henderson said probably the boy had been dead two or three days.

After a Coroner's inquest, the boy's father, his stepmother and Jim Andy Day, who had been living at the Rickey home, were taken to the county jail at Grayson to be held for investigation.

Witnesses at the inquest testified the boy's father and stepmother had often beaten the child severely. Inspection of the hanging scene disclosed no footprints of the boy, but Coroner Henderson said footprints of a man were found under the tree.

Roy was Rickey's son by his second wife. His present wife is his fourth. She had been married three times.

Puerto Rican Relief Parley.

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico, Aug. 20.—The Mayors of 77 Puerto Rican cities were summoned today by Gov. James R. Beverley to confer on essential projects for which financing might come from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. At the Governor's request the corporation is sending R. H. Huss from Washington to study conditions here as a basis for recommendations for handling financing on the island.

Illinois Saloon Keeper Slain.

WAUKEGAN, Ill., Aug. 20.—Peter Meyer, said by officials to have been a saloon proprietor in the Fox Lake resort territory, was shot to death last night. His body was found in a ditch by a motorist. Two men are being held as material witnesses. Meyer, whose auto was found near his body, had been shot twice. Sheriff Lester Tiffany of Lake County expressed the opinion he had been killed as the result of a feud among beer sellers.

BRAZILIAN FEDERAL TROOPS REPORT VICTORY OVER REBELS

18,000 Attacking Sao Paulo Insurgents Said to Have Won Two Positions.

By the Associated Press.

RIO DE JANEIRO, Aug. 20.—The capture of two important mountain positions on the Cruzeiro-Cachoeira front was claimed by the Federal forces today after the heaviest engagement of the revolt in the Parahyba region with the rebel armies of Sao Paulo. A six-hour artillery duel took place in the tunnel sector and the cannon could be heard 20 miles away. Eighteen thousand loyal troops were said to have struck at the insurgents at five points along the 300-mile front.

The Federals accused the rebels of bombarding the town of Queluz, 200 miles northwest of Rio de Janeiro, and killing three civilians.

Textile Plant Increases Pay.

By the Associated Press.

ROCHESTER, N. H., Aug. 20.—Five hundred employes of the Gonic Manufacturing Co. mills here were notified today of a 10 per cent wage increase, effective immediately. Improved conditions in the textile trade was asserted to have made the wage increase possible.

PENNSYLVANIA BAR HONORS LAWYER ON 100TH BIRTHDAY

Supreme Justice Roberts Among Those at Celebration for Attorney 76 Years in Practice.

MEDIA, Pa., Aug. 20.—George E. Darlington went to court as usual today, just as he has on almost every court day for the last 76 years, but on this occasion he stood before a special tribunal, sitting in honor of his one hundredth birthday.

Justice Owen J. Roberts of the United States Supreme Court joined with other leading jurists to pay homage to the man said to be the oldest practicing attorney in the country.

Darlington presented a routine petition, then heard Judge Roger W. Fronefield of the Delaware County Court praise his record and offer the Court's congratulations on his birthday and on his completion of 76 years of law practice here.

The lawyer was guest of honor at a reception this afternoon and at a dinner tonight. He received congratulatory messages from President Hoover and Justice Alexander Simpson of the Pennsylvania Supreme Court.

"I don't allow myself to get excited about things any more," Darlington said. "I've got past that phase of life."

ENCH PAPER PRAISES MOVE FOR TRADE PACT WITH U. S.

rriot Organ, However, Believes Negotiations Will Be Delicate and Difficult.

the Associated Press.

PARIS, Aug. 20.—Inauguration t Monday of negotiations for a nco - American commercial aty were acclaimed today by the wspaper Ere Nouvelle, Premier rriot's organ, as an outstanding tory for the French Government.

Warning that the conversations l be delicate and difficult, the wspaper commented that it is dom easy to persuade the United tes to make a commercial eement with a European country because she is always chary of angering her political and economic independence.

"There must be something anged overseas with regard to us least," the paper said, "because y are willing to modify a traional policy. It is evident that sent was given only because re was an interest therein, but t it also France's interest to stitute progressively for the ta policy a policy of commerl accords which would develop changes instead of rendering m anemic?"

The newspaper deduced that the ta system of restricting imports ght be useful in a provisional y, but retaining it would gravely prejudice France's foreign comrce. It concluded with the hint t the results of the Lausanne d Geneva conferences were ronsible for America's friendly atude in this case.

TO RULE ON LEGALITY OF ELECTION CONTESTS

Judge Hartmann to Pass on Cases of Defeated Candidates in Primary.

Circuit Judge Hartmann expects to rule in the next few days on the legality of several petitions in election contests which grew out of the primary of Aug. 2.

All except one were filed by candidates seeking election to the Republican and Democratic city committees. They alleged fraud or other irregularities. In one case James L. Wren, an attorney, seeks to be declared the winner of one of the four Democratic nominations for the Legislature from the Fourth District. On the face of the returns he was defeated by 150 votes by the fourth man in the race out of a field of 18 candidates. His successful opponents were Cornelius J. O'Brien, Andrew F. Blong, James Carroll and Harry H. Brake, who are named as defendants. Their counsel contended that all of the candidates should be named as defendants, and he also advanced other technical reasons why the petition should be denied. Wren is a former member of the Legislature.

Legality of All Suits at Issue.

Technical objections affecting the legality of all the suits have been raised. Attorneys representing the defense assert that the statute enacted in 1931, under which the suits were filed, is unconstitutional because it does not provide for any appeal. Other reasons why the petitions are not valid also were cited. Judge Hartmann took the pleas under advisement but before doing so he permitted contestants to introduce evidence bearing on allegations of fraud and irregularities.

In the case of Albert A. Huber, who seeks to oust William H. Hubele as Republican Committeeman in the Seventh Ward, testimony was offered that ballots of voters who asked for assistance in voting and wanted to vote for Huber were marked for Hubele; that election judges had sample ballots of Hubele in the polls, that in one precinct the ballot boxes were illegally opened at noon; also that efforts were made to force Huber's watchers to leave the polls, and Hubele was aided by Democratic judges. One witness testified when he asked a Democratic judge of election to see that Huber was given a square deal the offical replied, "I have taken charge here and am running this show." The same witness told the court an election official came out of a polling place and remarked, "Al is getting gypped in there right and left." Hubele's majority in the ward as shown by official returns was 260.

Charges Polls Closed Too Early.

Testimony in the case of Eugene P. Farris against William G. Kaysing, Republican Committeeman in the Fifteenth Ward, was that some of the polls were closed before 7 p. m. in violation of law and that Farris voters were thereby kept out; that the ballot boxes in one precinct were removed from the polls and placed in a vacant store room, where they were kept more than an hour, and in some precincts the names of persons who had moved were voted. Kaysing, incumbent committeeman, was reelected by 130 majority, according to the returns.

Another case taken up was that of Charles Pfeifer in the Sixteenth Ward, who was defeated for reelection to the Republican City Committee by Nathan Goldberg. Pfeifer told the court that irregularities in the count occurred, and he believed a recount would show he was elected. He lost by nine votes.

Woman's Testimony Heard.

The court also heard in part testimony in the case of Mrs. Loretta Neusel, who claims she was legally elected as Democratic Committeewoman in the Second Ward, although the official returns gave the election to her opponent, Mrs. Ann Brady, by 14 votes. Further hearing of her case will be had this week. Wren's case also was heard in part, to be taken up later by the court.

No action has been taken on the petition of Clarence Hammond, defeated for Democratic Committeeman in the Twenty-third Ward by Charles M. Reardon, nor in the case of Mrs. Lucy B. Gilmore against Mrs. Naomi Oldham, also of the Twenty-third Ward, for the office of Republican Committeewoman. The Hammond case is based on the general election law, it being contended by his counsel that the 1931 statute does not apply.

Wants Time to Move Radio Plant.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20. — The Chicago Federation of Labor today asked the Radio Commission for a six-month extension of time for moving Station WCFL from Chicago to York Township, Ill., and for increasing the power from one and one-half to five kilowatts. The commission previously had authorized these changes to be made by next Sept. 27.

Georgia Governor Hurt in Auto.

By the Associated Press.

DUBLIN, Ga., Aug. 20. — Gov. Richard B. Russell Jr., was cut and bruised and lost several front teeth in an automobile accident today near here were en route to Dublin to deliver an address in the interest of his candidacy for the United States Senate. The driver of the Governor's car plunged int oa ditch purposely to avoid colliding with another car. Gov. Russell continued his journey to Dublin where he went ahead with his campaign address.

MUSSOLINI EYES NEW JOBS

Expects to Take Over More Cabinet Portfolios.

ROME, Italy, Aug. 20.—Premier Mussolini, who already holds four posts in the Italian Government, contemplates naming himself Minister of Defense and amalgamating the Ministries of War, Navy and Air into one portfolio, it is learned on reliable authority tonight.

Government experts believe the move will produce economy as well as greater co-operation among the three armed forces and eliminate duplicated services. The amalgamation is expected to be announced late in the autumn. It is probable that the young Minister of Aviation, Italo Balbo, who developed Italy's modern aircraft corps, will receive an equally important post, while Minister of the Navy Giuseppe Siriani and Minister of War Pietro Gazzera may be retired. With Mussolini holding three more portfolios, the lineup will be the same as in 1929 when he held seven positions in the Cabinet.

Radio Set in Convict's Prayerbook.

By the Associated Press.

GEELONG, Australia, April 20.—The answer to a prisoner's prayer here was more discipline. Warders found that the prayerbook which he always carried contained a neat crystal radio set. His cellmates now depend upon next day's papers for racing results.

To Run Against Senator Bingham.

By the Associated Press.

HARTFORD, Conn., Aug. 20.—Prof. Albert Levitt of Redding, militant foe of the Connecticut Republican organization, came forward today as a third party opponent to Senator Hiram Bingham in the November election. Levitt, a former Brooklyn law school instructor, announced his senatorial candidacy on an independent Republican ticket, for which a place on the State ballots is being sought. Bingham's renomination by the Republican convention next month is conceded.

TEXT OF GOV. ROOSEVELT'S FIRST MAJOR SPEECH OF CAMPAIGN

ADMINISTRATION POLICIES BEFORE MARKET CRASH AND SINCE TARGET OF ATTACK

Democratic Nominee at Columbus Replies to Hoover's Acceptance Speech by Assailing "New Economics" of Last Four Years.

By the Associated Press.

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 20.

THE text of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt's presidential campaign address delivered before Ohio Democrats here today, follows:

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 20.

FOLLOWING are some of the highlights in Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt's speech here today:

We must make American individualism what it was intended to be—equality of opportunity for all, the right of exploitation for none.

I propose an orderly, explicit and practical group of fundamental remedies. These will protect not the few but the great mass of average American men and women who, I am not ashamed to repeat, have been forgotten by those in power.

When facts could no longer be ignored and excuse had to be found, Washington discovered that the depression came from abroad.

We find concentrated economic power in a few hands, the precise opposite of the individualism of which the President speaks.

We find a tariff that has cut off any chance of a foreign market for our products which had had the effect of cutting the earnings of the farmer to the extent of threatening him with foreclosure and want.

We find the Republican leaders proposing no solution except more debts, more conferences under the same bewildered leadership; more Government money in business and no Government attempt to wrestle with basic problems.

I sum up the history of the last administration—it encouraged speculation and over-production—erroneously charged the cause to other nations of the world—attempted to minimize the crash and misled the people as to its gravity—refused to recognize and correct the evils at home which had brought it forth, delayed relief and forgot to reform.

When I opened my campaign in Chicago seven weeks ago I spoke briefly and plainly of the issues of this campaign. Following that address I outlined to the people of the country the platform of my party. In the order of logic I should devote this address to the Republican platform and the speech of acceptance of my opponent. I find it necessary, therefore, not only to discuss these statements, but to consider them in the light of Republican policies and promises of the past few years. To do so without severe criticism is impossible.

I regret this necessity. Destructive criticism is never justified for its own sake. But to build we must first clear the ground. We must find out why the present Republican leadership built so unwisely. We must determine the causes that made the old structure collapse. We must take borings to determine the necessary character of the foundation. To justify our right to build we must show not only a sound plan, but why, in contrast, this plan offers the hope of better things.

Parties Agreed on Major Issue.

Both platforms and the speeches of acceptance of both candidates at least have agreed upon one thing; that the major issue in this campaign is the economic situation. The people are now asked to judge whether the present administration has been wise in its economic policies, as revealed in the President's statements and actions. Only in this sense is this criticism directed at an individual.

I propose to show that this leadership misunderstood the forces which were involved in the economic life of the country; that it encouraged a vast speculative boom and that when the reckoning came the administration was not frank—not honest—with the people, and by blundering statements and actions postponed necessary readjustments. This prolonged and deepened the depression.

Much of our trouble came from what the President described as "a new basis in Government relation with business; in fact, a new relationship of Government with its citizens." His serious purpose is, in his own words, "to set up a systematic organization of the whole business community." The fact that he believes this policy definitely affects business he has asserted many times. For example, in taking credit for the expansion of export trade, he said, "it is not chance. . . . Things like this don't happen." Here is the case summed up in the President's own words. At St. Louis in 1928 he said, "Without the wise policies which the Republican party has made effective through the past seven and a half years, the great prosperity we now enjoy would not have been possible." Remember this, my friends, in the face of present assertions that Government cannot affect business conditions. If he claims to lead, he must take the responsibility of what the army does and where it goes.

Bubble Fortunes but Fewer Jobs.

This mobilization of business as the President practices it by promotion and advertising methods will always be defective. His power to influence public opinion is great, but this driving will, as it has been well put, always be back-seat driving—ineffective and dangerous.

Apart from the futility and danger of such interference the President's thought is a wide departure from the Republican tradition as voiced by President Harding's slogan of less Government in business. Republicans everywhere should see this. It is completely alien to the traditions of his party. The coincidence of the two policies is as dangerous a mixture as fire and powder. This is the tragic folly of the past four years.

Even before the election of Mr. Hoover a terrible race began between the rising tide of bubble fortunes in the stock market and the rising tide of unemployment. Mr. Hoover's own records in the Department of Commerce showed that there were 2,000,000 fewer men at work in the four principal fields of employment in 1925 than there had been six years previously, although the population and production had vastly increased and many new industries had appeared. Despite huge profits in a handful of large corporations, more than half the corporations of the country were reporting no net income.

Nevertheless we were, said Mr. Hoover, on the verge of the "greatest commercial expansion in history." High wages would create new consuming power, accelerated mass and machine production would lower costs. Buy more! Owe more! Spend more! This was the program. This caused the deluge of high pressure selling, lavish extravagances, head-on plunges into debt, and yet more debt, and all this coupled with the President's idea of Government sponsorship of the whole headlong plunge, was the dangerous doctrine called "the new economics." It was the heyday of promoters, sloganeers, mushroom-millionaires, opportunists, adventurers of all kinds. In this mad whirl was launched Mr. Hoover's campaign. Perhaps foreseeing it, a shrewd man from New England, while in the cool detachment of the Dakota hills, had typed on a narrow slip of paper, "I do not choose to run."

Foreign Loans and U. S. Surpluses.

It was already obvious even to the administration that the forced production of our industry was far too great for our domestic markets. The President had to meet this fact and he did meet it by an audacious and fateful suggestion. We were to sell what he called "the constantly increasing surplus" abroad. But how could this be done in the collapsed state of world finance? He answered, "It is an essential part of the further expansion of our foreign trade that we should interest ourselves in the development of backward or crippled countries by means of loans."

Obedient to this suggestion, the United States, which had already loaned $14,000,000,000 abroad, was lending overseas at a rate of $2,000,000,000 per year. Thus was produced in fact the crop of foreign bonds which American investors know to their cost. The old economics had gone out of business; to the suggestion that mass and machine production ultimately must destroy employment, the President simply observed, "This is the re-echo of a century ago." And the new economics went merrily on. The agitation had already begun for the raising of protective tariffs according to good Republican principle. There were protests that you could not increase protective tariffs preventing foreigners from selling and at the same time expect a greater expansion of our foreign trade. Said the President: "This theory was sound enough in the old days of barter." And after discussing polyangular trade, he concluded: "This, I believe, finally extinguishes the already depleted importance of the theory that our tariff seriously damages the buying power of foreign countries." I think the President himself knew better; but behind him was the insistent Mr. Grundy.

They had let the President have his foreign loans—not unnaturally, in view of the huge banking commissions which were being made out of these loans. But Mr. Grundy and the Republican leaders, looking for something more substantial than the fanciful promises from abroad that were being sold American investors, asked for a copper-riveted American market, sealed by the highest tariff in the history of the world. The President hesitated, because he must have seen the awful nature of the choice. But his courage failed. Grundyism had its way; and American industry, accelerated to a pace never before known, suddenly found the brakes locked on a slippery road. The law of gravity did the rest.

Back in 1928 when the Republican candidate told us that our prosperity was permanent and safe, red flags of warning were flying unheeded.

For some years the collapse of farm prices had prostrated agriculture with nothing done to help. In industry, larger industrial groups, mergers, holding companies, began to return fabulous paper profits; but the number of coporations reporting net income was steadily diminishing. In banking, Paul Warburg, a great financial authority and a great man who had given years of his life to the original building up of the Federal Reserve System, issued early in 1929 public warning that speculation had gone wild and that the country would have to pay for it. Notwithstanding the appearance of prosperity, unemployment was steadily increasing. Months before, the American Federation of Labor had sounded an alarm with regard to the rapid decrease in the number of jobs. The Federal Reserve Board saw the clouds, too, but did little.

The administration lined up with the stock market; and the warnings went unheeded. The President apparently forgot that in 1929 he himself had written: "Thirty years ago our business community considered the cyclic financial panic inevitable. We know, now, that we have cured it through the Federal Reserve Board." And he took the opposite course, nullifying the board's effort.

U. S. Adventures in Hoover's Wonderland.

It has been suggested that the American public was apparently elected to the role of Alice in Wonderland; and I agree that Alice was peering into the wonderful looking glass of the new economics. Waite Knights had great schemes of unlimited sales in foreign markets and discounted the future 10 years ahead. The poorhouse was to vanish like the Cheshire cat. A Mad Hatter invited everyone to "have some more profits," though there were no profits, except on paper. A cynical Father William in the lower district of Manhattan balanced the sinuous eel of a pool-ridden stock market on the end of his nose. A puzzled, somewhat skeptitcal Alice, asked the Republican leadership some simple questions.

Will not the printing and selling of more stocks and bonds, the building of new plants, and the increase of efficiency produce more goods than we can buy? No, shouted the Jabberwock, the more we produce the more we can buy.

What if we produce a surplus? Oh, we can sell it to foreign consumers.

How can the foreigners buy it? Why, we will lend them the money. I see, says Alice, they will buy our surplus with our own money.

Of course, these foreigners will pay us back by sending us their goods? Oh, not at all; says Humpty Dumpty. We sit on a high wall of a Hawley-Smoot tariff.

How will the foreigners pay off these loans? That is easy; did you ever hear of a moratorium?

At least we are at the heart of the magic formula of 1928. Strange as it may seem, the road to abolition of poverty was a constantly increasing mass and machine production. The absorption of the surplus was to be through the "development of backward and crippled countries by means of loans," as Mr. Hoover explained.

The "lift-yourself-up-by-your-own-bootstraps" theory was believed; it appeared to work. People voted the exponent of the new economics into office and rushed into the markets to buy. Under the spell of this fable they sacrificed on the altar of the stock markets the frugal savings of a lifetime. Business men sincerely believed that they had heard expert advice and risked their solvency by a new burst of expansion. Bankers, trusting the words of the leaders of a party which had advocated sound money and sound credit, made their loans not wisely but too much. Common sense was hushed before the spell of an economic necromancy sponsored by Washington itself.

'Official' Abolishing Of Poverty in 1928.

Between the day when the abolition of poverty was proclaimed, in August, 1928, and the end of that year, the market balloon rose 30 per cent. It did not stop. It went on, up and up, for many fantastic months—always up and up, until at last it was 80 per cent higher than the year before. These were as the figures of a dream. The balloon had reached the economic stratosphere, above the air, where mere man cannot survive. Then came the crash. The paper profits vanished overnight; the savings pushed into the markets at the peak, dwindled to nothing. Only the cold reality remained—the debts were real—the only realities in the cold dawn of deflation amid a nebulous welter of magnificently engraved certificates not worth the cost of the artistic scroll work on them.

Now came what I believe to be the real crime of the Republican administration. They had a sea of statistics at hand; but the administration did not tell the truth. On Oct. 25, 1929—the day after the big break—the President observed: "The fundamental business of the country, that is production and distribution of commodities, is on a sound and prosperous basis." After further violent breaks, he insisted: "There is no reason why business could not be carried on as usual."

On Dec. 3, the President sent a message to Congress: "The sudden threat of unemployment and especially the recollection of the economic consequences of previous crashes under a much less secure financial system, created unwarranted pessimism and fear. We have re-established confidence." And again, with what seems now likely ghastly humor, the speech continued, "I wish to emphasize that during the past year (1929) the nation has continued to grow in strength. Our people have advanced in comfort." Meanwhile common citizens in their family affairs and industrial and commercial agencies, began to trim their sails. The President disapproved of this prudence. He attacked what he called "a tendency to pause in their plans for continuation and expansion of business." "I have," said he, "instituted systematic and voluntary measures of co-operation with the business institutions and with the state and municipal authorities, to make certain that the fundamental business of the country shall continue as usual." On March 7, 1930, came the classic remark of the whole depression. Said the President to the press: "All the evidence indicates that the worst effects of the crash upon unemployment will have passed during the next 60 days."

1930 Federal Budget Ignored Depression.

It is not past yet. On May 1, 1930, the White House once more insisted, "We have now passed the worst." In October, 1930, after the false start and the disastrous aftercrash of that fateful summer, proclaimed the White House: "The depression is but a temporary halt in the prosperity of a great people. The income of a large part of our people has not been reduced." On Dec. 2, it was announced that "we have already weathered the worst of the storm." And then, as the depression steadily deepened, all was silence.

Now there was nothing more in all this than a wild gamble that the situation would, in some unexplained way, come out right. The Federal budget was arranged for 1930 on the theory that nothing had altered. The safety of our financial system; the jobs and living of millions of individuals and the safety of business enterprises in general, were staked on this guess. The people who faced the facts were saved; the others were ruined. This is the measure of Republican leadership.

When facts could no longer be ignored and excuse had to be found, Washington discovered that the depression came from abroad. In October of last year, the official policy came forth—"The depression has been deepened by events from abroad which are beyond the control either of our citizens or our Government"—an excuse which the President still maintained in his acceptance speech last week.

Not for partisan purposes but in order to set forth history aright, that excuse ought to be quietly considered. The records of the civilized nations of the world prove two facts: first, that the economic structure of other nations was affected by our own tide of speculation and the curtailment of our lending helped to bring on their distress. Second, that the bubble burst first in the land of its origin—the United States. The major collapse abroad followed. It was not simultaneous with ours. Moreover, further curtailment of our loans, plus the continual stagnation caused by the Grundy tariff have continued the depression throughout international commerce. If in your own minds you hesitate to believe this on the grounds that it may be actuated by political motives, then I beg you to look for yourself at any reliable index of international trade, of loans, of price trends, of interest rates, of production, of the other nations of the world. To paraphrase Kipling, "On our own heads the sin and the saving lie."

I sum up the history of the last administration in four sentences:

It encouraged speculation and over production, through its false economic policies.

It attempted to minimize the crash and misled the people as to its gravity.

It erroneously charged the cause to other nations of the world.

It refused to recognize and correct the evils at home which had brought it forth, delayed relief and forgot to reform.

So much for a dispassionate review of the facts of history. I have placed the blame. But to place the blame is not enough.

What Steps Taken To Recognize Errors?

The logical question before us now is this: What steps have been taken to recognize the errors of the past? What concrete remedies have been proposed to prevent them from happening in the future?

The real point at issue is this: Have the leaders of the Republican party, under a captaincy distinguished during the past four years by errors of leadership, unwillingness to face facts whose whole theory of curing the country's ills has been to call his leading sufferers together in conference to tell him how they may be healed; has this party, I ask, under this leader, suddenly become the heaven-sent healer of the country who will now make well all that has been ill? In other words, has the Republican elephant, spotted with the mire through which he has wandered blindly during these last four years, suddenly by miracle over night became a sacred white elephant of spotless purity, to be worshiped and followed by the people, or has he merely been scrubbed and whitewashed by cunning showmen, in the hope that they can deceive a credulous electorate for four years more?

The Republican platform provides the familiar explanation that the length and depth of the depression came from abroad. But there is no recognition of the part played by unsound investing policies permitted under a lax and indifferent leadership. This caused a very considerable part of the losses sustained by the people of this country. The only constructive suggestion regarding investments is an evasion. It says that serious problems have arisen from uniting investment to commercial banking; but it does not have the courage to suggest a separation. It provides no remedy.

The acceptance speech of the distinguished gentleman who is running against me is equally empty of hope on this subject. There is an eloquent description of the storm through which we are passing; glimpses through the clouds, of troubled officers pacing the deck wondering what to do; belated recognition that the storm rose out of a hot current of speculation; stout adherence to the alibi that the secondary phases came from abroad; the outline of the ship clouded in vague phrases about the "intrepid soul of our people." Changing the figure of speech, he speaks with feeling of a "soil poisoned by speculation" in which grew "ugly weeds of waste, exploitation and abuse of financial power," but not of the beneficent sun of administrative approval under the rays of which these weeds sprouted and flourished.

Rise, Decline, Fall Of 'New Economics.'

As to the claim to economic captaincy, the address is completely unregenerate. He said: "I am organizing the private industrial and financial resources of the country to co-operate effectively with the vast governmental instruments which we have in motion."

The only approach to the protection of the investing public beyond temporary and immediate loans is a vague reference to a stronger banking system which will not, he says, "permit the credit system of the country to be made available without adequate check for wholesale speculation in securities." He adds that "for seven years I have repeatedly warned against private loans abroad for non-productive purposes."

I have set forth thus in the words of Republican leaders the rise, the decline and the fall of the "new economics." We now come to the philosophy which, the President maintains, is behind all this. Here we have a strange contrast. We have in many utterances, ending with the acceptance speech, an exposition of the doctrine of American individualism. Set over against this theory is an actual policy which is directly in conflict with it.

Appraising the situation in the bitter dawn of a cold morning after, what do we find?

We find two-thirds of American industry concentrated in a few hundred corporations, and actually managed by not more than 5000 men.

We find more than half of the savings of the country invested in corporation stocks and bonds, and made the sport of the American stock markets.

We find fewer than three dozen private banking houses, and stock selling adjuncts in the commercial banks, directing the flow of American capital within the country and to those "backward or crippled nations" on which the President built so heavily.

In other words, we find concentrated economic power in a few hands, the precise opposite of the individualism of which the President speaks.

We find a great part of our working population with no chance of earning a living except by grace of this concentrated industrial machinery; and we find that millions and millions of Americans are out of work, throwing upon the already burdened Government the necessity of relief.

More Conferences And More Debts.

We find a tariff that has cut off any chance of a foreign market for our products which has had the effect of cutting the earnings of the farmer to the extent of threatening him with foreclosure and want.

We find the Republican leaders proposing no solution except more debts, more conferences under the same bewildered leadership; more Government money in business and no Government attempt to wrestle with basic problems. And we have a stirring appeal to the "intrepid soul of the American people."

Now, I believe in the intrepid soul of the American people; and I believe also in its horse sense. I am going now to outline my own economic creed, and a substantial part of the constructive program that I hope to initiate.

I, too, believe in individualism; but I mean it in everything that the word implies. I believe that our industrial and economic system is made for individual men and women; and not individual men and women for the benefit of the system. I believe that the individual should have full liberty of action to make the most of himself; but I do not believe that in the name of that sacred word a few powerful interests should be permitted to make industrial cannon-fodder of the lives of half of the population of the United States. I believe in the sacredness of private property, which means that I do not believe that it should be subjected to the ruthless manipulation of professional gamblers in the stock markets and in the corporate system. I share the President's complaint against regimentation; but, unlike him, I dislike it not only when it is carried on by an informal group amounting to an economic government of the United States, but when it is done by the Government of the United States itself. I believe that the Government, without becoming a paying bureaucracy, can act as a check or counter-balance to this oligarchy so as to secure initiative, life, a chance to work, and the safety of savings to men and women, rather than safety of exploitation to the exploiter, safety of manipulation to the financial manipulator, safety of unlicensed power to those who would speculate to the bitter end with the welfare and property of other people. The word "individualism" is a bitter word in the mouth of Republican leaders who have fostered regimentation without stint or limit. Opposition to financial exploitation is a ghastly sham in men who have created, encouraged and brought into being the very power of exploitation. We must get back to first principles; we must make American individualism what it was intended to be—equality of opportunity for all, the right of exploitation for none.

Before this campaign is ended I shall state fully to the country my policies with regard to the conduct of Government. Some of these policies I have already set forth.

Today, I lay before you another, and I do so in direct and plain English.

Two Questions for Voters to Answer.

Let me ask you a practical question: If either by manipulation or as a result of economic law a definite, even though partial, improvement in industrial production and commodity values were to begin in the near future, would the people of this country be satisfied to have a continuance of the same governmental policies toward speculation that were definitely practiced before the crash? Would the people of this country welcome a return of practices in banking, in the sale of foreign securities, in the flotation of mergers or in concealed and unsound practices of corporate financing to which the nation was treated in the years prior to 1929.

For every sane man and woman in this country I answer in the negative. I now ask one further question which current history also answers in the negative. Does the Republican platform or do the Republican nominees and leaders promise concrete and immediate remedies to prevent a return of the methods which were so largely instrumental in bringing us where we are today?

In contrast to a complete silence on their part, and in contrast to the theories of the year 1928 which I have shown that the Republican leaders still hold, I propose an orderly, explicit and practical group of fundamental remedies. These will protect not the few but the great mass of average American men and women who, I am not ashamed to repeat, have been forgotton by those in power.

These measures, like my own whole theory of the conduct of Government, are based on telling the truth.

Government cannot prevent some individuals from making errors of judgment. But Government can prevent to a very great degree the fooling of sensible people through misstatements and through the withholding of information on the part of private organizations great and small which seek to sell investments to the people.

Truth Telling In Investment.

First: Toward this end and to inspire truth telling, I propose that every effort be made to prevent the issue of manufactured and unnecessary securities of all kinds which are brought out merely for the purpose of enriching those who handle their sale to the public; and I further propose that with respect to legitimate securities, the sellers shall tell the uses to which the money is to be put. This truth telling requires that definite and accurate statements be made to the buyers in respect to the bonuses and commissions the sellers are to receive; and, furthermore, true information as to the investment of principal, as to the true earnings, true liabilities and true assets of the corporation itself.

Secondly: We are well aware of the difficulty and often the impossibility under which state governments have labored in the regulation of holding companies which sell securities in interstate commerce. It is logical and necessary that the full extent of Federal power be applied to such regulation.

Third: For the very practical reason that the many exchanges in the business of buying and selling securities and commodities can by the practical expedient of moving elsewhere, avoid regulations by any given state, I propose the use of Federal authority in their regulation.

Fourth: The events of the past three years prove that the supervision of national banks for the protection of depositors has been ineffective. I propose much more rigid supervision.

Fifth: We have witnessed not only the unrestrained use of bank deposits in speculation to the detriment of local credit, but we are also aware that this speculation was encouraged by the Government itself. I propose that such speculation be discouraged and prevented.

Sixth: Investment banking is a legitimate business. Commercial banking is another wholly separate and distinct legitimate business. Their consolidation and mingling is contrary to public policy. I propose their separation.

Seventh: Prior to the panic of 1929 the funds of the Federal Reserve system were used practically without check for many speculative purposes. I propose the restriction of Federal Reserve Banks in accordance with the original plans and earlier practices of the Federal Reserve system.

Two Policies on Stocks and Bonds.

Finally, I propose two new policies for which legislation is not required. They are policies of fair and open dealing on the part of the officials of the administration with the American investing public. In the first place I promise you that it will no longer be possible for international bankers or others to sell to the investing public of America, foreign securities on the implied understanding that these securities have been passed on or approved by the State Department or any other agency of the Federal Government.

In the second place, I assure you that high public officials in the next administration will neither by word nor by deed seek to influence the prices of stocks and bonds. The Government has access to vast information concerning the economic life of the country. The present administration has all too often issued statements which have had no relation to the scientific information which it possess This has shaken public confiden

The assurance which I am h giving you is to my mind more portant than all other remedi Restored confidence in the acti and statements of executive auth ity is indispensable. This admin tration has risked the lives property and welfare or the peo through a policy of disastrous g ernmental speculation.

It is no wonder that stagnati has resulted—a stagnation born fear. But this is a distrust not ourselves, not in our fundamen soundness, not in our innate abi to work out our future. It is a d trust in our leaders—in the thi they say and the things they do.

Therefore, the confidence whi the administration has asked us individual citizens, to have in ou selves is not not enough. The ki of confidence we most need confidence in the integrity, t soundness, the liberalism, the visi and the old-fashioned horse sen of our national leadership.

Without that kind of confide we are forever insecure. Wi that kind of confidence the fu is ours to conquer.

Eccentric "Corn Doctor" Found Beaten to Death in Auto at Hampton Bay, N. Y.

By the Associated Press.

HAMPTON BAYS, N. Y., Aug. 20.—Henry Frank Tuthill, eccentric "corn doctor" who carried thousands of dollars in his pockets and boasted "Let 'em start something" when he disappeared the night of Aug. 6, was found beaten to death on a road near here today. His skull crushed, Tuthill's body law in an old automobile. The pockets of his clothes—he always wore two coats, summer or winter—were turned inside out.

Two men and a woman were arrested and charged with first degree murder in connection with the killing. Victor Downs, 44 years old; Mitzi Nowak Saunderson, 35, and Joseph Hojenski, 24, were placed in Suffolk County jail to be held without bail until after an inquest Monday or Tuesday. Downs and Hojenski were under suspended sentence for robbery. The woman, said to be a former Broadway night club entertainer, was known also as Mrs. Downs.

Tuthill made his customary boast and showed five revolvers and pistols he carried on his person when he left the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fillmore Dayton, at Quoque, the night he disappeared. He resided with the Daytons. He told them he had about $10,000, but would not divulge the appointment he was keeping.

A familiar character, Tuthill was known at times to have his pockets stuffed with as much as $30,000.

He always carried at least two weapons, and the presence of five in his pockets and belt holsters when he disappeared convinced the Daytons he considered his appointment involved danger. Tuthill was 68 years old. He insisted always he was "a corn doctor" and resented being called chiropodist.

Police said they had information that Tuthill received a telephone call from a woman on the day of his disappearance.

Objects to Italian War Movie.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—The counselor of the Italian Embassy tonight confirmed a report that the Ambassador, Nobile Giacomo de Martino, had protested to the makers of Paramount motion pictures the filming of Italian war scenes in "A Farewell to Arms." He said reports that the protest came from Premier Mussolini are unfounded. The nature of the Ambassador's objections was not indicated.

New Orleans Club Raided.

By the Associated Press.

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 20.—The "Press Club," richly furnished liquor establishment in the famous French quarter, was raided tonight by Federal officers. Guests were gathered in five private rooms, the main drawing room, and at the bar which is separated from the main club. The agents arrested F. McNamara and destroyed a large stock of imported whiskies and liquors.

Two St. Louis Youngsters Canoe Their Way Down the Mississippi From Source of River in Lake Itasca

Bob and Briggs Austin Follow Twisting Trail of Stream From Minnesota and Find Portages Many and Difficult.

The following article was written by Robert and Briggs Austin, 16 and 13 years of age, respectively, who reside with their parents at 223 Sylvester avenue, Webster Groves. They are now somewhere between Dubuque, Ia., and St. Louis, and are due to reach home in about three weeks.

By Bob and Briggs Austin.

DUBUQUE, Ia., Aug. 20.—It's hard to imagine that the great stream flowing past St. Louis is, at one point, too small to float a canoe. And yet, out of Lake Itasca, there flows a tiny rivulet not over 20 feet wide which is the Mississippi River.

This tiny stream twists for 130 miles through swamp meadow land until it reaches Bemidji. It is 30 miles from Lake Itasca to Bemidji by road but 130 by river. From the difference in this mileage, it is possible to get some idea of the tortuous winding of the Mississippi. In very few places did we have 100 yards of straight going. There are innumerable "U" turns and the stream delights in making "S's" and "W's" and other letters of the alphabet. There is seldom any current and practically none at all in the swamp stretches.

We went from Itasca to Bemidji in three and one-half days. The first three days in rained and, on top of that, there was a cold spell. Several mornings we woke up in the wet swamp with our teeth chattering. It was hard camping for the wet grass was often waist-high and if there was any wood; it was too wet to burn, so we made no fires.

The first day we had to lift, carry and portage over 15 dams, logs and other obstructions. After that, the number of lifts and portages decreased daily. In one ripple, the first day, we had to lift and drag the canoe for four miles before it floated.

From Bemidji we started on another and different leg of our journey—through the lakes. We have so far come through eight, all rather large. One of them—Winnibogoshish — is as large as its name. It is 17 miles across and as we couldn't see the far shore, we acted on the advice of the residents of the region and made a 25-mile jaunt around the rim. The fishing in these lakes is said to be wonderful, but since it is hard to troll and continue paddling, we took the folks' word for the fishing and paddled through the lakes as speedily as possible. We fished in the river between lakes and had good luck. The river is still a small stream but large enough so that the only obstructions we had were power dams.

So far, we have portaged around 12 dams, have been carried around two and through the locks of two others.

After reaching Grand Rapids, which is 170 miles from Bemidji, and loafing there two days, we pushed off for Brainerd. The river for this 230-mile stretch runs through meadow and pasture land with almost no current. At Brainerd, the Mississippi begins to look like a big river and, after 510 miles, has a noticeable current. It is not until St. Cloud, 620 miles from the head-waters is reached, that there are any rapids. For 90 miles above Minneapolis, there is a swift current in many places. We had no trouble at all and arrived in St. Paul 31 days after our start without seeing any bluffs or notably beautiful scenery.

We spent three days in the Twin Cities and then pushed off for St. Louis on the great, navigable Mississippi. From St. Paul to Dubuque the scenery is marvelous. There are two great parallel lines of bluffs on each side of the river and the stream itself winds between. Only once do the bluffs meet on both sides of the river at once—in Lake Pepin.

On Lake Pepin.

This beautiful lake has been so well described that it suffices to say it is the most beautiful we have ever been on—and the trickiest. We started across with a slight breeze at our backs and before we knew it we were on the roughest sea we ever encountered in our canoe. We made shore and finally got in the lee of a point of land after which the going was somewhat easier and safer.

After following the river for 1030 miles, it still is interesting and different with as much fun and as many thrills as ever. Although we are a bit too heavily loaded, we feel it is worth while because we have been able to camp and live so comfortably.

The river now is a great stream but only once has it become too rough for our canoe.

SUES FOR DOUBLE INDEMNITY INSURANCE IN PLANE DEATH

Widow of B. M. Goldsmith in Action Attacks Clause in Policies Excepting Air Accidents.

Suit was filed in Circuit Court yesterday by Mrs. Violet Goldsmith, 6665 Washington avenue, against the New York Life Insurance Co. to determine its liability under double indemnity features in life insurance policies carried by her husband, Bernie M. Goldsmith, who was killed in an airplane accident near San Bernardino, Cal., March 13.

According to the petition, Goldsmith had two policies, one for $25,000 and the other for $5000, which provided for double the amounts specified in case of death due to accidental causes. It was specifically provided, however, among other restrictions the provisions for double indemnity will not apply if the insured met death when engaging as a passenger or otherwise in aeronautic operations.

Mrs. Goldsmith's attorney, Emil Mayer of Taylor, Mayer & Shifrin, contends the restriction mentioned would apply only to an employe or other person connected with the operation of the airplane. Goldsmith was a passenger. The company is willing to pay $30,000 but asserts it is not liable under the accident provision.

Several days ago Mrs. Goldsmith filed suit for $100,000 damages against the American Airways, Inc., owner of the plane, on account of Goldsmith's death.

Italians Acclaim Piccard.

By the Associated Press.

VENICE, Italy, Aug. 20.—Dr. Auguste Piccard, explorer of the stratosphere, and Mme. Piccard were flown here today from Desenzano by Minister of Air Italo Balbo to receive the plaudits of Venetians for his feat. The Belgian scientist took a dip in the sea soon after his arrival, spending an hour in the water, and tonight he attended a dinner given in his honor by Gen. Balbo. He was acclaimed by cheering crowds wherever he went.

MARINER PICKED UP, ADRIFT FOUR MONTHS

Lives on Fish and Rain Water —Sailboat Disabled After Leaving Dutch Harbor.

By the Associated Press.

SAN LUIS OBISPO, Cal., Aug. 20.—Reporting that he had been tossed around on the Pacific Ocean nearly four months in a disabled 37-foot sail boat, Capt. P. A. Riggs was picked up off Point Buchon today.

He was able to tell some details of his hardships here tonight.

At the time the disabled craft was sighted by the tugboat Commissioner, on the way to San Pedro, Riggs said he had about given up hope. His food supply had been consumed, he added, and he had kept alive on fish and rain water.

His story was:

"I left Dutch Harbor, Alaska, April 28, bound for Juneau and then Seattle. A storm carried away the rudder, topmast and sails of my boat.

"With makeshift sails, a makeshift hand tiller and by rough reckonings, I kept afloat to within 900 miles of the Hawaiian Islands. I was afraid of missing the islands and being carried past so I made shift eastward.

"Days passed and I was lost on the wide sea. The first land I sighted was Twin Peaks in San Francisco near the Golden Gate. That was Aug. 17, my forty-second birthday.

"I managed to keep near the coast until this morning when I saw the tug boat and managed to attract her attention. I was in the steamer lanes many days but was unable to signal any of the big liners, though I saw them passing by day and saw their lights at night.

"I caught rain water in a canvas and caught some fish to eat. I never gave way to despair but the last handful of beans was gone when I was found."

Though appearing seriously weak from hunger and hardships at the time he was rescued, Riggs looked greatly revived after his first meal here. He shaved after eating and said all he wanted was rest. His boat was the Novi of Seattle.

SUSPECT KIDNAPS POLICEMAN

DALLAS, Tex., Aug. 20.—All available officers, assisted by an army airplane, today sought T. M. Ryan, motorcycle policeman, who was kidnaped here when he attempted to arrest a bank robber suspect. Witnesses said the patrolman was forced into an automobile by an armed man he had stopped for questioning.

A short time before the kidnaping two men and two women, thought to be companions of the suspect, were arrested at a house where several weapons and a quantity of ammunition were confiscated.

ORDERS TESTIMONY TAKEN ON CLAIM TO WENDEL ESTATE

New York Surrogate Calls for Depositions Abroad Concerning Patrick Morris' Story.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—Surrogate James A. Foley appointed commissions today to take the testimony of six witnesses in Scotland and England cited by Thomas Patrick Morris, 52-year-old Scotsman, as able to verify his story that he is the son of John Gottlieb Wendel by a secret marriage.

Morris is seeking to establish the relationship so that he may contest for a share in the estate of Wendel's sister, Ella V. von E. Wendel, multi-millionaire Fifth avenue recluse.

Under Surrogate Foley's order the testimony in Scotland is to be taken Sept. 7 and in England Sept. 12.

Surrogate Foley announced he would postpone action on Morris' application for commissions to take testimony of witnesses in Wyoming and Arizona until he had received the depositions of the Scottish and English witnesses.

Man Killed With Iron Bar.

By the Associated Press.

GALESBURG, Ill., Aug. 20.—The body of a man believed to be William J. Kuehne of Houston, Tex., was found in the Burlington Road yards today, his head crushed by an iron bar. The weapon was found nearby. His pockets had been turned out and slashed by a sharp knife, leading police to suspect robbers.

Boy Killed in Fist Fight.

By the Associated Press.

TELL CITY, Ind., Aug. 20.—A fist fight over the use of a bicycle resulted in the death of Marks Kleeman, 14-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Kleeman, here tonight. Young Kleeman and Oswon Wright, 16, quarreled over which was to use Wright's bicycle to go to a golf course to caddy. After a few blows Kleeman turned to walk away and fell. He was dead when he reached the hospital.

Girl Killed in Combine.

LEMMON, S. D.—The 10-year-old daughter of Alen Zuloff, farmer of near Bison, was killed when she fel' into the hopper of the combine her father was operating. The body was found in a wagon load of grain.

SMOOT RENOMINATED SAYS HE'S STILL A DRY

However, He Will Support Hoover's View; Rechosen by Acclamation.

By the Associated Press.

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, Aug. 20.—The Utah Republican State convention renominated Senator Reed Smoot by acclamation late today after adopting a platform declaring "the Republican party does not bind its candidates or individual members to any definite course of action as to the question of modification" of the prohibition amendment.

Senator Smoot on his arrival at the convention reaffirmed his position as a life-long prohibitionist and declared himself in support of President Hoover's stand as outlined in his acceptance speech.

"I have been a prohibitionist all my life and I intend to remain such," he said in a newspaper interview. "But I believe the policies of the Republican party as announced in President Hoover's acceptance speech are far superior to those advanced by the Democrats and I intend to stand upon them."

Adoption of the report of the Resolutions Committee, including the prohibition plank, followed the rejection of a minority report declaring against repeal of the eighteenth amendment and pledging nominees to enforcement of liquor laws.

The delegates, who overflowed a small theater where the convention met, arose at the conclusion of a speech by State Senator Irvine placing Senator Smoot's name before them, and greeted with a shout his proposal that the rules of the convention be suspended and that the dean of the Senate be renominated by acclamation.

Utah's two members of Congress, Don B. Colton and Frederick C. Loofbourow, were renominated by acclamation at congressional conventions.

St. Louisan Elected by Society.

LONG BEACH, Cal., Aug. 20.—William Hogan of Stockton, Cal., was elected grand president of the Pi Delta Koppa Fraternity at its national meeting here today and Memphis, Tenn., was chosen for its 1933 meeting. D. B. Mabry of St. Louis was named grand secretary.

Empire Trade Conference Winds Up Work at Ottawa

when Bennett read its words of felicitation to imperial statesmen. Mr. O'Kelley of Ireland, a little white haired man wearing eye glasses, was one of those who stood to attention, with a quizzical, tired and ruminative smile on his downcast face, during the reading of the message.

Almost an audible sigh of relief has run through both the two conference ceremonies each time that symbol of a common allegiance to the British crown has been called into question, and the Free State leader has been seen to rise with his fellow statesmen. There has been a buzzing, and a craning of necks in the galleries, and men have asked of other men, "did O'Kelley stand up?" O'Kelley stood up, on both occasions.

O'Kelley emerged from this conference with two signed agreements, with Canada and South Africa, and the basis generally understood to be laid here for another more important one shortly—the one with the United Kingdom. He emerged also with a triumph for personal charm and courtesy during several occasions which everyone realized might be trying.

He made a little speech this morning, eulogizing Bennett, the Canadian sunshine, and the hospitality of the Canadian people, and when it was ended Baldwin leaned back of Coates toward the little Irishman and informed him visibly that it was an excellent address.

Signing of the Treaties.

The Anglo-Australian treaty, most troublesome of all in the conference sessions, was the first to be signed. There followed in swift succession, the signing of treaties between the United Kingdom, New Zealand, South Africa, Southern Rhodesia, New Foundland and India.

Then treaties were signed between Canada and South Africa, Canada and the Irish Free State, and Canada and Southern Rhodesia, between the Union of South Africa and New Zealand, and the Union of South Africa and the Irish Free State.

The first of several scarcely veiled references to the ardors of bargaining that have been the cause of bitter words between the imperial leaders back of their closed doors was made by Baldwin, when he moved an expression of the appreciation of the conference to Bennett for his statesmanship and hospitality in the conduct of the gathering.

"It is curious," he said, "how typical of the conference has been your weather. We met under blue skies and sunshine. We have had storm, thunder and lightning, and we have very nearly been washed out. But we have finished on the most beautiful day we have had, and that is an omen."

Bouquets for Everybody.

Mr. Havenga of South Africa remarked that nobody was under the illusion that he was going home with everything he wanted, and said he felt Bennett must have had the patience of Job, to carry the conference through to a successful conclusion.

During this colloquy, Baldwin commented that Canada had no monopoly of Jobs, and Coates, tall, bronzed and gallant, leaped into the breach with an expression of hope that the accomplishments of the conference might prove a turning point in the affairs "of a sad and troubled world." Sir Attul Chatterjee invited everybody to come out to India and enjoy its hospitality, and Moffatt said something inaudible to anyone except the conferees.

The principal address of the gathering was delivered by Bennett in reply to the enconiums of his colleagues. Receiving his quid pro quo of the silver platter like the one received by Baldwin, he said:

"There have been moments when I have been impatient and intolerant. At least you have forgiven me for these human failures, and realized the warm intentions I had in giving effect to qualities you say your chairman possesses, but which he knows that he does not."

He then appraised the results of the conference. "The agreements signed today," he said, "constitute a definite advance toward a closer empire economic association. Because of this we may fairly lay claim to an achievement greater than that which any other conference can boast. The fundamental difficulty heretofore preventing the consummation of an agreement founded on the principle for which we have stood has now been removed. We have commonly acknowledged that empire association can be based advantageously upon the principle of reciprocal preferences, and by our several agreements have evidenced our belief that these preferences insure the greatest benefits when they are predicated upon a general empire plan."

Will Advance Each Other.

He noted that in return for British protection against unfair competition for Dominion products, Canada had granted to Great Britain a competitive chance in the Canadian market.

"The agreements signed today," he said, "proclaim not only a growing spirit of co-operation within our empire, but as well the nature and extent of our material resources. We have so marshalled these resources in many commodities that we will hereafter be self-sufficient. We have taken steps to develop, to the common advantage of empire countries, other commodities which heretofore were gathered from world sources. We have indeed convinced ourselves that with sound management and just division of responsibilities, we are each equipped to advance the interests of one another, and collectively to take a commanding place in the economic world."

After calling for a continuance of this course in the future, Bennett said:

"May I close with this thought?"

"I Am a British Subject."

"By our combined efforts we have shown that one-quarter of the world's population of many different racial origins, professing many religious faiths, but maintaining common allegiance to one sovereign and one citizenship, can so harmonize their views as to agree to promote their common prosperity.

"In the days to come, millions of men and women, proud of that citizenship, will look upon the closing scene of this conference, and hear what has been said, and then, as they go about their tasks, will be inspired with higher courage and grimmer determination to undertake the discharge of their world-wide responsibilities.

"They will appreciate as they have never done before the proud boast, though made in no boasting spirit, which the citizen of old Rome made, a boast we too can make, the proudest boast that any man can make in all this world, the boast of a citizen of any of the individual dominions of this empire—'I am a British subject.'"

GIST OF EMPIRE TRADE TREATIES

By the Associated Press.

OTTAWA, Ontario, Aug. 20.—The British Imperial Economic Conference today completed a month of labor by signing numerous trade agreements constituting a definite program for commercial recovery throughout the Empire.

Great Britain concluded pacts with Australia, the Union of South Africa, New Zealand, India, Newfoundland, Southern Rhodesia and Canada. The Irish Free State signed bilateral treaties with Canada and South Africa; Canada with South Africa and Southern Rhodesia, and New Zealand with South Africa.

All of these pacts are subject to ratification by the respective Parliaments and there may be modifications of the various duty rates that have been proposed at the conference.

Outstanding Accomplishments.

These were listed as the outstanding accomplishments of the parley at its final session:

A British tariff of 6 cents a bushel on foreign wheat to protect Empire wheat.

A British tariff of possibly 4 cents a pound on copper, and a 20 per cent preference on Empire lumber.

These duties are to be buttressed by British legislation which will make sure that the advantages to the dominions resulting from them will not be erased by "state-controlled competition," or the dumping of products into the United Kingdom below world price levels.

Indeterminate advantages in British markets were accorded Empire fruits, dairy and livestock products—the latter chiefly by establishment of quotas on chilled beef from Argentina and bacon from Denmark.

In return the dominions—particularly Canada—agreed to give British industrial products freer entry and easier competition against foreign and domestic manufacturers in their home markets. Among the major American exports expected to face keener competition to some degree are wheat, lumber, copper, coal, apples, automobiles, iron and steel products and certain cotton textile constructions.

Canada and Australia looked forward to a virtual monopoly on the United Kingdom wheat and flour market as a result of Great Britain's promise to place a 6 cent tariff on foreign wheat and guarantee its effectiveness by denying entry to "dumped" grain.

In agricultural circles which hailed preferences on Empire wheat, cheese, apples and butter as a "victory for the Canadian farmer," it was estimated that from 75,000,000 to 100,000,000 bushels of prairie wheat a year would be virtually assured a market in the British Isles.

The Imperial Policy.

Salient points in the Imperial policy here laid down included:

A definite stand against the purchase of goods dumped in competition with Empire products.

The earliest possible withdrawal of duties to equalize exchange depreciation.

The abrogation of any most-favored-nation treaties interfering with Empire preferences.

Refusal of the commonwealth nations to accept the principle that foreign countries effecting regional trade preferences may deny equal privileges to Empire countries with which they have unconditional most-favored-nation treaties.

Co-operation with the international Powers to restore an international monetary standard.

Empire standardization of industrial and agricultural products to facilitate the exchange of commodities among commonwealth nations.

Continuation of the Empire marketing board to popularize commonwealth products in commonwealth nations.

London Sunday Times Says Conferees Set Example for Others.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Aug. 20.—The Sunday Times acclaims the results of the Ottawa economic conference as an incalculable service to the dominions and to the Empire as a whole.

The negotiations in the Canadian capital, the newspaper asserts, set an example "of friendly co-operation in matters of trade which other nations would do well to follow."

The proposed world economic conference probably will meet at the end of November, the Times says, for preliminary consultations to be followed by adjournment until the new year.

Labor to Seek Mandate to "Free People From Entanglements."

By the Associated Press.

CARLISLE, England, Aug. 20.—George Lansbury, leader of the Parliamentary Labor party, today declared Labor would ask for a mandate in the next general election to "free the British people from any economic entanglements woven around them at Ottawa."

The labor leader in the course of an address said it would be a "profound mistake' 'if the statesmen at Ottawa imagined the present British Government could bind the nation for a period of years to a policy of protection.

The Labor party, he said, would never accept the principle of continuity of protection in either foreign, dominion of domestic affairs.

"Mere Juggling With Trade."

Lansbury asserted his party was as anxious as any to maintain good relations with the Dominions, but it did not intend to break with the Scandinavian countries, South America or the Soviet republic.

His party, he said, would struggle for international agreements which would enable the world's goods to be exchanged fairly and equitably between nations. Tariffs and preferences, he held, could never do this.

In conclusion he said no attempt had been made at Ottawa to increase consumption or widen the sphere of employment. "Only mere juggling with trade" was taking place, he said.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Aug. 20.—The vote cast in the Democratic and Republican primary elections in Missouri last Aug. 2 passed a total of 1,000,000 for the first time in the history of primary elections in the state, according to the tabulations completed today in the official canvass of the vote by the Secretary of State's department.

The high total for the two parties was 1,007,405, which included a maximum Democratic vote of 637,026 and a maximum Republican vote of 370,379. This total of 1,007,405 exceeded by 284,487 votes the highest previous total for both parties in a primary election, which was recorded in the 1928 primary.

The heavy increase in the vote was due chiefly to hard fights in several races in each primary, the large number of candidates for party nominations for Congressmen-at-large, the activity of the Pendergast Democratic machine in Kansas City which rolled up the heaviest primary pluralities in its history, and economic conditions.

Variation in Voting.

There was considerable variance in the total votes cast for nominations, as between different offices, due to voters not properly marking their ballots on some offices, failing to vote for candidates for certain offices, or otherwise spoiling their ballots. For instance, the combined vote for the Republican and Democratic candidates for gubernatorial nominations was approximately

MISSOURI CAST MILLION VOTES FOR PRIMARY RECORD, 637,000 ARE DEMOCRATIC

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Aug. 20.—The vote cast in the Democratic and Republican primary elections in Missouri last Aug. 2 passed a total of 1,000,000 for the first time in the history of primary elections in the state, according to the tabulations completed today in the official canvass of the vote by the Secretary of State's department.

The high total for the two parties was 1,007,405, which included a maximum Democratic vote of 637,026 and a maximum Republican vote of 370,379. This total of 1,007,405 exceeded by 284,487 votes the highest previous total for both parties in a primary election, which was recorded in the 1928 primary.

The heavy increase in the vote was due chiefly to hard fights in several races in each primary, the large number of candidates for party nominations for Congressmen-at-large, the activity of the Pendergast Democratic machine in Kansas City which rolled up the heaviest primary pluralities in its history, and economic conditions.

Variation in Voting.

There was considerable variance in the total votes cast for nominations, as between different offices, due to voters not properly marking their ballots on some offices, failing to vote for candidates for certain offices, or otherwise spoiling their ballots. For instance, the combined vote for the Republican and Democratic candidates for gubernatorial nominations was approximately 27,000 less than the total maximum vote cast in the primary election.

The maximum Republican vote was 370,379, cast for Henry Depping of Kansas City, who was unopposed for the Republican nomination for Attorney-General. The maximum Democratic vote was 637,026, cast for Forrest Smith of Richmond, unopposed for the Democratic nomination for State Auditor.

Former Mayor Kiel of St. Louis had a final plurality of 100,471 in winning the Republican nomination for United States Senator. The official count gave Kiel 172,447; the Rev. Dewey J. Short of Galena, 71,976; Robert J. Short of Galena, 38,664; B. F. Beazell of Kansas City, 34,705; Blodgett Priest, St. Louis, 12,533, and Pearl Abernathy, Negro, of St. Louis, 11,753.

Clark Wins by 95,000.

Bennett C. Clark of St. Louis, piled up a plurality of 95,401 in winning the Democratic nomination for United States Senator. The official count was Clark, 268,667; Charles M. Howell of Kansas City, 173,266; Charles M. Hay of St. Louis, 151,188; James W. Byrnes of St. Louis, 11,776, and Robert H. Merryman of St. Louis, 5819.

Howell, the Pendergast candidate, got a plurality of approximately 90,000 in Jackson County, but was badly beaten by Clark in the remainder of the State.

For the Democratic nomination for Governor, former State Senator Francis M. Wilson of Kansas City, the Pendergast candidate, won with a plurality of 149,912, over State Senator Russell L. Dearmont of Cape Girardeau, who made his campaign on an anti-boss platform. The count gave Wilson 374,289, Dearmont 224,377, Grover Childers of Kansas City, 13,252, and the Rev. James L. Delk of Sullivan, 6854.

Wilson carried 84 of the 114 counties and Dearmont carried 30 counties and the City of St. Louis. Wilson's plurality in Jackson County, including Kansas City, was 99,686.

Winter's Plularity 6941.

Lieutenant-Governor E. H. Winter of Jefferson City, who won the Republican nomination for Governor, nosed out Secretary of State Charles U. Becker of Polk County, with a plurality of 6941. The official count was Winter, 144,354; Becker, 137,413, and Leo E. Koehler of Kansas City, 79,846. Winter carried 68 counties, Becker 43 counties, and Koehler carried three counties and the City of St. Louis.

As shown by the plurality figures, the closest race was that for the second of two Democratic nominations for the Supreme Court, Division 2. Former Judge Fitzsimmons of St. Louis was defeated for this place by Judge Burney of Kansas City by 6609, a slightly smaller plurality than that of Winter in the Republican race for Governor. Fitzsimmons led Burney by about 48,000 in St. Louis, and had a substantial lead in the rest of the State outside of Kansas City, but Burney's lead of nearly 97,000 in Kansas City and Jackson County overcame this.

For other State offices, the official canvass showed the following vote:

Lieutenant-Governor — Republican: James J. Barrett of St. Louis, 89,196; J. Grant Frye of Cape Girardeau, 70,404; David P. Janes of Moberly, 63,937; Keith McCanse of Sunrise Beach, 62,275; Louis E. Trieseler of St. Louis, 46,420. Barrett's plurality, 18,792.

Democratic—Frank G. Harris of Columbia, 280,771; Floyd Sperry of Clinton, 166,503; Alvin O'Connor of Huntsville, 72,391; Fred M. Harris of Odessa, 67,373. Frank Harris' plurality, 114,268.

Secretary of State—Republican: State Auditor L. D. Thompson of Jefferson City, 223,239; William T. Findley of St. Louis, 115,926. Thompson's majority, 107,313.

Democratic: Dwight H. Brown of Poplar Bluff, 288,381; James T. O'Brien of St. Louis, 99,423; C. P. Cauthorn of Kansas City, 87,453; Jim Wells of St. Joseph, 84,164; William J. Dedeck of St. Louis, 25,374. Brown's plurality, 188,958.

Hackman Defeats Brunk.

State Auditor — Republican: Former State Auditor George E. Hackmann of Jefferson City, 153,148; State Treasurer Larry Brunk of Aurora, 115,181; State Oil Inspector Henry A. Perriguey of Linn, 70,901. Hackmann's plurality, 37,967.

Democratic: Forest Smith of Richmond, unopposed, 637,026.

State Treasurer—Republican: A. H. Steinbeck of Union, 184,785; Herman Lufcy of Bloomfield, 148,910. Steinbeck's majority, 35,875.

Democratic: Richard R. Nacy of Jefferson City, unopposed, 635,132.

Attorney-General — Republican: Henry Depping of Kansas City, unopposed, 370,379.

Democratic: State Senator Roy McKittrick of Salisbury, 282,118; Ike Skelton of Lexington, 166,015; George B. Calvin of Washington, 133,324. McKittrick's plurality, 116,103.

Judge of Supreme Court.

Judge of the Supreme Court, Division 1—Republican: Alroy S. Phillips of St. Louis, 190,916; Circuit Judge Albert D. Nortoni of St. Louis, 133,942. Phillips' majority, 56,974.

Democratic: Charles T. Hays of Hannibal, 306,560; Robert M. Reynolds of Marshall, 128,895; Allen W. Walker of Fayette, 100,448; Cardis W. Bates of Joplin, 39,138. Hays' plurality, 177,665.

Judge of the Supreme Court, Division 2—(Two to be nominated)—Republicans: Raymond G. Barnett of Kansas City, 141,985; W. L. Cole of Union, 130,763; Charles C. Madison of Kansas City, 117,148; David W. Peters of Jefferson City, 103,618; Edward F. Sharp of New Madrid, 77,477. Barnett's plurality, 24,837; Cole's plurality, 13,615.

Democratic: Ernest M. Tipton of Kansas City, 280,221; Circuit Judge Clarence A. Burney of Kansas City, 256,743; Supreme Court Commissioner John T. Fitzsimmons of St. Louis, 250,134; Charles L. Henson of Springfield, 203,701. Tipton's plurality, 30,087; Burney's plurality, 6609.

Judge of St. Louis Court of Appeals — Republican: Charles H. Daues of Clayton, unopposed, 172,352.

Democratic: Joseph Kane of Clayton, 91,506; Edward J. McCullen of Overland, 68,763. Kane's majority, 22,743.

Judge of Kansas City Court of Appeals—Republican: Samuel A. Dew of Kansas City, unopposed, 112,701.

Democratic: Hopkins B. Shain of Sedalia, 159,614; M. D. Campbell of Kirksville, 115,342. Shain's majority, 44,272.

Judge of the Springfield Court of Appeals—Republican: Judge Argus Cox of Springfield, unopposed for renomination, 82,898.

Democratic: Perry T. Allen of Springfield, 71,910; R. F. Baynes of New Madrid, 33,772. Allen's majority, 38,138.

Congressman-at-Large.

The official canvass for 13 Congressmen-at-large made no change in the personnel of the 13 nominees of each party as shown by earlier unofficial returns. Results of the canvass for the Republicans moved John W. Palmer of Sedalia, a former Congressman from the Seventh District, from thirteenth place to twelfth and dropped Sam A. Clark of Carrollton from twelfth to thirteenth. In the Democratic list, Frank H. Lee of Joplin advanced from thirteenth place to twelfth and Ruben T. Wood of Springfield dropped back from twelfth to thirteenth.

The 13 Republican nominees and their official vote: John M. Hadley, Kansas City, 181,188; L. C. Dyer, St. Louis, 176,196; Henry F. Neidringhaus, St. Louis, 172,332; Phil A. Bennett, Springfield, 159,791; David Hopkins, St. Joseph, 159,382; James Stewart, Jefferson City, 158,988; Carl J. Otto, Washington, 150,264; Joe J. Manlove, Joplin, 147,338; Rowland W. Johnston, Rolla, 141,211; Manvel H. Davis, Kansas City, 139,648; Louis E. Miller, St. Louis, 131,370; John W. Palmer, Sedalia, 123,970; Sam A. Clark, Carrollton, 123,385.

The four present Republican members of Congress, L. C. Dyer and Henry F. Niedringhaus, both of St. Louis, David Hopkins of St. Joseph and Joe J. Manlove of Joplin all were renominated.

The 16 defeated candidates for Republican nominations for Congressmen in the order in which they finished was as follows:

Politte Elvins, Clayton, 121,599; George W. Kirk, Charleston, 110,069; Jacob Karchner, Springfield, 108,466; Mrs. Dorys H. Farley, West Plains, 101,033; Eugene A. Hocker, Ferguson, 94,401; George R. Hart, Ferguson, 90,734; J. F. Culler, Palmyra, 90,571; Duncan G. Muller, St. Louis, 90,227; Rev. Aaron J. Rehkopf, Warrensburg, 85,603; Susie A. Kolkmeyer, Jefferson City, 84,635; Don Purteet, Jefferson City, 84,283; Crittenden E. Clark, St. Louis, 80,921; A. J. Jones, Pleasant Hill, 73,997; Chester A. Poe, St. Louis County, 69,744; Bernard P. Bogy, St. Louis, 67,030; John H. Boos, Jefferson City, 53,363.

13 Democratic Nominees.

The 13 Democratic nominees for Congressman-at-Large and their official vote are as follows:

Joseph B. Shannon, Kansas City, 334,318; John J. Cochran, St. Louis, 312,216; Clarence Cannon, Elsberry, 244,782; Ralph Lozier, Carrollton, 239,283; Clyde Williams, Hillsboro, 203,603; Joseph L. Milligan, Richmond, 198,582; C. C. Dickinson, Clinton, 195,870; James E. Ruffin, Springfield, 190,452; Richard M. Duncan, St. Joseph, 188,115; Milton A. Romjue, Macon, 185,571; James R. Claiborne, University City, 183,139; Frank H. Lee, Joplin, 180,307; Ruben T. Wood, Springfield, 179,666.

Of the foregoing list, all but Ruffin, Duncan, Claiborne, Lee and Wood are now members of Congress. Four of the other present Democratic Congressman, William L. Nelson of Columbia; James F. Fulbright of Doniphan; Robert D Johnson of Marshall, and William E. Barton of Houston were beaten for renomination. Missouri's representation in the lower House of Congress was reduced from 16 to 13 by the last reapportionment by Congress.

43 Who Were Defeated.

The 43 defeated candidates for Democratic congressional nominations and the order in which they finished are:

William L. Nelson, Columbia, 171,310; John D. Taylor, Keytesville, 167,886; James F. Fullbright, Doniphan, 166,866; Robert D. Johnson, Marshall, 155,054; William E. PARAGUAY FORCES REPULSED

Bolivians Report Victory Without Casualties.

By the Associated Press.

LA PAZ, Bolivia, Aug. 20. — A Paraguayan detachment attempted today to capture Fort Arce in the Gran Chaco wilderness, the Chief of Staff stated tonight, but were repulsed by the Bolivian defenders with several casualties. The Bolivians were said to have emerged without losses.

Moscow Assails Vatican Organ.

By the Associated Press.

MOSCOW, Aug. 20.—Osservatore Romano's statement that the Soviet Government had secretly ordered the liquidation of all churches by the end of 1933 was officially characterized today as "absolutely false" and proof of an Anti-Soviet campaign by the Vatican organ. Numerous abandoned churches were being demolished, it was related, but many others continued to flourish under a Soviet law permitting worship in all those with sufficient congregations to justify their operation.

Lily Pons Sings; Police on Guard

By the Associated Press.

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay, Aug. 20.—Lily Pons, Metropolitan Opera singer, opened a short season tonight as police adopted precautions against attacks on the opera house by extremists opposing opera in hard times.

KREUGER'S ISLAND ESTATE AUCTIONED OFF FOR $10,000

Swedish Agent for Greta Garbo Acquires It, But He Won't Say It Is for Her.

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, Aug. 20.—The beautiful summer estate of Ivar Kreuger, Swedish match king who killed himself when his stock manipulations left him bankrupt, was bought at public auction here today by the agent of Greta Garbo, movie star.

The estate, Anxsholmen, includes four islands in the Stockholm archipelago in the arm of the Baltic Sea where all the wealthiest Swedes have their summer homes, it brought only $10,000 at auction.

Capt. C. F. Groenwall, who has acted for Garbo in all of her transactions here in recent years, said he had bought the estate not for Miss Garbo but for a Stockholm brewer.

Before Garbo returned here from Hollywood, her brother, Sven Gustaffson, inspected the estate thoroughly on several tours. Before the depression the estate was worth about $150,000.

FLYER AND WOMAN KILLED

Burned to Death When Plane Crashes at Stroudwater, Me.

PORTLAND, Me., Aug. 20.—Lieut. George McEllan, 27 years old, former army pilot, and Mrs. Grace West, 31, Portland School teacher, were burned to death today after their plane crashed on a down-wind take-off and burst into flames. The accident occurred on th Stroudwater flying field, several miles from the Scarborough airport where McEllan was employed as an extra pilot by the Maine Air Transport Co.

Airport officers said McLellan, whose home is in Providence, R. I., left shortly after noon for Sanford. He landed at the Stroudwater field and picked up Mrs. West. Officials said she was not a paying passenger.

Just Ailing Along

it's ASTHENIA

Something was wrong with him.. but he couldn't define it. He was low mentally and physically. His mind didn't click. He lacked his old-time pep. He was irritable and sullen. It would have been better to be downright sick than to go on like this. . just ailing along. . wondering and worrying.

Yet the cause of his condition was not at all mysterious. His physician would have recognized the symptoms instantly. Without knowing it, he had fallen victim to that modern malady which doctors call ASTHENIA*.

Without knowing it—that's the disarming thing about this insidious ailment. It drags you down . . it slows your mind . . it robs you of your joys and pleasures. Yet all the while you hardly realize you are slipping.

Millions are in just that plight today. They toss and turn at night . . wake up with a headache . . drag through the day feeling dull, depressed and in constant fear that something serious is wrong with them.

Are you a victim of this health-destroying blight? Don't think because you're "regular" that you're immune. Physicians will tell you that daily elimination not only must be "regular" . . it must be complete. Otherwise poisons gradually accumulate . . bred by millions of micro-organisms in the digestive tract. Little by little these poisons seep into the blood stream. Then comes that half-alive feeling . . the danger signal of ASTHENIA.

If you feel tired, listless, irritable . . if your work weighs you down like an unbearable burden, decide today to rid yourself of Asthenia and stay rid of it! You can do so easily and in 10 days' time.

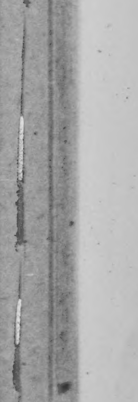
Buy a bottle of Pluto Water and take it as directed—one-fifth glass in four-fifths glass of hot water—every morning for 10 mornings. Don't miss a day—for 10 days! You'll be amazed how this gentle treatment will change your entire viewpoint . . make you see a new world in ten days!

After that—take Pluto Water every Sunday morning regularly, and you'll find that you do everything with new vim and pleasure.

Then you'll understand why for nearly 90 years, from all over the world, people have traveled to French Lick Springs for this famous 10-day Pluto treatment . . why physicians everywhere recommend Pluto Water as a mild, agreeable and effective laxative—non-irritating and non-habit-forming. Economical too . . for by actual test Pluto Water is the least expensive laxative that you can take.

GENTLE EFFECTIVE AGREEABLE
When taken as directed . . one-fifth glass Pluto to four-fifths glass hot water . . Pluto Water is virtually tasteless. It is non-irritating and non-habit-forming.

PLUTO WATER ends *ASTHENIA—the want or loss of strength . . debility . . diminution of the vital forces—often due to intestinal micro-organisms. Pluto Water—the biggest selling Laxative Mineral Water in the world—is bottled and sealed at French Lick Springs Hotel, French Lick, Indiana — America's Greatest Health Resort. In 2 sizes—20c and 45c.



Take PLUTO WATER and see a NEW WORLD in 10 Days

BIG NAVY CAMERAS TO RECORD ECLIPSE

Set Up Near Limington, Me., to Photograph Phenomenon Aug. 31.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—A battery of giant cameras operated by the Navy will photograph the sun's eclipse Aug. 31. The largest camera is 65 feet long, with its lens mounted on a specially built tower. Two others are 15 feet and 33 inches in focal length (distance from lens to plate) and the smallest is a movie camera 17 inches long with a four-inch lens.

The larger cameras will photograph different parts of the corona—the bright halo of light visible around the sun's edge when it is covered by the moon during an eclipse. Great flame-like prominences rise from the sun's surface and long streamers of light extend far out into space.

The corona is thought to consist of super-heated gases, and the pictures will help determine what the gases are, and furnish a clew to the materials of which the sun itself is composed. The corona changes in shape during the 11-year cycle of increasing and decreasing sunspots, and the photographs may help show the reason for this.

In order not to miss any of the 100 seconds of the total eclipse, the Navy's cameras will follow the sun across the sky by means of clockwork mechanism. In the 65-foot camera only the plate will move, on a carriage inside the camera itself. A mirror moved by clockwork will keep the sun's image steadily focused into the 15-foot camera. The shorter cameras will move as units by clockwork.

Timing of four contacts of the sun and moon during the eclipse will be another task of the Navy's expedition. The contacts are: When the edges of the sun and moon first touch; when the sun disappears behind the moon; when it reappears again; when the moon's retreating edge last touches the sun. The contacts, timed to the nearest second, are used to check the motion of the moon, knowledge important to astronomers.

The navy's eclipse station is on a 700-foot elevation ebtween Limerick and Limington, Me. The expedition includes Capt. C. H. J. Keppler, three astronomers of the Naval Observatory, C. B. Watts, G. M. Ransford and G. C. Whitaker, and 15 enlisted men of the navy. The navy has sent expeditions to observe nine eclipses of the sun since 1900, four in the United States and five in foreign countries.

RICHMOND HEIGHTS TO HOLD PRIMARY ELECTION AUG. 30

It Will Be First Under Commission Form of Government; Final Vote Sept. 13.

A primary election to nominate officials who will serve under the commission form of government adopted last month by Richmond Heights, will be held Aug. 30 and will be followed by the final election, Sept. 13.

Mayor John J. Flanagan, who was elected for a two-year term last April, and who led the campaign for the change to the commission form of government, which abbreviated his term, is a candidate for nomination to that office. He and Brainerd W La Tourette are assured of nomination, as there are no other candidates.

Four Councilmen are to be nominated, and two will be elected. Five of the present Aldermen are seeking nomination as Councilmen. They are Robert E. Ries, Otto P. Arneson, August Spahn, Mitchell G. Hunt and Robert F. Lyons. Other candidates: Frederick Lutz, Frederick W. Keene, Harry H. Talbot, Peter A. Rafferty, C. M. Corbett. Glenn R. McCarthy. Albert M. Reilly, Frederick H. Butenhoff, F. E. Morrow and John Smith, Negro.

Negro Woman Slain at Venice.

Katy Morgan, a Negro, was shot five times and instantly killed yesterday afternoon by Vance Hughes, also a Negro, with whom she resided at Venice, Ill. Hughes is held by Venice police.

SCIENTISTS TO CREATE FLOODS IN MINIATURE

New U. S. Hydraulic Laboratory to Study Problems of Water Flow.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—Miniature floods will tear small-scale river banks in advance tests on small models of great water projects as part of the work of the new national hydraulic laboratory soon to be put into operation here.

Testing of how water behaves, in every form from tides eating away shore lines and floods devastating river valleys to more peaceful flows through pipes and pumps will be the task of the laboratory, which is a part of the U. S. Bureau of Standards.

The maximum flow of water that can be produced in the laboratory is 300 cubic feet a second, about three times the flow needed to supply the city of Washington. It will have better facilities for experiments with water than any other such laboratory in the world. Its main flume alone will handle a flow of 112,000 to 135,000 gallons a minute.

Much money could be saved annually if engineers knew more about the behavior of water, say laboratory officials. Pipe lines and flood spillways of dams often are made larger than necessary because engineers are uncertain how much margin of safety is needed. Unnecessary margin represents needless expense, silt accumulations in river and canal channels, and erosion of river banks might be reduced or prevented with better knowledge of how currents act.

In seeking to learn how the water behaves in a certain section of a river or what will happen in a valley if a dam is built there, the laboratory's experimenters can build actual scale models of the river channel or valley, and run water through them at will. There is space on the two great open floors for models, flumes and sections of test pipe up to 240 feet in length.

The first problem to be attacked by the laboratory will be how to reduce the loss of water pressure at the bends in large pipes. Water will be sent through great sections of pipe up to eight feet in diameter, such as are used in Western irrigation lines, to learn just how water flows in such pipes and how losses of pressure can be cut down. If a way can be found to use smaller pipe to carry the same volume of water the cost of such pipe lines will be reduced.

A start already has been made on another problem—the right size for plumbing pipes in tall buildings. It is thought that both vertical and horizontal drain pipes in such buildings often are larger and therefore more costly than necessary, because engineers are not sure how much water the pipes will carry.

Other studies planned for the laboratory include flow of water over dams and under water gates, around bends in open channels, the laws governing the carrying of silt, erosion below dams and how eddies affect the flow of water at entrances and exits of water tunnels and pipes.

Kiel Speaks at Warrenton.

By the Associated Press.

WARRENTON, Mo., Aug. 20.—Former Mayor Henry W. Kiel of St. Louis, Republican nominee for United States Senator, and Congressman Ralph Lozier, spoke at the annual farmers' picnic here this afternoon. Kiel and Charles S. Daues, Republican nominee for Judge of the St. Louis Court of Appeals, were guests at a luncheon given by Republican party leaders.

MOLLISON WILL FLY TO NEW YORK TODAY

Fog Prevents His Projected Side Trip to Montreal for Air Show.

By the Associated Press.

ST. JOHN, N. B., Aug. 20.—Fog, which caused Capt. J. A. Mollison considerable trouble yesterday in the concluding hours of his westward solo flight across the Atlantic, disrupted his program again today.

Refreshed by a good night's sleep, the young airman intended to fly his tiny Moth ship to St. John from Pennfield Ridge, 40 miles from here, where he landed yesterday, and then to go on to Montreal to attend the aviation meet there. But when he got down to Pennfield Ridge he found the atmosphere much too thick for flying and he came back here by motor to attend a luncheon given by the city of St. John and attended by Mayor J. M. Brittain, Premier C. D. Richards, members of the Provincial and Dominion parliaments and prominent residents of the city.

After the luncheon he announced that he expected to take off tomorrow morning for New York, arriving there in the afternoon or early evening. The take-off is set for 10 a. m., Eastern standard time, and he reckons that he can cover the 700 miles with ease in about 6 hours.

Will Arrive About 5 P. M.

"I'll be in New York by 5 o'clock tomorrow afternoon," the airman said.

He sent a cablegram to his wife, Amy Johnson, who is in London, telling her not to start to New York by steamer because he expected to be flying back over the Atlantic before she would have time to get across.

Mollison was considerably disappointed about being unable to bring his plane to St. John today, and he still shows the effects of his more than 30 hours in the air—an experience that left him so worn out that it was impossible for him to continue on to New York and carry out his announced plan of making a round-trip flight over the ocean within two and a half days.

The flight home will be his last essay at long distance flying, although he has no intention of giving up his aviation career.

"I'm a Married Man Now."

"I'm a married man now, and I don't think I'll do any more long distance flying," he said. He has been married three weeks.

"The field has been pretty well covered," he explained. "You can't be the first to fly anywhere nowadays."

Regular trans-Atlantic air service will be in operation within two years, Mollison said at the luncheon given him on celebration of his flight. Harbor Grace, N. F., will be the first stopping place for planes coming in from the ocean, the flyer predicted. He told his hearers that on his return flight within a few days he expects to pass over St. John—but on that occasion he will not stop. The city gave him an engraved cigarette case.

EIGHT INSURGENTS KILLED IN NICARAGUAN CLASHES

National Guard Commander Reports No Casualties to His Men in Nine Skirmishes.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—Nine clashes between Nicaraguan National Guard and insurgent groups in which eight of the latter were killed and several wounded were reported to the Navy Department today by Lieutenant-Colonel Calvin B. Matthews, United States Marine Corps, commander of the guard. No guardia casualties occurred, although one civilian guide was wounded Aug. 18.

Capt. L. B. Puller, a marine from West Point, Va., and a guardia patrol in the Jinotega Department had six brushes with insurgents between Aug. 12 and 19. Seven insurgents were killed in these skirmishes.

Capt. A. O. Inman, Oakland, Cal., marine, led another patrol from Navarro which met about 40 insurgents near Matagalpa Aug. 18 and had a second fight later in the day while crossing the Tuma River. Casualties were not known.

The eighth insurgent was killed in a contact southeast of the town of Santo Domingo.

CIVIL LIBERTIES LUNCHEON

Chicago U. Professor to Talk on Illinois Coal Strike.

The members of the St. Louis Civil Liberties Committee and guests will be addressed Tuesday at a luncheon at the Town Club by Prof. A. O. Carlson of the Political Science Department of the University of Chicago, who will talk about conditions in the strike area of the Illinois coal fields.

Prof. Carlson was held in jail at Benton last week with his wife and a number of students without charges against him and says he was slugged by a deputy while in the Sheriff's office. A program for protecting civil liberties in the strike area will be discussed. The meeting will be open to the public.

COMMUNIST STATE CONVENTION

To Be Held Today and Tomorrow at 11 North Jefferson.

AMERICAN OFFER TO EINSTEIN

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Aug. 20.—Prof. Albert Einstein, famous physicist, has been invited to join the staff of the American Institute for advanced study as a life member, it was learned today.

Prof. Einstein has reached no decision as to acceptance. Should he take the post it would necessitate spending five months a year with the institute, and it is expected he would settle in Princeton, N. J., with his assistant, Dr. Walter Mayer. When asked the salary he would expect to receive, he was said to have named an amount so small the institute replied it could not be bound by his wishes and insisted on naming a larger stipend.

STUDY OF HEREDITY OF THREE PRESIDENTS

Washington, Lincoln and T. R. Are Objects of First Such Survey.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—The Third International Congress of Eugenics meets here Monday and Tuesday. The Congress, with about 100 foreign scientists expected to attend, deals only with human beings, particularly marriage, birth rates and improvements of the breeds of men. This is its first meeting since 1921.

A study of the heredity of American Presidents, the first ever made, will be reported. It is part of a scientific exhibition under preparation for more than a year, directed by Dr. Harry H. Laughlin of the Carnegie Institution of Washington. Dr. Charles B. Davenport of the same institution is president of the congress.

The Presidents analyzed are Washington, Lincoln and Roosevelt. The chief fact about each ancestral tree is the outstanding men in previous generations, taken as proof of "inborn qualities whence leaders of national life may be expected."

The Washington Lineage.

In Washington's lineage the chart shows 26 notable men in 179 years, beginning with the Rev. Lawrence Washington of Oxford, England, born in 1602, down to George Washington Parke, soldier, merchant and playwright, born in 1781. Afterward came Robert E. Lee, Confederate leader. Washingtons, Balls and Lees comprise the Washington ancestry and the chart goes back to Robert de Wessyngton in 1324.

Because of the tradition of Lincoln's origin from the "common people," the number of outstanding men in his ancestry is a novel point of view. The chart shows 12 of these in 186 years. It shows several blackssmiths, and Dr. Laughlin says in olden times a blacksmith was quite likely to be one of the leaders of his community.

The Lincoln tree does not discredit the common people tradition but upholds the eugenic dictum that the leadership qualities "come basically from sound and superior human stocks—regardless of present fortunes." Daniel Boone's family is found in Lincoln's tree.

The Roosevelt tree shows 44 notables in 309 years. It is an example of the results of mixing North European racial stocks in the new world.

The Edison Tree.

Edison's family eugenic tree begins in 1730 and shows six notables in 160 years, two of them inventors, one an "electrical scientist", several noted for longevity.

"Thomas A. Edison," says the chart, "was a rare combination of superior natural traits which in different potencies and different combinations are found scattered among his near kin.

"The frequency of the most superior of Thomas Edison's characteristic capacities among his near kin measures the probability of 'another Edison' appearing in this family stock."

This probability is infrequently compared with another, Charles Darwin, whose family tree appears opposite Edison's. This family—a composite of Darwins, Galtons and Wedgewoods—produced 44 notable men in 316 years, one every seven years. In the Edison chart the notables appear at the rate of one each 26 years.

Transmission of wanderlust and "pattern" baldness, that is, the top of the head, through the female of the species is an example of "sex-linked" heredity. The hereditary mechanisms of these traits—tiny living particles called genes—are transmitted in connection with the sex determiners of offspring. The chart shows that they work like hemophilia, the male bleeding "taint", which is transmitted only by females, who never have the trouble themselves.

French blood stands first in "inventiveness" in a table of American patents. Second comes Swedish blood, third Dutch, fourth Danish, and fifth, German. These inventors are "Americans," the foreign blood showing their main descent.

PENNSYLVANIA LEGION VOTES CENSURE OF HOOVER

State Convention Denounces Expulsion of Campers and Favors Payment of Bonus.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Aug. 20.—President Hoover was censured concerning the routing of bonus seekers from Washinugton recently in resolutions adopted today by the Pennsylvania Department of the American Legion.

The resolutions cited conditions in the bonus army. A minority report which accepted description of conditions but excepted criticism of the President was voted down 864 to 124 amid cheers.

The convention also went on record as favoring full payment of the bonus and as opposing cancellation or reduction of foreign debts.

After the convention, legionnaires, members of the auxiliary and junior organizations took part ni a six-hour parade.

Gen. Smedley D. Butler, who spoke during the morning, and Col. William R. Dunlap, grand marshal of the parade, city and state officials, occupied the reviewing stand.

Boat Missing With Four Aboard.

KITTERY, Me., Aug. 20.—Coast Guard ships today were asked to search for the ketch Caribou, aboard which Lieut. Ralph Dennett, U. S. N., retired, his wife and two sons sailed from Salem, Mass., Thursday for their home here. The Caribou has not been reported, although under favorable conditions the trip should not have required more than 10 hours.

ional tennis crown.
he slender girl, her black hair ked behind her ears and deter-nation written in her every vement, came back after drop-g the first set to defeat Miss lley by scores of 4—6, 7—5, 3, in a match that bristled with g rallies and brought continucheers from the gallery.
Miss Jacobs, still the reigning orite to succeed Mrs. Helen lls Moody as queen of Ameri-tennis, made the day a total hout for England by subduing
Elsie Goldsack Pittman, 6—2,
3. What this match lacked in rkle was provided in the one t followed.
Miss Babcock's successful and expected journey through the ong lower bracket assured an American final for the first e in three years. While few re willing to predict victory for Los Angeles girl tomorrow, she ertain to give Helen of Berkeley un for her money. She looked a champion in the making to-
, this 20-year-old girl who is ying in only her second national nt. Two years ago, she was minated in the first round by
s. L. A. Harper, the same star turned back in straight sets terday.
Paired with Sarah Palfrey, Miss

MISS JACOBS TO OPPOSE LOS ANGELES GIRL IN FINAL

OREST HILLS, N. Y., Aug. 20.—lthough ranked no higher than ghth on the Pacific Coast, Caro- n Babcock of Los Angeles was od enough today to out-fight an Ridley of England in a torrid ree-setter and gain the right to ce Helen Jacobs for the women's tional tennis crown.

The slender girl, her black hair cked behind her ears and deter- ination written in her every ovement, came back after drop- ng the first set to defeat Miss idley by scores of 4—6, 7—5, —3, in a match that bristled with ng rallies and brought continu- s cheers from the gallery.

Miss Jacobs, still the reigning vorite to succeed Mrs. Helen ills Moody as queen of Ameri- n tennis, made the day a total hout for England by subduing s Elsie Goldsack Pittman, 6—2, —3. What this match lacked in arkle was provided in the one at followed.

Miss Babcock's successful and nexpected journey through the rong lower bracket assured an l-American final for the first me in three years. While few ere willing to predict victory for e Los Angeles girl tomorrow, she ertain to give Helen of Berkeley run for her money. She looked ke a champion in the making to- y, this 20-year-old girl who is aying in only her second national ent. Two years ago, she was iminated in the first round by rs. L. A. Harper, the same star e turned back in straight sets esterday.

Paired with Sarah Palfrey, Miss acobs reached the finals of dou- les by defeating Virginia Hilleary d Mrs. Dorothy Andrus Burke, 4, 6—3.

In the other semifinal, Alice arble of San Francisco and Mrs. arjorie Morrill Painter of Ded- am, Mass., defeated Mrs. John an Ryn of Philadelphia and Jose- hine Cruickshank of Santa Ana, 4, 10—8.

AMMANN AND BARNES WIN DOUBLES TITLE IN NIVERSITY CITY TENNIS

Karl Kammann and Charles arnes clinched the University City pen doubles tennis championship esterday afternoon, defeating Sid- ey Smith and Roland Nord in the eciding set, 8 to 6.

The match was started three eeks ago, and was interrupted on ccount of darkness with each team aving won two sets. Kammann Barnes won the first, 15—13, st the second and third 7—9, —6, and won the fourth, 8—6. n the deciding set Smith and Nord ad the match point but couldn't ut across a victory.

Kammann and Barnes won 41 ames in the match and Smith and ord, 40 games.

ines Defeats Allison in Newport Tennis Final

By the Associated Press.

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 20.—A deadly baseline barrage today ave Ellsworth Vines, National tennis champion, his second leg on he historic Newport Casino Trophy. He caused his name to be en- raved twice on that bowl, under that of Big Bill Tilden, by over- helming his Davis Cup teammate, Wilmer Allison of Austin, Tex., n straight sets, 6—4, 6—3, 6—3.

Then he added to the Texan's discomfort by joining with his fel- low Californian, Keith Gledhill, and rouncing Allison and Van Ryn or the double trophies.

Allison and Van Ryn, who hold he national and Davis Cup cham- pionships, as well as almost every ther prized doubles titles in the ennis world, were out-played by he widest margins as they bowed four sets, 6—8, 13—11, 8—6, —2.

Vines used this tourney last year as a stepping stone to the national championship. He returned from the unsuccessful Davis Cup quest last week and up to today his Newport progress was decidedly unimpressive.

He was his old self against Allison, however, and his performance should make him the odds-on-favorite for the coming national championship, despite the presence of Henri Cochet, who will head a threatening foreign invasion.

War Hero was kept forwardly and under restraint, came to the outside of the leaders in the stretch run and drew away in final furlong. Monday showed a good effort all the way, made a determined bid entering the stretch and held on well. Sunmelus forced the early pace, disposed of Osculator at far turn but faltered in stretch run. Osculator showed speed the early part. Gusto, a trailer to far turn moved up under urging when called upon but hung at finish. Stepenfetchit had no mishaps. Pardee stopped after going one mile.

By the Associated Press.

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., Aug. 20.—Gusto, leading money winning three-year-old today was made a 6 to 5 favorite for the sixty-third running of America's oldest thoroughbred race, The Travers, but could do no better than fifth in a field of seven as War Hero won the $23,150 by four lengths.

Thus the Travers, the stake in which Jim Dandy defeated Gallant Fox and Whichone, lived up to its reputation as the turf's "biggest upset race."

War Hero, sporting the silks of Glen Riddle Farms, ran a perfect race under the guidance of Johnny Gilbert. He was never far off the pace and once Gilbert gave he word, he bounded to the front, easily conquering Mrs. I. D. Sloane's Monday, a 30 to 1 shot. W. S. Kilmer's Sunmelus was another length to the rear in third place, while W. R. Coe's Osculator beat Gusto by a half length. Back of the Morton L. Schwartz colt trailed Stepenfetchit and Pardee.

Gusto Never a Factor.

Gusto, ridden by Silvio Coucci and giving from three to 11 pounds to his rivals, never was a serious factor. He was away from the barrier last, moved up to sixth position at the three-quarter mark but then, unlike his other races, lacked the dash to carry him any closer to the leaders.

Despite Gusto's past performances, War Hero was well backed by the crowd of 20,000, paying 13 to 5. He ran the distance in 2:05 4-5.

Easy Day Wins Spinaway.

The forty-first running of the Spinaway Stakes for two-year-old fillies resulted in an even bigger surprise when Easy Day from Mrs. Payne Whitney's Greentree Stable came from "nowhere" to defeat a classy field. Coupled with Welcome Gift, the Greentree miss paid 40 to 1.

Tenth in the field of 12 away from the barrier and last at the half mile post, Easy Day closed with a tremendous burst of speed to nip J. E. Widener's Crazy Jane in the final stride. E. R. Bradley's Barn Swallow trailed by a length and a half. The time was 1:13 2-5 for the six furlongs, victory in which was worth $8425.

B. B. Jones' Western flash, Hilena, was made the choice at 7 to 5 when Happy Gal and Disdainful were scratched, but the winner of the Lassie Stakes at Arlington Park finished seventh after leading the field to the stretch.

Wray's Column

Mr. McCarthy Grows Nervous.

ROLLING out in front of the American League pennant race with a big advantage over the Athletics and only 35 more games to play, Joe McCarthy and his Yankees appear to be almost "in".

Joe McCarthy

But, to hear McCarthy nervously combatting the scribes' belief that his team is a certain victor, you'd think that Ruth, Gehrig & Co. had just an outside chance.

"You never can tell what will come up in a pennant race," McCarthy cautioned, in talking to the Post-Dispatch's representative during the last visit of the Yanks here. "It only takes a couple of bad breaks to ruin you. Imagine what would happen if Ruffing and Ruth were hurt?"

Well, in Joe's place we might admit the soft impeachment of chilled pedal extremities, should such a disaster occur. However, taking Dame Fortune by and large, it is extremely probable that the Yankees will coast along to a comfortable victory.

No Need to Worry.

BEFORE yesterday's games the Yanks enjoyed a lead of eight and one-half games over the Athletics, seemingly the only team with a chance to overtake the McCarthymen. How slim that chance is figures show.

If the Yankees, now bowling along at the rate of close to .700, should play at the rate of only .500 for the remainder of the campaign, that is win half of their remaining games, the Athletics, in order to tie them, would have to win 27 of the remaining 33 games. That would mean the Athletics must win .818 per cent of their contests—and that's a sizable order even for Elephants to fill.

TEMPE, ARIZ., GETS NATIONAL A. A. U. SWIM MEET FOR WOMEN

By the Associated Press.

TEMPE, Ariz., Aug. 20.—The women's National A. A. U. swimming championships for 1932 have been granted to Tempe, Dr. R. J. Stroud, chairman of the Tempe committee, announced today. The dates are Sept. 1 to 3.

Events will include the 100-yard and 880-yard free style, 220-yard breast stroke, 220-yard back stroke, 300-yard medley and 10-foot springboard diving.

The Tempe committee said it has arranged to pay expenses of the champions and other contestants, all of whom participated in the Olympic games, and all of whom except Katherine Rawls, 14-year-old diving girl, still are in Los Angeles.

Miss Rawls, who finished second to Georgia Coleman in the 10-foot springboard diving competition, has returned to her home in Florida.

Tempe was awarded the national meet by Herbert Holm of Boston, chairman, and other members of the National A. A. U. committee over bids of Seattle and Cincinnati.

Pitcher Phelps Released.

CINCINNATI, Aug. 20. — The Brooklyn Dodgers today released Pitcher Ray Phelps on option to the Minneapolis Club of the American Association to make room for Fay Thomas, former Oakland hurler who reported to Manager Carey this morning.

DREWES IN PARK TENNIS FINAL; MRS. DUEKER IS DEFEATED

By Davison Obear.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Aug. 20.—Mrs. Virginia Dueker of St. Louis lost in the final for the National Public Parks Women's singles tennis championship here this afternoon, going down before Miss Helen Germaine of New York City, 7—5, 6—4.

Although Mrs. Dueker lost, St. Louis still had an opportunity to win a national singles title, for Ted Drewes, No. 1 public parks player of St. Louis, eliminated George O'Connell of Chicago, 6—3, 8—6, 6—4, in a men's semifinal match, and will play Arnold Simons, Louisville, this afternoon for the title. Simons defeated Dooley Mitchell of Washington, 4—6, 4—6, 6—3, 6—1, 6—1, in their semifinal encounter.

In the women's final, the long, hard drives of Miss Germaine proved too much for Mrs. Dueker. The St. Louis woman gave Miss Germaine strong opposition and play was hard fought most of the way, but the New York girl was able to put on the pressure at the opportune moments in order to win the national title.

St. Louisans Win Doubles.

Mrs. Dueker and Mrs. Ann Lindemann, St. Louis champions, won the women's doubles championship by defeating Irene David and Mrs. Andre Russell, Cleveland team, in a great battle. The score was 3—6, 4—6, 6—4.

The Cleveland team led 6 to 5 in the opening set but the St. Louisans came back to win the set. In the third set the champions led 5 to 0, when the Cleveland pair put on a rally which gave them four straight games. In the final game both teams had the advantage point several times but a net volley by Mrs. Lindemann finally gave the St. Louis team the game, set and match.

Finnish Olympic Team Wins Seven Firsts in Meet

By the Associated Press.

WORCESTER, Mass., Aug. 20.—Trackmen who wore the colors of Finnland in the Olympic games, won seven first places in the open track and field meet here this afternoon. No records were broken.

In only four events, the 120-yard hurdles and two-mile run, in which the Finnish athletes did not compete, and the 100-yard dash and discus throw did the Olympic performers fail to win first place. Phil Couhig of the Boston A. A. won the discus throw with a heave of 130 feet 4 inches, with Kalle Jarvinen of Finland a scant inch behind. The dash was won by Alfred Hicks of the Curley A. A. of Boston in 10 1-5 seconds, with Norman Woolford of the Karhu A. C. of Quincy second and Bengt Sjostedt of Finland third.

Volmari Iso Hollo, winner of the steeplechase in the Olympic games, won the mile run in 4 minutes 26 2-5 seconds from a mediocre field; Bjorn Strandwall had little difficulty in capturing the 440-yard dash in 53 1-5 seconds; Ilmari Rainikka took the high jump at 5 feet 10 inches; Kalle Jarvinen placed first in the shotput with a throw of 51 feet ¾ inch, and Paavo Yrjola was second, a few inches behind; Eino Penttila was almost 50 feet better than his nearest rival in romping off with the javelin throw with a toss of 226 feet 8 inches; Ville Porhola easily outdistanced the hammer throwers at 162 feet 10½ inches and Lauri Virtanen won the six-mile run in 31 minutes 26 4-5 seconds for the Finnish victories.

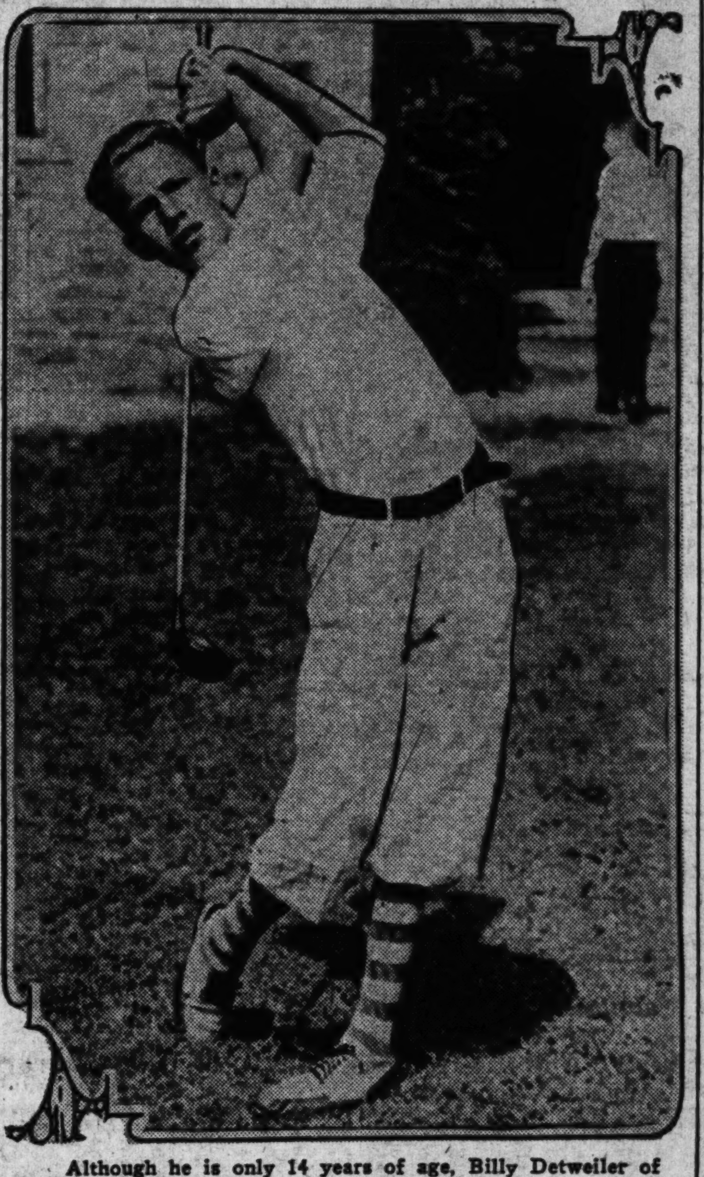
Thomas McDonough of the B. A. A. won the two-mile run in 9 minutes 58 2-5 seconds from Ed Kenney of West Medway and W. R. Whitehouse, also of the B. A. A., won the 120-yard hurdles.

Stamm Wins Junior Title.

Bob Stamm won the University City junior tournament, which was concluded yesterday, with a score of 162 for the 36 holes of play over the University City Municipal course. Charles Gilles won the prize for low net with 145.

Stamm had two 81's while other leaders among the 17 who finished out of the 30 starters were—Jonas Weiss, 165; Billy Lamb, 171; Craig McQuaid 177; Bill Balsom 179. Other net scores were: Lester Roth 148; John Albach 148; Ed Balsom 157 and Don McNamara 153.

In Bobby Jones' Footsteps



Although he is only 14 years of age, Billy Detweiler of Washington, D. C., shown above, has qualified for the national amateur golf championship, which will be held at Baltimore, Sept. 12. He qualified with 152, having a 72 for one of his rounds. Bobby Jones played in his first national title tourney at the age of 14.

Honey Dews Take Second Round Muny Game; 5000 See Schenberg Nine Win

The third round in the Municipal Baseball Association eliminations will be played this afternoon, with the following teams continuing action after victories in the second round, yesterday afternoon.

Illmo (Walther League) vs. Weicks (Concordia League) at Sherman Park, Diamond No. 1.

Schenbergs (South Side League) vs. McQuay-Norris (Y. M. C. A. Industrial No. 1) at Concordia Park, Diamond No. 1.

Coll (Commercial) vs. Honey Dews (Independent) at Carondelet, Diamond No. 1.

Sentinel (De Molay) vs. R. J. & R. (Y. M. C. A. Industrial No. 2) at Fairgrounds Park, Diamond No. 1.

All games will start at 2:30 o'clock.

Honey Dews Win Again.

The Honey Dews, last year's champions, encountered virtually no opposition in their second round game with the Americans, champions of the Community House League, the Honey Dews winning 15 to 0 at Forest Park, Diamond No. 12. The Honey Dews were overwhelming favorites and as a result only about 800 fans attended.

A crowd estimated at 5000 spectators turned out at Fairgrounds Park, Diamond No. 1, to watch the Schenbergs play the strong Brugger's nine of the Empire League. After being behind at various stages of the battle the Schenbergs scored twice in the eighth with what proved to be the tying and winning runs, the Schenbergs winning 10 to 9.

Most Games Hard Fought.

Most of the other games were well-played and hard fought throughout. The Sentinels blanked the St. Agatha nine of the Wilson League, 4 to 0, at O'Fallon Park before about 4000 fans, and are expected to go to the final round.

The Weicks, behind the sparkling pitching of George Reiss, won from the Spick and Span nine of the City League, 6 to 3, with about 3000 fans attending, and Altmansberger, pitching for the Coils, held the Wolverines of the South Side Y. M. C. A. League to four hits as the

Easterner Wins Open Trapshoot

By the Associated Press.

VANDALIA, O., Aug. 20.—Fred Tomlin of Glassboro, N. J., today won the second annual open championship of the Grand American Trapshooting Tournament by posting a perfect score on 200 targets at a 16-yard rise.

Only one target back of the New Jersey professional came a quartet of Western shooters, tied for second place. They were Frank Troeh, Portland, Ore.; Fred Etchen, Wichita, Kan.; Oscar Stegall, Richmond, Ind., and Rush Razee of Denver, Colo. In the shoot-off for the runner-up position, Troeh was the winner, breaking 74 out of 75. Razee took third place, Stegall fourth, and Etchen fifth.

Tomlin, with his record today, became the high average professional in the United States to date, shooting at 2100 targets this year with only 23 misses.

PITCHER WINS OWN GAME AFTER BOSTON TIES SCORE IN NINTH ON TWO ERRORS

By J. Roy Stockton.

The Cardinals found a left-hander they could hit yesterday afternoon, but despite a six-run rally in the second inning that sent Dr. Hubert Pruett to the showers, they had to play 10 innings before they could nose out the Boston Braves, 8 to 7, in the first game of a series of five.

Tex Carleton, scoring his seventh victory of the season for the world champions, traveled the entire distance and after errors by his companions had forced the contest into extra innings, the young righthander from Comanche, Tex., singled to right to send the winning run over the plate.

Four Boston Runs Unearned.

Four misplays were charged to the Cardinals and three of them figured in the Boston scoring to prevent Carleton from breezing to an easy triumph in the usual nine innings, as only three of the seven Boston runs were untainted.

A wild throw by Jim Bottomley gave the Braves one of the two runs they scored in the second inning. Berger started with a double to right and, after Holland had fanned and Moore had grounded out, advancing Berger to third. Knothe hit a slow bounder down the third base line. Carleton thought the ball would roll foul, but it stayed in fair territory for a scratch single and Berger scored. Carleton then picked Knothe off first, but Bottomley made a wild throw to Gelbert and Knothe reached second, scoring when Hargrave doubled to right.

Six-Run Rally Routs Pruett.

The Cardinals then took the lead in their half. With one out, Orsatti doubled to right and Watkins was hit by a pitched ball. Martin singled to center, scoring Orsatti and sending Watkins to third and Wilson tripled to right-center, scoring Watkins and Martin. Carleton walked and Flowers singled too hot for Urbanski, scoring Wilson. When Gelbert doubled to left, scoring Flowers, Seibold relieved "Shucks" Pruett and stopped the rally.

Flowers gave the Braves a run in the third inning. With one out he fielded Urbanski's grounder and threw wild to first, Urbanski reaching second. Jordan's infield hit to Frisch advanced Urbanski to third and he scored while Berger was forcing Jordan at second.

Watkins Steals a Run.

Watkins stole a run for the Redbirds in the home half of the third. With one out he singled to center and took third on Martin's single to center. George saw that Maranville was taking the throw from Berger leisurely and when the Rabbit didn't turn immediately to see what he had done at third, Watkins raced for the plate and slid home safely ahead of Maranville's belated toss. George hit Hargrave's left ankle as he slid and the catcher had to be carried from the field.

After that run the Cardinals were unable to solve Seibold's slants and meantime the Braves gradually cut down the lead. Ford's single, an infield out and Jordan's single gave them a run in the fifth and in the sixth Knothe doubled and scored on Spohrer's single.

They still needed two more runs for a tie, but an error by Watkins gave them their chance in the ninth.

Spohrer opened the attack with a single to center and Leach batted for Seibold and singled to right. Watkins missed the bounding ball and Spohrer scored and Leach reached second. Ford's sacrifice moved Clark, running for Leach, to third and Urbanski's long fly to Martin sent Clark home with the tying run.

Cantwell went to the hill for the Braves in the ninth and disposed of the Cardinals in order, but in the tenth Orsatti, first up, drew a pass. Ernie was forced at second on Watkins' bunt, but George stole second and Martin drew a walk. Cantwell threw out Wilson, but Carleton then sent a bounding single to right scoring Watkins and the game was over.

As the Cubs beat the Phillies, the Cardinals remain seven games behind the leaders.

Redbird Notes.

BILL HALLAHAN, who hasn't pitched since he injured his arm in Cincinnati July 23, will work in one game of today's doubleheader, according to Manager Street. However, Bill has been advertised to hurl several times and each time he has asked for more rest. Dizzy Dean will be the starter in the other contest. Ed Brandt probably will throw his crooked-arm curves for the Braves in one of the games.

The opener with the Braves attracted 2200 cash customers. Three thousand five hundred and twenty girls passed through the free gate, with a bottle of soda pop with Jim Bottomley's compliments as an added attraction.

AN X-ray picture at St. John's Hospital last night revealed that the left ankle of Catcher Hargrave, of the Boston Braves, had been broken when George Watkins slid into the receiver when stealing home in the third inning of yesterday's game.

Hargrave had to be carried off the field, and it was first thought that his ankle had only been bruised. He is under the care of Dr. Robert Hyland, the Cardinal club's surgeon, who placed the ankle in a cast. Hargrave will remain here a few days before leaving for his home. He will be unable to play any more this season.

TWO BROWNIES GAIN PLACES ON RUTH'S 1932 ROOKIE TEAM

SCHAREIN NAMED FOR THIRD BASE; CAMPBELL GIVEN OUTFIELD BERTH

By Babe Ruth.

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—It is almost time to pick that annual All-America baseball team and I guess I already have the selection fever. At any rate I have just been figuring out a team of American League players who have won their places as regulars this season. It includes players who were not even in the league a year ago, and some who were classed as bench warmers in 1931. I think you will agree with me that it is quite an interesting group, and a team which compares, at least from a fielding standpoint, with any that might be selected, regardless of time spent in the majors.

I will agree with you that this "freshman" team of first year regulars does not hit up to major league demands. But that is only natural. It takes time for a ball player to become a real good hitter.

Anyway, here is the team:

Position	Player	Club	Batting
First Base	Davis	Detroit	.265
Second Base	Hayes	Chicago	.254
Shortstop	McNair	Philadelphia	.282
Shortstop	Crosetti	New York	.258
Shortstop	Appling	Chicago	.276
Third Base	Selph	Chicago	.293
Third Base	Scharein	Browns	.304
Left Field	G. Walker	Detroit	.331
Center Field	Cramer	Philadelphia	.333
Center Field	Funk	Chicago	.225
Right Field	Campbell	Browns	.279
Pitcher	Weaver	Washington
Pitcher	Allen	New York
Pitcher	Freitas	Philadelphia

This team covers all positions except catching. I find that no catcher who was merely a substitute last year, or who was out of the league entirely, has won a place as a regular. Connolly of the Red Sox comes closest, perhaps, and he would fit well in on this team. He was Charley Berry's understudy at Boston last year, and this year he has done about half the receiving up to this time, hitting about .250 and dividing the catching with Benny Tate.

The averages which I have placed opposite these names may differ slightly from those which are issued this week, as batting averages go up or down every day on which a player is in the game. They show approximately the hitting strength of the player.

Some Were Second Stringers.

Of these players, Davis, Crosetti, Scharein, Weaver and Freitas are entirely new to the league this year and it is quite a tribute to their ability that they have done so well. Some of the others have been in the league in previous years, or gradually working their way to a place as regular players. Hayes of the White Sox, for instance, was with Washington in five different seasons, but never could crowd his way into the regular lineup, though an injury to Bluege gave him a lot of experience in 1929. But he always was rated as a second-string player.

This year Hayes got his opportunity as a regular and it has made a lot of difference in his allround play. In the games between the Yankees and the White Sox he has been a power at bat, as well as in the field. Hitting was his weakness while with Washington. He always has been one of the brilliant infielders of the big leagues. Appling was in plenty of Chicago games last year, I know, but Bill Cissell did most of the shortstopping.

McNair of the A's has come to the front rapidly this season after getting his chance to play shortstop regularly. Last year Boley filled the bill until midseason and Williams got the call later, playing the position through the world series. McNair was with the Athletics all the time, but only as a substitute. This year he has developed fast and is one of the real dangerous hitters on the team that is anything but weak with the stick.

Cramer is another who rated as a substitute last year, though the injury to Haas put him in plenty of games. This year he had won the center field berth and was hitting hard when a broken collar bone put him out of action. Gerald Walker, who was in the International League last season, developed this year into one of the best hitters in our league. Campbell of the Browns mixes plenty of long hits in his collection. It is an outfield with plenty of speed and hitting power as well.

The three pitchers have won about 30 games, while losing 10. All were in the minors last year, so they certainly have made the grade with something to spare. Naturally it is a young team, which would mean plenty of speed to match with the natural ability.

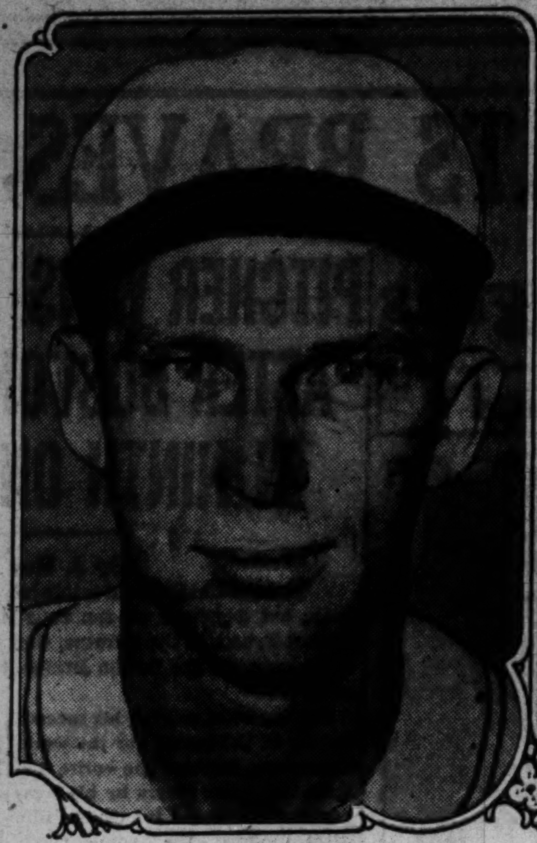
FIRST PLACE AT STAKE IN EAST SIDE GAMES

Ray Fansher's Dauers will meet the Weckmeyers in the feature of the four games scheduled this afternoon in the East St. Louis Municipal Baseball League. The Dauers were defeated for the first time in the second half league race last Sunday when the Polish National Alliance nine gained victory in a close contest.

The Polish nine is but one game behind the league leaders and a victory in the contest with the Verhovey nine, coupled with another defeat for the Dauers would put the two teams in a tie for first place.

In the other contests at Jones Park the Hunters will engage the Monsantos, while the Hudsons play the strong Pennsy nine.

First-Year Brownies Now Making a Bid for Fame



Art Scharein, at left, who came up from the Longview Texas team in mid-season, when Stoti and Grimes were injured, has made a splendid showing, batting .314 and fielding splendidly. It is doubtful if Storti can keep Scharein out of a regular berth. Bruce Campbell, at right, has batted around .285 for 106 games, but has driven in 63 runs, more than any other member of the team except Goslin.

Old-Timers Will Play in Game at Cincinnati Today

By the Associated Press.

CINCINNATI, Aug. 20.—The old-timers who galloped around the bases when "Lynch the umpire!" was a popular cry will turn back the pages of time and loosen aching joints in one more game tomorrow.

It will be at the second reunion of players of days gone by at Redland Field, where Cincinnati gave the world its first professional team in 1868.

More than 120 old-timers, including players, umpires, baseball writers and telegraph operators, have accepted invitations to attend. All the players will be given an opportunity to participate in a game after the Reds-Pirates tilt.

Post-Dispatch Contest Rules

THE contest is open to everyone, except employes of the Post-Dispatch and their families.

Entries will close Aug. 31 at midnight, and letters bearing postmark up to that time will be considered eligible.

The contestant naming the same players in the same positions and batting order as Babe Ruth wins the first prize; but in event no contestant duplicates Ruth's picks, the one nearest will be considered the winner.

In addition to naming the players to conform to those chosen by Ruth, contestants must arrange them in the same batting order as Babe Ruth. The Babe has agreed to place his choices in the order in which he thinks they should go to the plate.

An explanatory letter of not more than 250 words must accompany the selections and will be passed upon by the judges. This is as important as selecting the players. Babe himself will write an explanation of his choices. In event of a tie, excellence of the compositions would determine the winner. (Write on one side of the paper only and make your selections on a separate sheet.)

Ten players will make up the team, two pitchers and eight other players, one for each position. Only one team may be submitted by each contestant.

No corrections will be accepted once an entry has been received and filed.

Babe Ruth is not eligible. He will not pick himself.

Players must be selected on the basis of their play in the 1932 season only. Performances of previous years do not count.

A player may be placed in a position other than the one he regularly occupies, provided he has played such position in one or more championship games. Otherwise, regular positions must be rigidly adhered to. For instance, a regular left fielder may not be placed in right field unless he has played there at least once in 1932.

The prizes will be $200 cash for first, $150 for second, $100 for third, $50 for fourth. There will be five of $20 each and 10 of $10 each. The next 25 winners will receive baseball bats, autographed by Babe Ruth, and the last 25 winners will be awarded regulation American League baseballs, autographed by Ruth and mounted for use as blotters.

Mail selections to the Babe Ruth Contest Editor, care the Post-Dispatch.

CARDS ACQUIRE PUCCINELLI AND CHARLEY WILSON FROM ROCHESTER

George Puccinelli, right-handed hitting outfielder who was the International League's leading batter, according to the last official averages, and Charley Wilson, infielder and turn-around hitter, have been purchased by the Cardinals from their Rochester farm for delivery in the near future, President Sam Breadon of the world champions announced last night.

Puccinelli was with the Cardinals during the late weeks of the 1930 season and in 11 games, in which he was used chiefly as a pinch-hitter, he batted .563. He is a long-distance slugger and recent records show him with a batting average of .388.

Wilson, a product of the farm system, was sold to the Braves under an optional agreement in the spring of 1931, but the price ticket was high and he was returned to Rochester when Boston was faced with the alternative of paying approximately $20,000 if he was retained.

Wilson started as a second baseman, but later was used at short, and the Braves tried him at third. Rochester has been using him chiefly as a shortstop. In averages issued Friday he had a batting mark of .301.

Puccinelli is 25 years old and Wilson a year older. Puccinelli is 6 feet ½ inch tall and weighed 198 pounds.

Branch Rickey recently paid a compliment to Wilson when he said that if the Cardinals had purchased the infielder when Sparky Adams was injured, the Cardinals probably would have won the 1932 pennant.

HORSESHOE PITCHING STARS BEGIN ANNUAL ELIMINATION TOURNEY

St. Louis' best horseshoe pitching stars will display their skill at 9:15 a. m. today in Fairgrounds Park, starting the annual elimination tournament to decide the individual champion of the Municipal League. The tournament, which will take two Sundays to complete, will be conducted on the round-robin plan, each contestant playing the other, one 50-point game.

Lefty Steinmann, premier pitcher of the Sunsets, and the Missouri State champion, who lost but two games during the league's entire season, and is considered the favorite to win, heads the list of entries.

The other men who have entered to date are: Frank Meyer, Lou Meilert, Perle Key and Jack H. Claves of the Sunsets; John Strawhun, Art Hofmann and Charles Maness of the Plegges; George Rathke, George Fortschneider and Joe Wors of the Angelicas; Lou Jacunski and George Ott of the Kuhlmanns; Cordes Lovell, Dale Pracht, Frank Denny and Len Fogassey of the Libertys.

Mark Martin Is Easy Victor Over Browning

Mark Martin became the favorite in the men's municipal class B tennis tournament by defeating Gerald Browning yesterday, 6—1, 6—1. Martin meets Roy Uhlig in today's semifinals feature and the winner meets Ted Oster for the title.

Close play marked the women's class A matches. Ruth Moellenkamp bested Gertrude Degenhardt in a long three set match, 6—3, 1—6, 9—7. "Bee" Slater continued her triumphant march defeating Ann Hemman 8—6, 6—4.

In the women's doubles Peer and Frederic took the feature beating Schneider and Beal 5—7, 6—3, 6—4, while Stahl and Crandall outsteadied Dowler and Tibben, 6—3, 4—6, 8—6 to reach the semifinals in the men's doubles. Play continues today.

INDIANS BEAT SENATORS, 11-5, AFTER LOSING FIRST GAME, 4-2

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—Washington ran its winning streak to five games today by beating Cleveland, 4 to 2, in the first game of a double-header. Alvin Crowder kept the Indian hits scattered. Cleveland went on a hitting spree to take the second game, 11 to 5. The Indians made 21 hits in the nightcap to break the locals' winning streak.

Earl Whitehill Stars In Tigers Victory.

By the Associated Press.

BOSTON, Aug. 20.—Earl Whitehill, southpaw, was the main cog in the Detroit machine that today defeated the Boston Red Sox, 4 to 1, in 10 innings.

In the first frame, Johnson of the Red Sox poled out a double and then Jolley came through with a single to score him. However, from then on Whitehill had his own way. When the game went into an extra inning with the score one-all, Whitehill singled off Rhodes to score the first of a three-run rally. The southpaw fanned seven and did not pass a man.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—Herb Pennock of the Yankees registered his first shutout of the season, and his seventh victory when he blanked the Browns with seven hits in the series opener today. The score was 5 to 0.

The Yanks made only seven hits, too, off Stewart and Gray, but they had a couple of extra base blows that counted heavily. The seven blows old Herbie allowed were all singles.

Sewell hit a homer and a double, each with runners aboard to drive in a total of four runs.

Ruth batted in the other run, scoring Combs on a single. Each side had two errors, but the Yankee slips did no damage. A bobble by Levey led to one of the Yanks' runs. Two fast double plays—Sewell to Gehrig and Crosetti to Gehrig—aided Pennock in his whitewash job. Sewell's homer was his eleventh, and the Yanks' 132d for the season.

Sewell Hits Eleventh Homer.

Stewart turned back the Yankees easily in the first two innings, fanning Ruth in the first. He also retired two hitters in the third, Jorgens and Pennock. But here he fell on misfortune for he passed Combs. Thereupon Sewell took a mighty swing at Walter's first pitch and lifted the ball well over the screen in right field, for his eleventh homer of the year.

The Browns didn't get a hit off Pennock till the fourth, and then Burns poked a drooping liner into left with one out. Lazzeri took Goslin's smash, which went through Gehrig 20 feet off first, but Lazzeri made the stop behind him and threw to Pennock, who beat the Goose in a race for first.

The game hadn't passed the first inning when there came one of the noteworthy fielding plays of the year. Sewell walked after Combs had grounded to Levey and Stewart struck out Ruth. Gehrig blazed a terrific line smash headed for the "alley" between center and left. It was a three-base hit when it left the bat, but Levey made a marvelous leap in the air and stopped the ball which fell behind him. Even then it looked like a base hit, but the shortstop pounced on it, and with a quick backhand flip to Melillo forced Sewell at second by an eye lash.

The Yanks responded with a gem of their own in the second. Lazzeri took Campbell's fly back of first but Goslin singled to center and Burns took third. Ferrell blazed a liner close to second, but Lazzeri smothered the ball in a great play and recovered in time to toss to first ahead of Ferrell.

An error by Levey started a row of bad happenings in the fifth, for Jorgens was safe and advanced on a sacrifice by Pennock. Combs drew a pass and then the irrepressible Sewell repeated his third inning exploit by doubling to left for two more runs.

The Yanks got another run in the seventh due to a single by Combs, Sewell's out which advanced him to second wherefrom he scored on Ruth's single. This ended the scoring for the day.

ST. LOUIS NEGRO AND PARTNER WIN NATIONAL DOUBLES TENNIS TITLE

WESTFIELD, N. J., Aug. 20.—Reginald Weir of New York retained his national Negro men's tennis championship today by defeating Nathaniel Jackson of Laurenburg, N. C., the intercollegiate champion from Tuskegee Institute. The score was 0—6, 6—2, 1—6, 6—3, 11—9.

Miss Ora Washington of Philadelphia retained her women's championship, defeating Mrs Frances Gittens of New York, 4—6, 6—2, 6—3.

Franklyn Jackson, brother of Nathaniel, also kept his championship crown by defeating Gardner Kean of Louisville, Ky., 6—0, 6—3, in the junior singles.

In the men's doubles, Douglas Turner, former Chicago University player, and Richard Hudlin of St. Louis won from the Jackson brothers, 2—6, 6—2, 7—5, 3—6, 6—4.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—Herb Pennock of the Yankees registered his first shutout of the season, and his seventh victory when he blanked the Browns with seven hits in the series opener today. The score was 5 to 0.

The Yanks made only seven hits, too, off Stewart and Gray, but they had a couple of extra base blows that counted heavily. The seven blows old Herbie allowed were all singles.

Sewell hit a homer and a double, each with runners aboard to drive in a total of four runs.

Ruth batted in the other run, scoring Combs on a single. Each side had two errors, but the Yankee slips did no damage. A bobble by Levey led to one of the Yanks' runs. Two fast double plays—Sewell to Gehrig and Crosetti to Gehrig—aided Pennock in his whitewash job. Sewell's homer was his eleventh, and the Yanks' 132d for the season.

Sewell Hits Eleventh Homer.

Stewart turned back the Yankees easily in the first two innings, fanning Ruth in the first. He also retired two hitters in the third, Jorgens and Pennock. But here he fell on misfortune for he passed Combs. Thereupon Sewell took a mighty swing at Walter's first pitch and lifted the ball well over the screen in right field, for his eleventh homer of the year.

The Browns didn't get a hit off Pennock till the fourth, and then Burns poked a drooping liner into left with one out. Lazzeri took Goslin's smash, which went through Gehrig 20 feet off first, but Lazzeri made the stop behind him and threw to Pennock, who beat the Goose in a race for first.

The game hadn't passed the first inning when there came one of the noteworthy fielding plays of the year. Sewell walked after Combs had grounded to Levey and Stewart struck out Ruth. Gehrig blazed a terrific line smash headed for the "alley" between center and left. It was a three-base hit when it left the bat, but Levey made a marvelous leap in the air and stopped the ball which fell behind him. Even then it looked like a base hit, but the shortstop pounced on it, and with a quick backhand flip to Melillo forced Sewell at second by an eye lash.

The Yanks responded with a gem of their own in the second. Lazzeri took Campbell's fly back of first but Goslin singled to center and Burns took third. Ferrell blazed a liner close to second, but Lazzeri smothered the ball in a great play and recovered in time to toss to first ahead of Ferrell.

An error by Levey started a row of bad happenings in the fifth, for Jorgens was safe and advanced on a sacrifice by Pennock. Combs drew a pass and then the irrepressible Sewell repeated his third inning exploit by doubling to left for two more runs.

The Yanks got another run in the seventh due to a single by Combs, Sewell's out which advanced him to second wherefrom he scored on Ruth's single. This ended the scoring for the day.

ST. LOUIS NEGRO AND PARTNER WIN NATIONAL DOUBLES TENNIS TITLE

WESTFIELD, N. J., Aug. 20.—Reginald Weir of New York retained his national Negro men's tennis championship today by defeating Nathaniel Jackson of Laurenburg, N. C., the intercollegiate champion from Tuskegee Institute. The score was 0—6, 6—2, 1—6, 6—3, 11—9.

Miss Ora Washington of Philadelphia retained her women's championship, defeating Mrs Frances Gittens of New York, 4—6, 6—2, 6—3.

Franklyn Jackson, brother of Nathaniel, also kept his championship crown by defeating Gardner Kean of Louisville, Ky., 6—0, 6—3, in the junior singles.

In the men's doubles, Douglas Turner, former Chicago University player, and Richard Hudlin of St. Louis won from the Jackson brothers, 2—6, 6—2, 7—5, 3—6, 6—4.

The Crucial Test for Benny

Honey Dews, 1931 Champions, Win Second Round Contest

Coils won, 3 to 1, at Sherman Park.

An unusually good pitching performance also was turned in by E. Groves of McQuay-Norris, who held the Calcaterras of the Mid-City League to three scattered hits, Groves' team winning, 2 to 0, in their game at Forest Park, Diamond No. 8.

The Illmo nine trimmed the Powells, 4 to 1, at Concordia Park, and the Star Brand aggregation defeated the Celts of the Y. M. H. A. League, 15 to 5, in other second-round games.

HAMILTON CHRISTIAN WINS 10-INNING GAME FROM TABERNACLE, 10-6

Hamilton Avenue Christian, defending its title as Sunday School League baseball champions, survived the first round of play by defeating Tabernacle, 10 to 6, in 10 innings yesterday afternoon in Forest Park. If Hamilton wins the series it will be the fourth straight for the West Enders.

Buns Harrison, veteran pitcher, who relieved Marty Young in the eighth inning, aided greatly in the victory as he singled over two runs in the tenth, which was followed by two more. Hamilton managed to tie the score in the eighth with a series of well-placed bunts which had the Tabernacle infield frantic.

The second round of the series will take place next Saturday afternoon at Sherman Park, when Tabernacle opposes the Bellefontaine M. E. nine, which drew a bye.

MAC SMITH AND HORTON SMITH TO PLAY HERE IN $2500 OPEN

MacDonald Smith, famous New York golfer, and Horton Smith, Joplin, Mo., who is now professional at Oak Park Golf Club, Chicago, have filed their entries for the St. Louis Open Golf tournament which is to be held at Meadow Brook Golf Club Oct. 7, 8 and 9.

These dates represent a change from those of Sept. 23, 24 and 25, which were originally set for the tournament. The new dates were decided upon when many of the Eastern and some of the Chicago professionals requested that the event be held later, when they would be closing up their business and beginning the trip to the Pacific Coast for the winter season.

Mac Smith and Horton are among the outstanding players in the game today. Horton is familiar to St. Louis fans, as he has appeared here several times, but Mac Smith has never appeared here. He did not play in the St. Louis Open in 1930.

He was runner-up to Bobby Jones in the British Open when he tied with Leo Diegel for second place, two strokes behind Jones, in 1930, and the same year finished second to Jones in the U. S. Open also by two strokes. Last year he won the Metropolitan Open championship.

Al Espinosa, Chicago, has also signified his intention of competing here, but has not filed his entry as yet.

BRITISH WALKER CUP TEAM ARRIVES IN U. S.

By the Associated Press.

BOSTON, Aug. 20.—Nine members of the British Walker Cup golf team arrived today aboard the liner Brittanic. The group was headed by Thomas A. Torrance, captain, and was met by Francis Ouimet, national amateur champion of the United States, and other prominent golfers.

The British team will participate in matches at the Brookline Country Club Sept. 1 and 2. John de Forest and Rex Hartley, two members of the team, have been in New York for several days preparing for the matches.

Spike Webb a Visitor.

Spike Webb, coach of the American Olympic boxing team which won the championship at the games in Los Angeles just concluded, passed through St. Louis on his way back to Annapolis to resume his duties as boxing coach at the United States Naval Academy. He stopped in St. Louis for a few hours to visit friends.

WRAY'S COLUMN

the personnel of the New York club, we'll have to get out the old toga and drape it about the Joe McCarthy edifice.

Sets a New Record.

WHEN, or if McCarthy wins, the occasion will set a record. Joe will be the first manager in history to win a pennant in both major leagues. In fact, it can be added that he will have won pennants in three leagues, for he also has gone over the top as a manager at Louisville.

On the day that Joe is mathematically safe, we hope he doesn't have a sore lip. It might be painful, if someone happened to mention the name "Rogers Hornsby."

A Surprising Record.

WHEN the Babe Ruth contest fans settle down to pick one of the two pitchers needed to round out the club, nearly everyone of them will look up Wes Ferrell's figures to find out where he stands. Ferrell has been mentioned on previous lists by many fans and in 1930 he, with Grove, made the grade.

At this writing, Ferrell has won 19 victories and his teammates expect him to run that up above 20—possibly to 25. That would seem to make him a real standout.

And yet there are soft spots in Ferrell's performance. For example, 16 of his 19 victories this year have been gained at the expense of the weaker clubs of the league — Boston, Chicago, St. Louis and Detroit.

Pitted against stronger clubs, teams with real sluggers in their lineups, Ferrell has fared as follows: Lost four out of five to the Athletics, lost three out of four to the Yankees and lost two out of three to the Senators.

In two years Ferrell has not been able to do anything with the Connie Mack herd. Last year was as bad as this season. In his duels with Grove, Ferrell has yet to win a game. They met three times last season and Philadelphia won them all. This year in two duels with Grove, Ferrell was worsted both times.

Let's not, however, bear down too hard in this matter, because, when all is said and done, there isn't a manager in either league that would not welcome a chance to buy this great player at a fancy price.

More About Knockouts

FIGHTERS fear knockouts not because of the physical pain but because of the almost irremovable stain on their records. The public has gained the idea that even one knockout is a badge of failure. Subconsciously they dismiss the candidate for ring favor from their minds.

Gene Tunney

However, the knockout, records show, has very little bearing on the prospects of a good boy, when suffered in the early years of his career.

No less a personage than Jack Dempsey was knocked out only a year before he became champion, by a wornout old veteran who was at the end of his tether —Jim Flynn.

Jack Johnson, considered by many to be the very best man in science as well as fighting power, of all time, was knocked out before he became champion by Joe Choynski, a man whom Johnson outweighed many pounds.

Jess Willard quit cold to Joe Cox at Joplin only a couple of years before winning the title.

Wild Bill Hanrahan knocked out Marvin Hart, but that did not prevent Hart later from succeeding to Jim Jeffries' crown.

Benny Leonard, the greatest lightweight of his day or possibly of any day, was flattened TWICE before he became champion.

Tunney the Only Exception.

ONLY one heavyweight champion in history failed to suffer a knockout at some time during his career—James J. Tunney.

And so—don't toss the young and ambitious fighter into the discard just because he has passed out via a knockout.

A quick kayo causes much less physical distress or permanent harm than a gruelling 10-round fight in which the victim goes the full route.

Few Candidates' Records Clean

IF one were to discard all the title hopes now in the field who have been knocked out only a few good fighters would escape.

The titleholder himself and the man who will meet him next June both would be included in the discards. Here is a list of the active title "hopes" who have heard the cuckoos calling:

Johnny Risko, Champion Jack Sharkey (twice), Challenger Max Schmeling (twice), Mickey Walker (twice), Stanley Poreda, Charley Retzlaff, Isadoro Gastanaga (three times), Young Stribling, George Godfrey, Tuffy Griffiths, Vittorio Campolo (three times) and Tommy Loughran.

Those remaining in the field whose escutcheons are still untainted, are: Primo Carnera, Paulino Uzcudun, Ernie Schaaf, King Levinsky, Steve Hamas and Max Baer.

From which it will be seen that there is better talent among the boys who have been knocked off than among those with no "K O by" in their records.

A Total Collapse.

ONE of the strangest reactions to a knockout in the history of pugilism is found in the record of Frankie Neil, bantam champion of the world in 1905, and one of the finest two-fisted fighting machines in history.

He bowled over all our good bantams of that day—Eddie Hanlon, Harry Forbes, Danny Daugherty, Clarence Forbes, Johnny Reagan, Tommy Murphy and others. He capped off his success that year by beating the newest bantamweight sensation, Harry Tenney, in a fine 25-round fight.

In 1906 they were rematched and Neil knocked out Tenney in the fourteenth round. In falling, Tenney struck his head and next day died of the injury.

Neil was in no way to blame, beyond landing a blow which in itself was not sufficient to cause death. But Neil took it to heart. He grieved about it so that it ruined his entire career. His record for the next campaign indicates that. He lost his first match to Abe Attell, lost a decision one month later to Harry Baker and two months after that suffered his first knockout at the hands of Owen Moran of England.

In his first fight of the following year he was knocked out by Attell and then Kid Wolgast, just emerging from obscurity, beat Neil in his next appearance.

There is hardly any doubt that Neil's knockout victory over Tenney ruined his career.

Mat Promoter's License Obtained By Berberich

William Berberich, owner of the Marquette Hotel and a delivery service, has obtained a wrestling promoter's license from the State Athletic Commission through Secretary Ben Harrison of Springfield, Mo.

Berberich, who backed Eddie Vandeventer (Kid Bandy) as a boxing promoter last winter, plans to assist M. A. McEvers in the promotion of Wednesday night's wrestling show at the Battery A arena. Berberich will then take over complete promotional activities now handled by McEvers, using wrestlers active in the so-called Curley and Bowser circuits, which merged recently, in future shows.

Two finish events will headline Wednesday night's show. Roland Kirschmeyer and Earl McCready, who met in the last Battery A show with Kirschmeyer winning, have signed for a return bout, to a finish, and in the other top-line event, Tiny Roebuck, Indian, will oppose Sandor Szabo, Hungarian. Roebuck was scheduled to appear on the last card but didn't, due to the non-arrival of his opponent. Szabo drew with Pat McGill on the same program.

Bruno Gorrasini, 200-pound Italian, and Abe Kashey, newcomers to St. Louis fans, have been signed for a 30-minute preliminary. Mateo Kerilenko and Jack Smith will appear in other preliminary events against opponents still to be announced.

U. S. ATHLETES WON 41 TITLES IN OLYMPIC GAMES OF 1932

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 20.—Athletes of the United States won 41 championships in the tenth Olympiad, or more than one-third of the total number decided in the 16 days of competition.

These facts were officially announced today by William M. Henry, sports technical director of the games, in preparing for delivery to Count Henri de Baillet Latour, president of the International Olympic Committee, the lists of winners to become a part of the archives at Lausanne, Switzerland.

It was the greatest number of championships ever collected by a country in a modern Olympiad, with the American entrants winning more titles than any four other nations.

The United States team was by far the largest in the games, but the records made by winning athletes of all countries tend to indicate the 1932 champions won because they were the outstanding stars.

FAVORITES REACH SECOND ROUND OF TRIPLE A TOURNEY

The favorites advanced to the second round in the championship class of the annual Triple A tennis tournament. Herb Weinstock, the defending champion, won from Frank Thompson, 9—7, 6—3.

Wray Brown and Junior Boehmer came through with straight set victories. Brown defeated Charles McMillan, 6—4, 6—1.

Wray Brown and Karl Hodge, favorites for the doubles title defeated Ray Wiese and McMillan, 7—5, 6—3, after being within a point of losing the first set. All remaining first round doubles matches are scheduled today, while second round singles will be played tomorrow.

The Rabbit Ball Hitter.

YOUNG KNOCKEMFAR had come out of the West,
Of all the hard hitters his record was best;
In Class Double-A he had been quite a star,
But major league pitchers stopped young Knockemfar.

Young Knockemfar, on the ball had his eye,
And for him the scouts were compelled to bid high;
He hammered out homers and triples galore
And hit for a mark of .404.

Now young Knockemfar has gone back to the West,
He flopped when they gave him the old acid test.
That minor league ball he could certainly sting,
And figures don't lie, but they don't prove a thing.

An Affair Of State.

They take their baseball seriously down in Nicaragua. In a game between Managua and Granada the losing team took an appeal from the umpire's decision to the Supreme Court of Nicaragua. What that country needs more than a good nickel cigar is a Judge Landis.

It has its points at that. When an umpire knows that he is liable to be reversed by the Supreme Court he's going to be darned careful how he calls 'em.

"Billion in Gold Carted Like Coal."

Must have thought they had money to burn.

"Stealing Ice Boxes Is Latest Racket."

Probably hope to find some frozen assets in 'em.

The farmers of Iowa have gone on a strike. Indicating that the 24-hour day isn't what it has been cracked up to be.

THE farmer in the dell,
His product has to sell,
For what it costs to raise the stuff
Now wouldn't you rebel?

No Alibi.

FOR us Borotra spilled the beans,
Although it was no fault of Jean's;
He played with such elan and skill
With all his "faults" we love him still,

More power to the man from France,
Who robbed our boys of every chance;
For all Borotra's faults, we find,
Were of the foot and not the mind.

Too True.

That bandage Eddie Tolan wears on his left knee is for good luck only. Eddie is superstitious and thinks it is bad luck to run second in any race.

OH, how that boy would split the breeze
If he should bandage both his knees;
We wouldn't fear to wager that He'd do the course in nothing flat.

And yet just prior to the Olympic games Tolan had his measure taken a couple of times by Metcalf his closest rival. But what's an inch or two between friends?

Baltimore Stenographer Wins A. A. U. Marathon When De Bruyn Collapses

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—A 21-year-old Baltimore stenographer, Clyde D. Martak, won the National A. A. U. marathon championship tonight in a thrilling finish marked by the collapse of the favorite in the last few strides.

The slim, dark-haired Martak—hitherto virtually unknown to running fame—swept into the lead in the closing stages as Paul de Bruyn, German youth from New York, faltered after leading most of the way.

The highly rated German, who finished fifteenth in the Olympic marathon at Los Angeles, struggled on gamely and finished third after collapsing 150 yards from the finish. Rising, he staggered the last few strides to the line, then fell unconscious and had to be taken to a hospital.

De Bruyn's Condition Not Serious.

Although not regarded as in a serious condition, he was kept there for the night under physicians' care.

Percy Wyer, 98-pound running dynamo from the Monarch Athletic Club of Toronto, Canada, finished second.

Martak, who represents the Cross Country Club of Baltimore, was timed in two hours 58 minutes and 18 seconds, compared to 2:31:36 made by Juan Zabala of Argentina in winning the Olympic marathon. Wyer was more than a minute behind Martak.

Cheering crowds lined much of the course of 26 miles 385 yards, starting at the gates of Mount Vernon and finishing back of the White House.

"My dogs were pretty tired along about the 19-mile mark," said the smiling Martak after the finish, "but somewhere along the line I got my second wind. That little fellow Wyer is tough. I was afraid of him all the time."

The leading finishers: 1, Clyde D. Martak, Baltimore, Md., 2:58:18; 2, Percy Wyer, Toronto, Canada, 2:59:44; 3, Paul de Bruyn, Germany, 3:3:53; 4, Arthur Dewhurst, Washington, 3:10:0; 5, Abilio Diaz, U. S. Marine Corps, 3:11:4; 6, John D. Semple, Lynn, Mass., 3:16:4; 7, Frank Jerry, Newcastle, Pa., 3:17:0; 8, William Dreyer, Barrington, Ill., 3:19:59; 9, Jimmy Bartlett, Toronto, 3:20:36; 10, Andre Brunnelle, Lynn, Mass., 3:21:3; 11, Clarence de Mar, Harrison, Me.; 12, Alex Burnside, Toronto; 13, Stephen R. Gerkin, Baltimore; 14, August Shoboda, Chicago; 15, Haskell Clark, Washington; 16, John Beares, Baltimore; 17, William Spencer, Toronto, Canada; 18, John R. Booker, Baltimore; 19, William Fullmer, Baltimore; 20, E. Clifton Herz, Baltimore.

After considerable figuring the officials announced that the Monarch Athletic Club of Toronto, led by Wyer, won the team trophy, with Martak's Cross Country Club of Baltimore second.

The score was 12 points to 15. In arriving at the totals, the officials counted only the runners who were members of teams.

Diaz, who finished fifth, was disqualified for running off the course.

HEAD PLAY CAPTURES $10,000 JUVENILE STAKE AT HAWTHORNE

VICTOR, 2 1-2 LENGTHS AHEAD OF GLORITONE, PAYS $24 FOR $2

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Aug. 20.—Head Play, hard running two-year-old colt from the Blue Grass region of Kentucky, raced to an easy victory in the third running of the $10,000 Hawthorne Juvenile Handicap today.

At the end of the six-furlong dash, the Kentucky colt, carrying the colors of Mrs. William Crump, was two and one-half lengths ahead of Gloritone. Gloritone got up in the last jump to nose out Miss Brilliant for third place. Col E. R. Bradley's Ballygran was fourth in the field of 13.

The winning colt, trained by Willie Crump, former jockey, traveled the distance in 1:13.

The race had a gross value of $13,300 with $9675 going to Mrs. Crump. Head Play, a son of My Play-Red Head, earlier in the season had won a stake victory at Latonia, capturing the Cincinnati Trophy, but was so lightly regarded he paid $24.54 to win in the $2 mutuels, with $12.90 to place and $9.90 to show.

Gloritone, another outsider, paid $7.96 to place and $5.48 to show. Miss Brilliant, which ran a remarkable race, paid $7.58 to show. Swivel and Projectile, the entry of Adolphe Pons of New York, were the favorites, but both finished well back.

Jockey H. W. Fisher got Head Play away flying, close to Miss Melody, which set the early pace. At the stretch turn Head Play easily stepped into the lead and just galloped home. Miss Melody faded and Gloritone came from far back to take second money.

There was some rough riding at the stretch turn, Knight's Gal interfering with Swivel and Hope To Do, entry of Admiral C. T. Grayson. Jockey R. Martin, who rode Knight's Gal, was suspended by the stewards for the remainder of the meeting.

EAST ST. LOUIS JOCKEY TO RIDE AT FAIRMOUNT RACE MEETING

Despite the fact that the financial attraction to horse owners is considerably less than in past seasons, because of the reduction in the purses offered the winners, Fairmount Jockey Club looks forward to a successful meeting, opening Saturday, Sept. 17.

General Manager Robert S. Eddy, who was at his desk at Fairmount Park yesterday, says he has in hand 107 applications for stalls. Each such application, made out by owner and trainer, requires accommodations for an average of five horses so that there are reasonable assurances of at least 535 horses although opening day is still four weeks off. Eddy believes that the class of horses will be no different from that of past seasons because the policy of reduction of purses has been widespread, some tracks having been forced to the greater extremity of canceling their fall meeting.

The applications for stalls indicate that many of the old Fairmount favorites will be back, among them B. B. Rice, E. E. Major, Nugent Brothers, Art Goldblatt, G. L. Kalbfleisch, Bill Cain and A. J. Pershall.

Among the jockeys who will ride at the meeting is an East St. Louis boy who has been showing promising form in his work at Thistledown. He is W. Dovett, an apprentice, under contract to Jim Hall, who is bringing 10 horses. D. Dickson, leading rider at Thistledown, will also be here.

There are about 35 horses in training at Fairmount now and an influx is expected to start in about 10 days.

Pistol Club Scores.

ST. LOUIS PISTOL AND REVOLVER CLUB.

Ed Frechmann 86; C. E. Burgdorf, 85; Paul Staeuble, 84; Lorin Nevling, 77; W. L. Staats, 77; Ed Niemeyer, 77; Brent Williams, 72; Dr. P. C. Walton, 67; H. L. Hofmeister, 55.

The scores were shot from the 20-yard line slow fire, on the standard American indoor target.

EAST ST. LOUIS JOCKEY TO RIDE AT FAIRMOUNT RACE MEETING

Despite the fact that the financial attraction to horse owners is considerably less than in past seasons, because of the reduction in the purses offered the winners, Fairmount Jockey Club looks forward to a successful meeting, opening Saturday, Sept. 17.

General Manager Robert S. Eddy, who was at his desk at Fairmount Park yesterday, says he has in hand 107 applications for stalls. Each such application, made out by owner and trainer, requires accommodations for an average of five horses so that there are reasonable assurances of at least 535 horses although opening day is still four weeks off. Eddy believes that the class of horses will be no different from that of past seasons because the policy of reduction of purses has been widespread, some tracks having been forced to the greater extremity of canceling their fall meeting.

The applications for stalls indicate that many of the old Fairmount favorites will be back, among them B. B. Rice, E. E. Major, Nugent Brothers, Art Goldblatt, G. L. Kalbfleisch, Bill Cain and A. J. Pershall.

Among the jockeys who will ride at the meeting is an East St. Louis boy who has been showing promising form in his work at Thistledown. He is W. Dovett, an apprentice, under contract to Jim Hall, who is bringing 10 horses. D. Dickson, leading rider at Thistledown, will also be here.

There are about 35 horses in training at Fairmount now and an influx is expected to start in about 10 days.

Jackson Boyd, who captained the team, entertained at a dinner for the players after the game. Julius S. W. Bates and Miss Ellen Bates were among the guests.

Mrs. R. E. Filley was a hostess at several informal teas this week on the Casino lawn.

Vion Papin, Dina Smirnoff Wed in Paris

Bride a Descendant of Pierre Laclede, a Poet of Note and Winner of Art Scholarship.

MR. AND MRS. VION PAPIN, 5237 Waterman avenue, have sent out cards announcing the marriage of their attractive young daughter, Miss Vion to Dina Smirnoff of Paris, France. The civil service was read at the Mairie in Paris Wednesday and Thursday the religious ceremony took place in the Russian Church of Paris.

Miss Papin is related to many of the old French families of St. Louis. She is a descendant of Pierre Laclede, the founder of St. Louis, being a grandchild of the fifth generation. The historic Papin home at Ste. Genevieve, Mo., owned by the bride's father, is the oldest residence in the town, and is noted for its romantic background and genial hospitality. The bride was graduated from Mary Institute, winning the art scholarship offered by the school. Among other activities at Mary Institute she was poetry editor for the Chronicle and has won awards in various poetry contests. She went to Paris a year ago in June to study art. Mrs. Papin, who visited her daughter in Paris for several months, returned to St. Louis in May.

The bridegroom received his education in England and is a member of a distinguished Russian family. His uncle, Dr. Riabouskinski, occupies the chair of aeronautics at the Sorbonne and he has visited in this country on several lecture tours.

Miss McConnell Weds Dr. J. B. Taussig

MISS FRANCES SHACKELFORD McCONNELL, daughter of Mrs. Guthrie McConnell, 401 North Newstead avenue, was married at noon yesterday to Dr. Joseph Bondi Taussig, son of Dr. and Mrs. Albert E. Taussig, 5038 Washington boulevard. The wedding took place at the home of Mrs. McConnell, the bride's grandfather. The Rev. Dr. Samuel D. McConnell, rector emeritus of All Souls Church, New York, officiated in the presence om the immediate families. Following the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served.

The bride was unattended. She wore an afternoon gown of ice blue lace. The bodice was cut with a square neckline and there were short puffed sleves of the lace. The skirt fitted the figure to the knees where it flared to the floor. She carried a bouquet of white summer flowers.

After a motor trip East Dr. Taussig and his bride will make their home temporarily with Mrs. McConnell. The bride was graduated from the Hathaway-Brown School, Cleveland and Smith College. She made her debut a few seasons ago and served as maid of honor at the Veiled Prophet ball. Her maternal grandfather was the late Charles W. Knapp. Dr. Taussig was graduated from the St. Louis Country Day School and Harvard and Washington University School of Medicine. He is a grandson of the late Rev. Dr. John C. Learned, Unitarian minister in St. Louis.

Ried-Goerner Wedding Tomorrow Evening

THE wedding of Miss Dorothy North Ried, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William P. Ried, 655 Clark avenue, Webster Groves, and Russell H. Goerner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick W. Goerner, 3536 Connecticut street, will take place tomorrow night at 8:30 o'clock at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ried. The Rev. Hervey Ganse Little of Baltimore, who is filling the pulpit of the Webster Groves Presbyterian Church, in the absence of the pastor, Dr. David M. Skilling, will officiate.

The ceremony will take place in the living room before an improvised altar of greenery and late summer flowers. An informal reception for the families and a few close friends will be held immediately after the wedding. Miss Ried will wear a gown of beige lace fashioned with short cape sleeves and a long flared skirt. She will carry a bouquet of tea roses. Miss Lisette Gross will be maid of honor and will wear a gown of pomegranate satin and will carry talisman roses. Harold Elbert will be best man for Mr. Goerner.

The bride attended Smith College and Washington University and is a member of Kappa Kappa Gamma Sorority. Mr. Goerner received his education at the University of Illinois and Washington University and is a member of Sigma Chi Fraternity.

Miss Margaret Reamer Weds Drexel Turner

A WEDDING of yesterday was that of Miss Margaret Frances Reamer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dick Reamer, 2116 Princeton place, and Drexel Turner, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Turner, Houston, Tex., which took place at 4:30 o'clock in the afternoon at the Church of St. Michael and St. George. The Rev. Dr. Frank Maples of St. Augustine's Church officiated in the absence of the pastor, the Rev. Dr. Karl Morgan Block. A garden reception on the church grounds for about 150 guests followed the ceremony.

The bride was attended by Miss Augusta Peters as maid of honor, Mrs. Neville S. Buck as matron of honor, Mrs. Richards S. Reamer, a sister-in-law, and Miss Katherine Rose as bridesmaids. Clifford G. Wassal was best man for Mr. Turner and Edward Randall, John Dean and Robert Smith served as ushers. Donald Wassal, young son of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford G. Wassal, carried the wedding ring on a heart-shaped satin cushion.

The bride wore a gown of peau d'ange lace in a deep ivory tone, made on close fitting lines with a short train. The bodice had short double puffed sleeves and a cowl neckline. Her veil of ivory-tinted tulle fell from a cap of the lace adorned in orange blossoms and she carried lilies of the valley, bride's roses and baby's breath. Her attendants were in summery frocks in pastel shades. The maid of honor wore green chiffon and the bridesmaids were in frocks of point de sprit in shades of yellow, pink and orchid. They carried bouquets of roses to harmonize with their gowns.

After the honeymoon Mr. Turner and his bride will live in Abilene, Tex.

CARDINAL VERDIER GOES HOME

Sails for France After Inspecting Religious Houses in U. S.

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—Cardinal Verdier, Archbishop of Paris and superior general of the Sulpician Order, sailed for France today on the liner Champlain, after a visit of nearly two weeks. During his stay he visited houses of the order in Fitchburg and Worcester, Mass., and in New York, Baltimore and Washington.

"I am sailing with many excellent impressions," he said. "First of all, of the courtesy, and something more than courtesy—the extreme kindness with which I was met. There was cordiality everywhere and, to a stranger, that is the finest sentiment that can be experienced. Secondly, I was astonished to see all that has been accomplished since my last visit, nine years ago. The material progress has been immense. As for spirituality, I was struck by the calmness and dignity of the people under the hardships of the depression."

Kirkwood

MRS. GEORGE S. JACKMAN, 735 North Kirkwood road, arrived home yesterday from a visit at Lockport, Ill., with her mother, Mrs. F. V. Paulson.

Parties at Newport For Tennis Stars

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.

GROUSE shooting in Scotland, sunning on the Riviera, tennis playing at Newport and horse racing at Saratoga are among the diversions occupying New Yorkers before the close of the vacation season sends them back to their town houses.

Among the prominent New Yorkers who are now in Scotland for the grouse shooting season which opened a week ago, are Charles Steele, James Hunter Blair, John W. Converse, Herbert Pulitzer, George Clark, Ector O. Munn and J. P. Morgan.

Many Newport residents are giving dinner parties this week-end for visiting tennis stars. Mrs. Vincent Astor gave a large luncheon honoring the players yesterday.

Among the group of Americans who have taken villas at Deauville for the remainder of the month are Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Havemeyer, who have leased La Chaumerie, once the property of the late William K. Vanderbilt. Anthony J. Drexel is one of the most popular residents of the resort.

Mr. and Mrs. John R. Fell Jr., Miss Dorothy Fell and Raymond Guest, who motored to Saratoga from Westbury, L. I., this week, are stopping at the Grand Union Hotel there for a few days of the racing and are among those who are entertaining extensively during their stay.

Mrs. Graham Fair Vanderbilt, who had planned to return from Europe for the last weeks of the racing season at Saratoga, has changed her plans and will spend the remainder of August at Cannes before returning to her country home on Long Island.

Mrs. Thomas Jefferson Mumford will open her East Hampton, Long Island, home for a musical and tea Thursday afternoon for the benefit of the East Hampton Settlement House. Her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. John Adams Mayer, are spending the season with her.

William de Rham flew from Southampton this week for the tennis tournament at Newport and yesterday he took the air route to Montreal for a short visit.

TWO MEN HELD FOR SWINDLING BUS PASSENGERS WITH COINS

Two men thought to be the pair who have been working a coin-matching swindle on passengers waiting at bus stations were arrested Friday when they struck up an acquaintance with Detective James Turner, who had dressed in the clothes of a rural youth.

One asked Turner to go for a walk from the Union Market bus terminal, Sixth and Morgan streets, and a block away encountered the second man, who spoke in Cockney accent his great pleasure at the reunion. Detective Sergt. Charles Gerlach, who had been following, stepped up and made the arrests before coin-matching was suggested.

The man who met Turner at the station said he was from Kansas and he of the Cockney accent gave Sioux City, Ia., as his permanent address. Police are attempting to find some of the victims to aid in prosecution.

5500 PUPILS TO TAKE PART IN PLAY FESTIVAL

Annual Pageant to Be Held Saturday at Public School Stadium.

The tenth annual festival and pageant of the public school playgrounds of St. Louis will be held at the Public Schools Stadium, Kingshighway and St. Louis avenue, next Saturday afternoon, beginning at 1:30 o'clock.

Teams which have won group championships will contest in finals for nine interplayground games. Events are senior and intermediate baseball, senior and junior horseshoe pitching and dodge ball for boys, and volley ball, net hand ball, captain ball and end ball for girls. The games will be followed by a city championship field and track meet.

Team and individual prizes will be given at the end of the athletic events and the Patrons' Alliance trophy will be presented to the play center with the best allround record for the summer. The trophy has already been awarded twice each to the Wyman and Laclede school playgrounds and will go permanently to the first school winning it three times.

More than 5500 school children will take part in the pageant which will close the day's activities. The story is that of Ahmed Corru, the "Thief of Bagdad."

Dressed in colorful costumes, the children will portray in dance and pantomime Ahmed's adventures in the Enchanted Forest, his battle against dragons and genii and his conquest over his baser nature.

Accompanying the festival will be a display of handicraft and industrial play, with individual schools in charge of booths of their work. Rodowe H. Abeken, supervisor of recreation and general director of public school playgrounds, will be in charge of the festival.

SAFETY COUNCIL TROPHIES AWARDED 13 COMPANIES

Accident Frequency Rate Cut 55 Pct. Since Inter-plant Contest Was Instituted in 1929.

Thirteen winners in the seventh St. Louis Safety Council inter-plant contest received silver trophies at a meeting of the Executive Committee of the council Friday evening.

The Alcoa Ore Co. of East St. Louis, with no accidents causing loss of time in 1,156,400 hours of work, won the major trophy in its group. The other 12 group winners are: Bemis Bros. Bag Co.; Compton & Sons Lithographing & Printing Co.; Electrol, Inc.; Fisher Body Co.; General Refractories Co.; C. Hager & Sons Hinge Manufacturing Co.; International Shoe Co. (St. Louis avenue factory); Liberty Foundry Co.; Meier & Pohlmann Furniture Co.; Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. (plant department); Union Biscuit Co. and Western Electric Co.

A. H. Stein, chairman of the contest, reported that since the first inter-plant contest was held in 1929, the accident frequency rate had been reduced 55 per cent.

PONTIFICAL HIGH MASS FOR CATHOLIC VISITORS

Delegates to National Conventions to Attend Cathedral Services.

A pontifical high mass at the St. Louis Cathedral at 10:30 o'clock this morning will be the principal service attended by delegates to the national conventions of the Catholic Central Verein and the National Catholic Women's Union, which opened yesterday at the Coronado Hotel.

Archbishop Glennon will preside, Bishop Henry Althoff of Belleville will be celebrant and Bishop Francis Johannes of Leavenworth, Kan., will deliver the sermon. The cathedral choir will present a special musical program.

The day's convention program will open at Cathedral Hall before mass. Acting Mayor Neun will welcome the delegates to St. Louis. The resolutions committee will meet at the Coronado this afternoon and a mass meeting of all delegates will be held at St. Anthony's parish hall, Meramec and Michigan avenues, tonight.

Speakers tonight will be Bishop Joseph F. Rummel of Omaha, Neb., and the Rev. Charles P. Bruehl of Overbrook, Pa. The St. Anthony Choristers will sing a number of selections, including a group from Haydn's "The Creation," and the Ukrainian Greek Catholic Choir will present native folk songs and liturgical music of their own church.

State conventions of the Catholic Union of Missouri and the Catholic Women's Union of Missouri, which also opened yesterday, will be concluded today after business sessions at St. Anthony's Hall.

The national conventions will continue to Wednesday, with the first open session for delegates at the hotel tomorrow. In connection with the national convention, a display of patchwork quilts and other articles of mission aid handiwork has been opened in the Spanish grill room of the hotel.

The Catholic Central Verein has met in St. Louis four times previously, the first time being shortly before the Civil War and the last in 1917. Two St. Louisanas have held the office of president. They were John Amend, who served from 1860 to 1868, and Henry J. Spaunhorst, who held the office from 1873 to 1890.

A class of 321 applicants took the examinations, 27 per cent making passing grades in the required number of subjects. The list to be licensed includes 46 from St. Louis and suburban towns.

The St. Louis applicants who will be licensed are: Marcus M. Felsen, Joseph D. Feigenbaum, Jerome Arthur Gross, Jean Gaitley Guise Jr., Frederich Edward Haines, Henry Chapeze Hughes, Joseph Loire Hummert, Louis M. Herman Jr., Kerth William Hardy, Elizabeth V. Kausch, Harold Kaminsky, Rene J. Lusser, Wilbur H. Lindauer, Sidney Elmore Langsam, Marshall O. Mitchell, Edward W. Meyer Jr., Robert Neill Jr., Frank Augustus Neun, Miguel C. Siyang, Morris A. Shenker, Lee Hall, David Yeiser Campbell, Harold W. Leistritz, Daniel Lloyd Casey, Joe David, Sidney D. Frampton, Benedict Himelstein, Harold Shepherd Horwitz, Carl E. Strakloff, Sam A Kessler, Robert Barney Baxter, Celeste East, John A. Othman, Fred C. Scharpf, Fred H. Atwood, Carroll Conway Cannon, Edward Hardin Carlton.

Others who passed from towns near St. Louis are: Raymond L. Falzone, Richmond Heights; Morton K. Lange and John A. Walsh, both of Kirkwood; Alan R. Klobasa, A. Hamilton Strong and Frederick B. Wolf, all of Clayton; Louise Josephine Bernero, Albert M. Bridell, Fred E. Moore Jr. and Curtis B. Singleton, all of University City.

In the previous examinations, held in February, only 29 of 185, or less than 16 per cent, were successful. This was the first examination conducted after the appointment of Thomas F. MacDonald as chairman of the board.

Benefit Tax Groups to Meet.

The St. Louis Benefit Tax Association will hold its regular monthly meeting at 8 p. m. Tuesday at Carondelet Library, 6300 Michigan avenue. There will be a discussion of litigation filed in the interests of members and other taxpayers against the benefit taxes for the right-of-way of the River des Peres drainage works. The association has been active in opposing various benefit taxes. It plans to meet the fourth Tuesday night of every month at Carondelet Library.

AUTOMOBILE ASSOCIATION ISSUES TWO NEW MAPS

They Show Latest Road Construction Both in St. Louis and in the County.

Two new official A. A. A. maps of St. Louis County and St. Louis and vicinity, showing all the improvements in roads as well as numerous other features interesting to the motorist, have been issued by the Automobile Club of Missouri.

A staff of engineers devoted several months to the preparation of both maps, which are published back to back and make a convenient package for the automobilist. They are 27 by 32 inches in size and are printed in two colors. The county map shows in detail all new road construction, both by state and county highway departments.

The vicinity map takes in an area bounded by Alton on the north, Belleville on the east, Chester on the south and Wright City on the west. Features include all towns, both incorporated and unincorporated; steam and electric railroad lines, golf clubs, airports, cemeteries, places of historical interest, emergency road service garages, streams, fishing and hunting clubs and parks.

FIRST CAMP-O-RAL OF BELLEVILLE SCOUTS

Will Be Held Next Saturday and Sunday at Bellevue Park.

The Belleville Boy Scout Council will hold its first Camp-O-Ral all-round scouting competition next Saturday and Sunday at Bellevue Park. About 15 troops in the area are expected to compete in the contests which will be held annually.

Eight scouts from each troop participating will pitch camp at 3:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon and then will prepare supper. Judges will grade them on their cookcraft ability, scoring on the basis of the appearance of the kitchen and the cleanliness, palatability and amount of waste of the food.

Other members of the troop, besides the original patrol, may participate in the remainder of contests which will be held Sunday from 1:15 o'clock to 4:30. These will be in wall scaling, signaling, fire by friction and by flint and steel, fire building and string burning, first aid, wood chopping, dressing, tent pitching, and in the game, skin-the-snake.

The first camp inspection will be at 6:30 p. m. Saturday. Two hours later each patrol will be called on to present a five-minute stunt around the campfire, after which "Call to Quarters" will sound. Reveille will be at 6:15 the next morning and at 9 church services will be held, after which the campers will prepare dinner. The Camp-O-Ral proper will be held Sunday afternoon, camp being broken at 4:30 o'clock. A final inspection then will be held and awards will be presented.

Troop Notes

South District.

Scouts H. Diehl, M. Sadorf and F. Kiebler finished in that order in the senior division of a track meet last Sunday in the course of a hike held by Troop 68, Mount Pleasant School, at Cedar Lake. Scouts C. Schultz, V. Dawson and C. Hahn led in the junior division. The troop also played indoor baseball and swam in the lake.

Scouts in Troop 247, Froebel School, won numerous awards and passed 13 merit badges during the fourth section of Camp Irondale which ended last Monday. The troop as a unit won the Honor Camp Troop designation and Scouts Milton Sparwasser, Karl Artman and Sebastian Hertling were named honor campers, and Scout Eldon Blust, satisfactory camper. James Kyle became a second-class Scout and Scouts Artman, Sparwasser, Blust, Leuenberg, Buelteman and Meyer and Scoutmaster Sparwasser became Junior Red Cross life savers.

Troop 39, Redeemer Church, will dedicate its new camp on Highway No. 61, one mile west of Imperial, Mo., on Sept. 18. The cabin and grounds will be known as Camp A. A., the initials of August Aufderheide, donor of the site and an honorary member of the troop. The cabin was constructed by the Scouts under supervision of H. T. Reim, chairman of the Troop Committee.

North District.

Eighteen merit badges, one second class and two first class badges were awarded at a court of honor held by Troop 147, Northwest Christian Church, Aug. 8. Scouts Ambrose Wilhite and Fred Bauer were each awarded seven badges, the remainder being won by Scouts John Kaminski, Virgil Wishmeyer, Robert Chesney and Raymond Spur. The troop orchestra, led by Robert Meyer, entertained at the session.

Suburban District.

About 100 persons attended a lawn party given last week for Webster Groves Troop 8, Emmanuel Episcopal Church, at the home of E. R. Kenner, father of one of the troop members.

Belleville Area.

Members of Troop 3, St. Mary's Church, will attend Camp Wangelin next week, leaving tomorrow morning and returning next Sunday.

Troop 6, Humboldt School, plans to spend today at Camp Wangelin instead of at Turner Park, as originally planned.

Field Commissioner William Thebus presented two gold seals as prizes for work during the months of June and July to Troop 8, Bunsen School, Aug. 5. A hike to Fort Chartres has been postponed to prevent confliction with the Camp-O-Ral, Saturday.

BROOKS IN REPORT FAVORS WIDENING THIRD ST. AT ONCE

Director of Streets and Sewers Would Not Let This Wait on Future River Front Project.

AGAIN OPPOSES ANGLE PARKING

Points to Necessity of Increasing Width of Oakland Avenue — Will Try to Get State to Pay for It.

Immediate widening of Third street downtown, without waiting opportunity to carry out the central river front development, is recommended by Director of Streets and Sewers Brooks in his annual report.

"This office has continually recommended immediate widening of Third street, between Vine and Walnut streets," he said. "While the proposed $50,000,000 river front improvement will eventually take care of this blighted district, the construction of a widened Third street will take care of our needs for several years to come. It would give unimpaired traffic circulation at the east end of such important streets as Market and Walnut on the south and Morgan and Franklin on the north."

Taking up other thoroughfare needs, the report continued: "Attention has been called in the past to the necessity of increasing the roadway width of Oakland avenue, between Skinker boulevard and Kingshighway. The present roadway is often saturated with traffic. When the new United States Highway No. 40 is constructed from Wentzville to Oakland and Skinker it will be absolutely necessary to have at least another 40 feet of paved road to the north of the street car tracks along Oakland. We have been negotiating with the State highway authorities to see if it is possible to have the State pay for this roadway."

Location of the new No. 40, a super highway, including the point of entrance to the city, is a matter of controversy between the State and property owners, now pending in court.

Angle Parking Attacked.

The Director called attention to the traffic mixup along the east edge of Forest Park, where a park road for passenger vehicles parallels Kingshighway. Brooks told of attempts to resurface the park drive for $100,000 and make it a southbound one-way thoroughfare and Kingshighway a northbound one-way artery. He said the State would be asked whether it could furnish financial aid.

Brooks renewed his attack on the angle parking permitted in Delmar boulevard, between Clara avenue and Hamilton boulevard, which takes up two traffic lanes and interferes with movement in the next two lanes. This causes traffic congestion and hazards, he declared, adding: "We have repeatedly introduced ordinances for the elimination of this angle parking without avail. We will again introduce an ordinance on this matter." Merchants in the vicinity favor angle parking for their customers.

It was thought the depression would bring about a reduction in the community's garbage, but instead there has been an increase, the report related, saying other cities had had the same experience. During the fiscal year 76,657 tons of garbage were collected, an increase of 13,933 tons over the previous year. The collection cost was $3.42 a ton, Brooks stated, a decrease of $1.26 from the year before. The hog-feeding contractor disposes of the garbage, charging the city 34½ cents a ton to take it away.

1047 Miles of Streets.

Brooks referred to the assertions of the Bureau of Municipal Research and others that the garbage collection cost could be reduced by substituting motor vehicles for mule-drawn wagons or by employing a private contractor. He said attempts to obtain motor equipment had been unsuccessful and that the private contract method was under consideration. If the latter is adopted, he went on, "it will enable us to settle once and for all, during the period of low prices, whether the city can actually save as much as expressed in the opinions of some of our citizens."

The city now has 1047.2 miles of streets, of which 736.07 miles are hard paved, 179.95 miles are soft paved and 131.18 are unpaved or dirt surfaced. During the fiscal year 30.72 miles of streets were constructed, including 9.86 miles repaved.

Assuming that hard street pavements will last 20 years, the city should build 50 miles of streets annually to keep pace with the needs, Brooks declared. He continued: "We will fall far below the average this year, due to the fact that property owners have vigorously protested against street paving for which tax bills would be issued against them. This deficit (of paving) must be made up if our street system is to progress with the vehicular traffic."

There are 1055.6 miles of sewers, which cost $43,174,631 to build, the report said. During the last fiscal year 10.06 miles of the system were built for $1,622,897. Harbor reports showed that 3,650,219 tons of river shipping arrived and departed from St. Louis during the fiscal year, an increase of 886,713 tons over the year before.

BANKRUPTCY ACTION AGAINST PAULE FUEL & MATERIAL CO.

Involuntary Petition Alleges Payment of Two Creditors in Full and Property Transfer.

An involuntary bankruptcy petition listing claims of $871 was filed yesterday in Federal Court against the Paule Fuel & Material Co., 7928 South Broadway, of which Arthur L. Paule, president, was appointed receiver by Circuit Judge Hall last month.

The Federal Court petition listed claims of $623 by United Collieries, Inc.; $133 by the Chicago, Wilmington & Franklin Coal Co., and $115 by the Coal Sales Corporation. They alleged acts of bankruptcy in paying two creditors in full and transferring property to Vernon R. Wells by chattel mortgage.

Wells, Paule's attorney, told a reporter that the mortgage was still in the possession of the concern and involved no transfer to him, but was made in an attempt to raise money to pay creditors. Remarking that the coal company, a $15,000 corporation, had been in business 50 years, he cited a balance sheet of July 13, listing $15,400 liabilities and $39,092 assets. Of the assets, he explained, $24,374 was in accounts receivable, and slow payment had made it difficult for the company to meet its obligations promptly.

TWO MEN RENT DESK SPACE IN FIRM, PASS BOGUS CHECKS

Drafts for $90 Honored Because Company's Name Is On Them; Police Seek Three.

Three men using the names of Fred B. Borden, T. C. Jenkins and Verne Weir are being sought by police on complaint of a merchant that two of them had passed worthless checks at his store. The men appeared in St. Louis the latter part of July, rented desk space in the offices of the St. Louis Automatic Sprinkler Co. and set themselves up as "Borden Associates."

On Aug. 13 Fred Leber of the Remley & Leber Market and Grocery Co., 524 Franklin avenue, cashed two checks totaling about $90 for Borden and Weir after they had made small purchases of meat. The checks were on the printed form of checks used by the St. Louis Automatic Sprinkler Co. Officers of the sprinkler company told police that Borden, Jenkins and Weir had no connection with that company and had departed, leaving their office rent unpaid. At the Banner Printing Co., police learned that Borden, described as having but one arm, had the checks printed there, using the sprinkler company's form.

The three men are said to own a Lincoln coupe in which they were seen riding in St. Louis. It bears an Ohio license. At an apartment Jenkins and Weir occupied with a woman it was said they left last Saturday, stating they were going to Kansas City.

Motor Line Seeks Rehearing.

JEFFERSON CITY, Aug. 20.—The Motor Transit Lines, Inc., applied to the State Public Service Commission today for a rehearing of its recent order denying the lines a permit to extend the Moberly-Excelsior Springs route into Kansas City.

ST. LOUIS DAY TUESDAY AT THE STATE FAIR

Delegation of 250 From City and County Expected to Make Trip.

A delegation of 250 persons, including civic officials of St. Louis and St. Louis County, political candidates and members of service organizations, will go to the Missouri State Fair at Sedalia Tuesday to celebrate "St. Louis-St. Louis County day."

Acting Mayor Neun, who will make the trip, has issued a proclamation urging citizens to attend the fair that day and to accompany the delegation, which will go on a special Missouri - Kansas - Texas train.

In the party will be Bennett C. Clark, Democratic nominee for United States Senator, and Henry W. Kiel, the Republican nominee; Congressman John J. Cochran and James J. Barrett, Republican nominee for Lieutenant-Governor. Lieutenant-Governor Edward H. Winter, Republican nominee for Governor, and Francis M. Wilson, Democratic nominee, are scheduled to be on a speakers' program with Clark and Kiel.

Organizations sponsoring the trip are the Chambers of Commerce of St. Louis, St. Louis County, University City and Wellston, the Hoo Hoo Club, Exchange Club, Town Club, Sales Managers' Bureau, Associated Retailers, Business Men's Association of South St. Louis, Merchants' Exchange, Advertising Club, Co-operative Club, Rotary clubs, Kiwannis clubs, Lions clubs, Optimists clubs and other groups.

The special train will leave Union Station at 8 a. m., arrived at Sedalia at 12:45 p. m., and returning at 6:30 p. m., will arrive in St. Louis at 11:15 o'clock. All-expense tickets, which include train fare, luncheon and dinner on the train, admission to the fairgrounds and grandstand, cost $8.75. Charles E. Williams is chairman of the Tour Committee.

FUNERAL OF WILLIAM HUNT

Plumbing Contractor, 65, Came to St. Louis From Canada.

Funeral services for William Hunt, 65 years old, a plumbing contractor here for 22 years, will be held at 2:30 p. m. tomorrow at Second United Presbyterian Church, Grand boulevard and Forest Park avenue, with interment in Oak Grove Mausoleum.

Mr. Hunt, who came to St. Louis from Canada 46 years ago, died of a complication of diseases Friday at his home, 4649 Magnolia avenue, after an illness of five months. He is survived by his widow, a son, two daughters, two brothers and a sister.

State Tests for Nurses.

The Missouri State Board of Nurse Examiners will hold examinations for graduate nurses Sept. 23 and 24 in St. Louis and Kansas City. Examinations for obstetrical nurses will be held Sept. 24 in both cities. Miss Jannett G. Flanagan, secretary of the board, Jefferson City, is receiving applications.

RINGLING BROS. CIRCUS COMING HERE SEPT. 3-5

1600 Persons and 1009 Menagerie Animals Said to Be in Show.

Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Circus, "biger and better" as usual, will show at the circus lot, Grand boulevard and Laclede avenue, Sept. 3 to 5.

Its promoters state that "the titan of super-circuses," traveling in four trains of double-car length, has this year 1600 in its personel, 1009 menagerie animals, 50 elephants, 700 horses and a herd of giraffes, the tallest ever exhibited.

Entertainment features include the Flying Codonas with Alfredo, triple somersault artist, the Concellos and Harolds, Tamara from Russia, Lucita Leers, the Wallendas, Albert Powell, the Rubio Sisters, Danwills, Yacopis, Hugony Sisters, all arcrobats; the Rieffenbach family of bareback riders, Maximo, slack wire comedian, and 100 clowns. The main performance takes place on seven rings and stages.

A new tribe of Ubangi savages from Africa, with lips the size of dinner plates, Bombayo, the man from India, and Hugo Zacchini, who is still being shot from cannons, are in the wonder contingent.

Performances will start at 2 p. m. and 8 p. m. daily, with doors open an hour before.

JOHN D. HAMILTON FUNERAL

Masonic Services for St. Louisan Active in Affairs of Lodge.

Masonic funeral services will be held at 2:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon for John D. Hamilton, 79 years old, who was active in Masonic affairs until his death Friday from pneumonia. The services will be held from his residence, 6100 Westminster place, with burial in Bellefontaine Cemetery.

Mr. Hamilton was a member of the St. Louis Masonic Board of Relief and past master of Occidental Lodge No. 163. Previous to his retirement from a teaming business a number of years ago, he was president of the Team Owners' Association. His widow, Mrs. Nellie Hamilton, survives.

Give Her a Home of Her Own

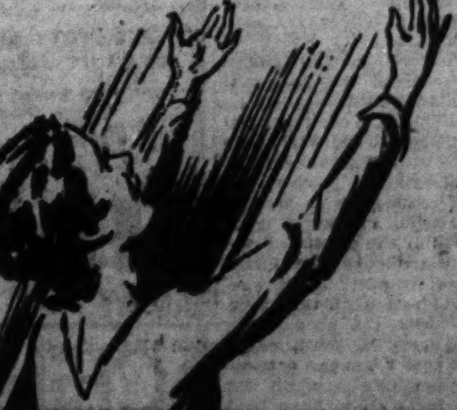
One of the fondest hopes of every wife is to own her own home some day.

With cares and pleasures crowding in upon her as years pass, this desire often becomes secondary, but every moving day brings it to the fore.

Under present easy financing plans, homes can be acquired on almost rental terms.

Many attractive properties, in sections where values are growing, are now offered to Post-Dispatch readers through the Classified Real Estate Columns.

Consult the lists, see the properties—make a selection—and give that wife of yours a home!



More
Real Estate and want ads are printed in the Post-Dispatch than appear in both other St. Louis newspapers combined, and the Post-Dispatch is first in St. Louis in the number of responsive want ad readers.

COURTMARTIAL CONVICTS FLYER; 10 YEARS FOR ROBBERY

Lieut. H. C. Lichtenberger Found Guilty of Holdup of Schertz (Tex.) State Bank.

By the Associated Press.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Aug. 20.—Lieut. Herbert C. Litchenberger, Randolph Field flying instructor, was convicted by an Army court martial here late today of robbery of the Schertz, (Tex.) State Bank Feb. 16, and was sentenced to 10 years' imprisonment.

The bank was robbed of $648.50. Lieut. Lichtenberger, who was arrested soon afterward, pleaded temporary insanity. Counsel said he was mentally unbalanced as a result of financial worries, illness of his wife and the excessive use of liquor.

URGES BUILDING MAIN POSTOFFICE ADDITION AT ONCE

Group of Business Leaders Here Send Brief to Postmaster-General Brown Outlining Need.

TWO BLOCKS OWNED BY GOVERNMENT

Low Construction Costs and City's Growing Requirements for Postal Service Are Cited.

A brief has been sent to Postmaster-General Brown and Secretary of the Treasury Mills by the Chamber of Commerce and the Industrial Club, urging immediate erection of the comprehensive addition to the main St. Louis Postoffice.

The big Federal relief bill passed last May appropriated $4,250,000 for the addition, but Congressman Cochran has expressed doubt that the money could be made available. However, this was in the category of work to be released only if the Secretary of the Treasury certified funds were available or could be obtained on reasonable terms. The administration has opposed expenditure of the items in this section.

Fourth Assistant Postmaster-General Philp has said there is a real need for the addition and that it would be erected as soon as possible.

The Government owns the site, consisting of the block bounded by Market, Eighteenth, Seventeenth and Walnut streets and a second block bounded by Market, Seventeenth and Moore streets and Clark avenue. The Postoffice now occupies a third block bounded by Walnut, Eighteenth, Seventeenth and Clark. The city has agreed to vacate Walnut, between Seventeenth and Eighteenth, and Seventeenth, between Market and Clark. Thus the enlarged Postoffice would occupy a large rectangle.

Cites Low Building Cost.

The brief of the chamber and the club requested that the building appropriation be released at once and construction started as quickly as possible. It went on:

"The added facilities are urgently needed for the physical operation of the Postoffice, are demanded to serve the needs of the public in the St. Louis area and are in the interest of governmental economy and good business. With construction costs at the present low levels, the improvement can be made now at less cost than will be possible at any future time. This construction will be in harmony with the provision of the (relief) bill, which directs that 'preference shall be given to places where Government facilities are housed in rented buildings.'

"The postoffice was designed in 1903, when (annual) postal receipts here were $3,111,491. Nine years passed before it was constructed, in which time the receipts had grown to $4,724,625, but the building was constructed on the 1903 plans. It was too small when completed and occupied in October, 1912. It contains 184,608 square feet of space—not enough to accommodate postal operations at the time it was completed, and within three months following its occupancy parcel post service was inaugurated and it was necessary to care for this tremendous increase in mail volume.

"The business jumped to $5,331,298, with no compensating increase in floor space or facilities. Today (for 1931) the receipts are $11,267,476. At their peak, in 1927, they were $13,395,679. There has been no permanent addition to the main building, the department resorting, as the mail volume increased, to the construction of temporary frame structures and to the rental of outside space.

Increase in Mail.

In 1912, said the brief, the postoffice handled 590,339,182 pieces of mail and last year it handled 988,711,840 pieces, an increase of 67 per cent. There were 1538 employes in 1912 and there are 2202 now, an increase of 43 per cent, counting clerks, carriers and laborers. The brief went on:

"Since 1912 the Government has spent $774,696 in rentals in St. Louis for facilities which should be a part of the main postoffice. In 1923 the department erected a temporary frame structure at the rear of the main building, adding 7040 square feet; in 1927 in added 2560 square feet to this structure. There is a parcel post annex rented, with 16,124 square feet. The building known as the terminal railway postoffice was rented in 1923, containing 33,600 square feet. A building for motor vehicle service, containing 62,500 square feet. was rented in 1922.

"Some reductions have lately been effected in rentals, but the total annual rentals are still large—$61,040 a year. This sum capitalized at 3½ per cent would be $1,743,913 and at 4 per cent it would be $1,526,00. Thus the rentals for makeshift, inadequate quarters equal the carrying charge of more than one-third of the estimated cost of constructing adequate facilities.

"This factor is particularly worthy of consideration at this time, as no doubt with the present low construction costs the addition can be built for less than the original estimate. Since this estimate was made labor rates alone have been reduced from 15 to 18 per cent."

It should be remembered, the brief said, that not only the business of St. Louis but the growing suburban area in St. Louis County is handled through the main postoffice, and that other services for an even greater area are centered in St. Louis. Population of St. Louis and its suburbs is increasing more than the average for cities of comparable size, it was pointed out. Postal accounting for a large area is conducted by an office here, for which there is no room in the main building. Assorting and redistribution of a heavy mail volume from the territory beyond St. Louis is done here. The volume of railway mail business here has increased about five times since 1912.

The brief concluded: "Since the postoffice was completed in 1912 the population of St. Louis and St. Louis County has grown 34 per cent; the city's business, as shown by bank debits, has more than doubled; its manufacturing activity has increased fourfold. Certainly it is time that the postoffice facilities were put on a basis consistent with these great growths, and particularly when this can be done at a cost not out of line with similar expenditures in other cities."

Princess Margaret Is 2 Today.

SAYS FARM BOARD COTTON IS NOT ENOUGH FOR RELIEF

Officer of Red Cross Points Out That 8,000,000 Persons Will Need Clothes.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20. — A statement that the 500,000 bales of Farm Board cotton turned over to the Red Cross would fall far short of meeting emergency clothing needs of the coming winter was issued today by James L. Fieser, vice-chairman of the relief agency.

Fieser pointed out that 1300 of the 3600 chapters had made emergency estimates showing a total of 8,000,000 men, women and children destitute for clothing.

"Expectations are far beyond the quantity which may be produced from the 500,000 bales," said Fieser. "It will not be possible to satisfy expectations, either as to variety or quantity of clothing.

"In fairness to our chapters and other social agencies who may have been led to place great dependence upon this gift of cotton to meet requirements of the needy in their communities for clothing, I feel the Red Cross should explain now how far the cotton is likely to go toward aiding in this emergency.

"Too great dependence upon it would undoubtedly stop the flow of contributions of other garments—and these contributions have been the mainstay in the past two winters. They will still be greatly needed."

Peter Lang, Actor, Dead at 65.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—Peter Lang, character actor, died early today in his sleep. He was 65 years old and had been on the stage 43 years. He began his career with a stock company in Portland, Me., in 1889, and had played in casts with Katherine Cornell, Mary Nash, James K. Hackett, and in several Frohman successes.

Mercolized Wax Keeps Skin Young

Do you know that just beneath that soiled, discolored, faded or aged complexion is one fair to look upon? Nature causes the normal skin to peel off in tiny, unseen, flour-like particles, a little each day, renewing the complexion of youth naturally, but there comes a time when this skin shedding slows up. Worry, overwork, sickness, inactivity are reasons that cause the face to be blotchy, discolored, and old looking. The thing to do, if you wish to look your prettiest at all times, is to assist nature in the process of absorption by using pure Mercolized Wax. Get an ounce at any drug store or beauty counter and use as directed. It gently but surely peels away the outer scarf skin, removing freckles, blackheads, oiliness or a muddy complexion. The underneath skin, then in evidence, is clear pink, fresh and velvety, and the entire face looks years younger.

Powdered Saxolite quickly reduces wrinkles and other age signs. Simply dissolve one ounce of Saxolite in one-half pint witch hazel and use as a face lotion.

OWNWARD TREND LOSES MOMENTUM

umber of Cities Show Gains Over May and Over June of Last Year—Minneapolis in Both Lists.

The total dollar volume of real ate mortgages recorded in the ncipal urban centers of the coun- in June showed a slight decline m figures of the previous nth, 38 metropolitan districts re- ting $123,110,039, according to monthly compilation by Nelson, nt & Co. of Chicago.

Tabulation of reports from 36 tricts, on which comparative is available, comprising more one-half of the urban popu- ion of the country, covered in survey, gave a total of $119,- ,153 in real estate mortgages d in June as compared to a to- of $125,399,037 for May, a nthly average of $128,667,200 the first six months of the cur- t year, and a total of $212,- ,087 for June, 1931.

ownward Trend Losing Force.

e figures compiled show a e decline of 5 per cent from y and approximately 44 per cent m June, 1931, whereas the June line from the six-month average the current year was only 7 per t. Such a comparison, states the lson, Hunt & Co. survey, while avorable from the standpoint of inished monthly volume of rtgages recorded, is distinctly orable in other respects, partic- arly in that the downward trend the past three years, as evi- nced by sharp month to month riations and declines, is rapidly ing momentum and approaching plane of stabilized—if low—ac- ity, from which point a gradual rn to normal activity can be pected.

Thirteen of the reporting cities piled in the survey reported a er volume of real estate mort- es in June than in the previous th of May, and three reported eases over June, 1931.

Cities With Increases.

Cities showing a gain in the total mortgages filed in June over the e month a year ago were Bos- , Hartford and Minneapolis.

Cities showing gain over the May als were Buffalo, Chicago, Cleve- d, Grand Rapids, Greenwich, nsas City, Kan., Los Angeles, neapolis, New Britain, New (all boroughs), White Plains estchester County, N. Y.), Ro- ster, Waterbury.

Cities showing an increase of re than $500,000 in June over y, and the increases shown, were York (all boroughs), $5,770,- ; Chicago, $4,300,000; Cleve- d, $1,386,000; Los Angeles, $4,- ,000; Minneapolis, $560,000; ffalo, N. Y., $527,000.

LAWS IN INTEREST OF REALTY OWNERS

New U. S. Income Tax Provision—Alabama and Michigan Consider Legislation.

At the initiative of the National Association of Real Estate Boards the last Congress passed a law which definitely secures to the taxpayer the privilege of adding taxes and other carrying charges to the cost of vacant or non-income producing real estate, for the purpose of computing the gain or loss on the sale in the making of income tax returns. This law reverses the Internal Revenue Department's interpretation of the law, and a decision of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, Aug. 6, 1931, sustaining the department in denying to a real estate firm, in a test case, the privilege of capitalizing carrying charges.

The Alabama Real Estate Association of Real Estate Boards, in its recent annual convention has adopted the following program for tax action in that state. A. For immediate action: 1. That taxes be paid in installments. 2. That tax redemptions be made in installments. 3. That the fee system be abolished wherever it exceeds whatever would be the equivalent of a reasonable fixed compensation. 4. That real estate, city and county, be relieved of both direct and ad valorem taxes for paving.

B. As fundamental proposals: (1) Consolidation of the 67 counties of the State into a number of districts not exceeding the present number of congressional districts, with savings in salaries. (2) Segregation of various tax sources on the Virginia plan into those subject to State taxes only, those subject to local taxes only. Real estate would be made subject to local taxation only. (3) Placing of all roads under State control, with a primary and a secondary State system, financed by motor vehicle and gasoline taxes, these taxes to be devoted exclusively to such use, including use for paving in cities and towns.

Michigan will vote this fall on three amendments to the Constitution of the State affecting real estate taxpayers. They are: (1) To exempt from assessment up to $3000 all homes in which owners live. (2) To provide self-assessment for all property on a cash selling-price basis, fixed by the owner. (3) To limit levies on property to $15 for all purposes, as now provided in Ohio State's constitution.

The self-assessment plan would become operative next year if approved by the voters in the November election. The other two provisions would not go into effect until present indebtedness is paid. Under the self-assessment provision the owner, if dissatisfied with an assessment, may put a price on his property at which he would be willing to sell for cash. If within 30 days a buyer appears for it at that price, he must sell. Otherwise the amount becomes the assessed value of the property.

JULY BUILDING PERMITS IN U. S. $32,506,956

Represents Decline of 14.3 Per Cent From Figure of Previous Month.

Building permits in 559 cities and towns of the United States during the month of July, 1932, amounted to $32,506,956, according to official reports made to S. W. Strauss & Co. This figure represents a 14.2 per cent decline from June, 1932, when the volume for these cities was $37,901,513, as compared with a normal seasonal expected decline of 13.1 per cent. Permits issued during July, 1932, fell 72.3 per cent below the same month of 1931.

The 25 cities, as a group, reporting the largest volume of permits for July, show an increase of 16.5 per cent over June, 1932, a decline of 69.3 per cent from July 1931, and a decline of 80.8 per cent from July, 1930.

Six of these cities made individual gains over July, 1931; Milwaukee, Buffalo, Des Moines, Louisville, Union City and Salem.

Five cities registered advances over July, 1930: Des Moines, New Haven, Louisville, Union City and Salem.

NEW HOME LOAN BANK BOARD OUTLINES PLANS

Speed Promised in Beginning Operation of Federal Relief System.

With the appointment by President Hoover Aug. 6 of the five men who will make up the new Federal Home Loan Bank Board, and the formal organization of the board Aug. 9, all speed possible is promised in putting into operation the new system of home loan banks provided by the Seventy-second Congress.

Temporary headquarters of the board are in the new Commerce Building, Washington. The first task is determination of the exact number of banks to be established and their location. Practically every large city in the country and hundreds of smaller cities have asked to have a bank in the community, Franklin W. Fort, chairman of the new board, says the home loan districts may not coincide with the Federal Reserve districts, since the act under which they will be created prohibits division of states.

A changed psychology respecting home mortgage loans has already taken place since and because of the enactment of the Home Loan Bank act, Fort declared in a statement following the board's first meeting. He said that for the first time in history such loans are now liquid in character, provided, of course, that they fall within the provisions of the new law as to discountability with the banks soon to be created.

Debentures of the new Home Loan banks which will be offered to the public as a means of supplementing the capital of the banks will, he said, be among the highest type available for the investor, because, by the provisions of the act, restrictions are placed about the security that obtain nowhere else.

The board, on whose work much of the shaping of the new system depends, is made up as follows: (Act states that each shall devote entire time to board's work): Fort, Republican, Newark, N. J., chairman; Nathan Adams, Democrat, Dallas, Tex.; William E. Best, Republican, Pittsburgh, Pa.; H. Morton Bodfish, Democrat, Chicago, Ill., and Dr. John M. Gries, Republican, Rosewood, O.

Their previous activities follow:

Fort: Member of Sixty-ninth, Seventieth and Seventy-first Congress. President, Lincoln National Bank, Newark. Head of several insurance companies.

Adams: President of the First National Bank of Dallas, vice-president United States Chamber of Commerce. Director Southwestern Life Insurance Co.

Best: Attorney. President this year of United States Building and Loan League.

Bodfish: Executive manager of the League.

Dr. Gries: Secretary of the President's Conference on Home Building and Home Ownership. Chief of the Division of Building and Housing, United States Department of Commerce, 1921-1928.

MR. AND MRS. JAMES HYLAND AND SONS.

We wish to extend our sincere thanks and appreciation for the kind expressions of sympathy and beautiful floral offerings tendered us at the time of our sad bereavement in the loss of our dear mother. We wish to especially thank Rev. Krafft for his consoling words, Mr. Charles Drehman for his beautiful songs; also the Drehman-Harral Undertaking Co.
BOKERMANN FAMILY. (c)

I wish to acknowledge with sincere thanks to all friends for their expressions of sympathy to me in my sad bereavement in the death of my dear son, Virgil Williams, for the donations, beautiful floral offerings, pallbearers, Rev. Ben Pemberton and the undertakers, Cullen & Kelley.
Mother, MRS. M. WILLIAMS.

IN MEMORIAM

BANE, GLADYS—In loving memory of Gladys Bane, who departed this life Aug. 22, 1930:
Time speeds on,
Two years have passed since death—
Its gloom, its shadows cast within our home
Where all seemed bright,
And took from us a shining light.
We miss that light and ever will;
Her vacant place there's none to fill.
Down here we mourn but not in vain,
For up in heaven we will meet again.
Sadly missed by
MOTHER AND FATHER. (c)

BOGGIANO, CATHERINE MAURINE (TOOTS) (nee Bradbury)—In loving memory of Catherine Maurine (Toots) Boggiano, who died Aug. 21, 1929.
There is a link death cannot sever,
Love and remembrance last forever.
Sadly missed by all who loved her (c)

BROCKMAN—In loving memory of my dear husband, William H. Brockman, who died Aug. 21, 1929.
Sadly missed by
HIS WIFE, LIZZIE BROCKMAN.

FARRIS, HOMER N.—In loving remembrance of Homer N. Farris, who passed away Aug. 22, 1931.
WIFE AND DAUGHTER. (c)

GLUSENKAMP, IDA — Died Aug. 20, 1928.
Deep in our hearts you are fondly remembered,
Sweet, happy memories cling 'round your name;
True hearts that loved you with deepest affection
Always will love you in death just the same.
From HUSBAND AND CHILDREN. (c)

IN MEMORIAM

GUIBOR, HENRY L.—In sad memory of Henry L. Guibor, died Aug. 22, 1931:
One year has passed since that sad day,
When the one I loved was called away;
God took him home, it was His will;
Within my heart he liveth still.
Sadly missed by his wife,
LULU GUIBOR.

HELGE, FRED J.—In loving memory of my dear husband and our dear father, who departed this life Aug. 24, 1930.
Sadly missed by WIFE AND FAMILY.

LUCAE—In loving memory of our husband and father, Edward William Lucae, who departed this life Sept. 11, 1931.
He bade no one a last farewell,
He said good-by to no one;
Sad and sorrowful was the call
Our dear husband and daddy, loved by all.
The shock was great, the pain severe,
He did not know that death was near;
His loving heart had ceased to beat
And before we knew, he had gone to sleep.
Sadly missed by
WIFE AND DAUGHTER.

SINNWELL—In loving memory of my dear daughter, Blanche Sinnwell (nee Andrew), who departed this life, Aug. 21, 1916.
Sadly missed by HER MOTHER.

TOREY—In memory of Joseph Torey Jr., died June 6, 1930. Emma Torey, mother, died Aug. 19, 1931.
Sadly missed by HUSBAND, CHILDREN AND GRANDCHILDREN.

VOGEL—In memory of Christopher Vogel, who died Aug. 21, 1929:
You suffered days, yes days of pain
And waited for cures but in vain
Till God alone knew what was best
And took you home to peace and rest.
Sadly missed by
WIFE AND CHILDREN.

SALESMEN WANTED

SALESMEN

AND MEN WHO ARE QUALIFIED TO LEARN HOW TO SUCCESSFULLY REPRESENT THIS COMPANY.

This announcement is conscientiously intended to state, with candor that is selective in effect, the nature of a permanent opportunity for substantial cash incomes for men who are reputable, active and adaptable to this kind of work.

Our business is more active and more successful right now than ever in its history since it was started in 1924 in this country—and the world sales of our new product so far this year have been greater than any year since the first of our present type products was sold in 1919. That is a record that challenges attention and states a condition of opportunity which should appeal to the kind of man we can use.

We are not looking for the man who is after something easy. We want to contact the man who deserves to make money, who needs money, and who will get right in and master this work and get a kick out of doing it in a big way. This is sales work—not order taking—it must be studied and learned—and a man must be able to successfully meet people and win confidence for a clean, straightforward business.

This is a business where diligent, conscientious effort is unfailingly rewarded with increases, month after month. For example, H. A. Davison earned $1007.00 his first six months with us, $1501.00 the next 6 months, $2054.00 the next 6 months. Thus he averaged $38.00 per week his first 6 months, as compared with his former salary of $25.00 per week in office work. Then his average weekly earnings were $57.00, then $79.00 per week, including time lost due to illness and vacations. In recent months, he has been averaging well over $175.00 per week regularly.

Another man, H. M. Kutz, earned $1406.73 his first six months in this work, and $4,529.39 the second six months. In other words, he averaged $54.00 per week his first six months, raising this to $176.00 per week his second six months, and to a still higher figure this year, illustrating how earnings increase as experience is gained and properly applied.

In our offices are many men, throughout the entire country, now earning two, three and four times as much as they ever made in banking, real estate, accounting, selling, mechanical work, etc.—direct examples to men who are seeking genuine, available, present opportunity in worthwhile endeavor.

Thus, Martin Gilbert, who for a recent week's work earned $90.00, was formerly a bookkeeper; F. J. Pearce, who earned $115.00 that same week, was formerly a steam-fitter; Anton Bressler, who earned $70.00 that week, was formerly a mechanic; Paul Kelly, who earned $115.00 that week, was formerly a student; Robert Lovgren, who made $135.00, was formerly a mechanic.

If you would like to join such a business, if you are qualified to make a successful place for yourself in this going enterprise, and if you can get along on modest earnings, the first month or two, if necessary, while learning, come in for interview, Monday morning, and prepare to make money in August. We will employ a limited few qualifying men at once.

For positions available at our St. Louis office, apply Monday morning, 9 to 12. Also 1 to 4, at 561-564 Paul Brown Bldg., 9th and Olive streets.

This unusual business opportunity is backed entirely by Electrolux, Inc., now introducing and manufacturing in this country a new mechanical specialty (not refrigeration) with amazing success.

"Internationalism" Merely Mea

HENRY KITTREDGE NORTON, author of th
lows, is a writer and lecturer of internat matters of political economy. He has tak ber of conferences to consider problems of the pr traveled extensively in Europe and Asia. The pap below was an address delivered at the Institute of town, Mass., about a week ago, during a general Disintegration of the Modern World Order."

By Henry Kittredge Norton

LIFE has been on the earth, so it is calculated, for at least 240,000 years, and we may assume for the moment that it will be here that much longer. That makes 480,000 years.

Now, let us consider all of that time as one day of 24 hours, and that we are now at noon of that period. We have no human record whatever before 20 minutes of 11. The Golden Age of Greece happened six minutes ago; the steam engine was invented about 30 seconds ago. All of this modern industrialism and democracy of the moment has happened in the last 15 seconds. In fact, the part which is now pointed to as most dangerous, mass production, demanding a world-wide market, is a matter of the last two or three seconds.

Now then, if the tempo of humankind has increased in that proportion, and we have already, in three seconds since the arrival of mass production, filled up the national borders, of what use is it to extend to a world-wide area these same forces, with the knowledge that within a very few "minutes," if not a few "seconds," they will be breaking down those very barriers and, having no place else to go, except possibly to the planetary system, we shall be faced with the disintegration of the world order again?

That seems, to me, a black outlook. We must at least cast about before we get to this desperate end, to see if there is not some other solution possible.

Why "Inter-Dependent?"

At the risk of being declared unredeemably heretical I venture to question two of the major assumptions of those who advocate the establishment of some new form of world political organization to meet the demands of what they designate the new world economic order. I am not at the moment arguing against "international co-operation" or for "American isolation" in the sense usually given to these phrases. Nations will continue to co-operate as in the past whenever it is to their advantage to do so. But before we join in an undefined "world solidarity," I think we should examine the basic assumptions and appraise somewhat objectively the aims and purposes of this line of reasining.

The first of these assumptions is that the peoples of the world have become so interdependent that they no longer continue in the enjoyment of "life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness" without submitting themselves to an enlarged measure of supernational control. This idea of a new interdependence is bolstered by all of the evidence which symbolizes the shrinking of the world in modern times—railway trains, steamships, motor cars, airplanes, cables, radios, etc.—the ramifications of international trade and finance. Because my morning coffee comes from Brazil, the tires of my motor from the Malay Peninsula, my afternoon tea from China, and my wife's silk stockings from Japan, therefore, I am supposed to have achieved a new kind of "interdependence."

The second assumption is that because Brazil, Malaya, China, Japan and ourselves do business with each other, therefore it is necessary to set up some political organization which would include Brazil, Malaya, China, Japan, and ourselves in order that we may properly control our economic activities.

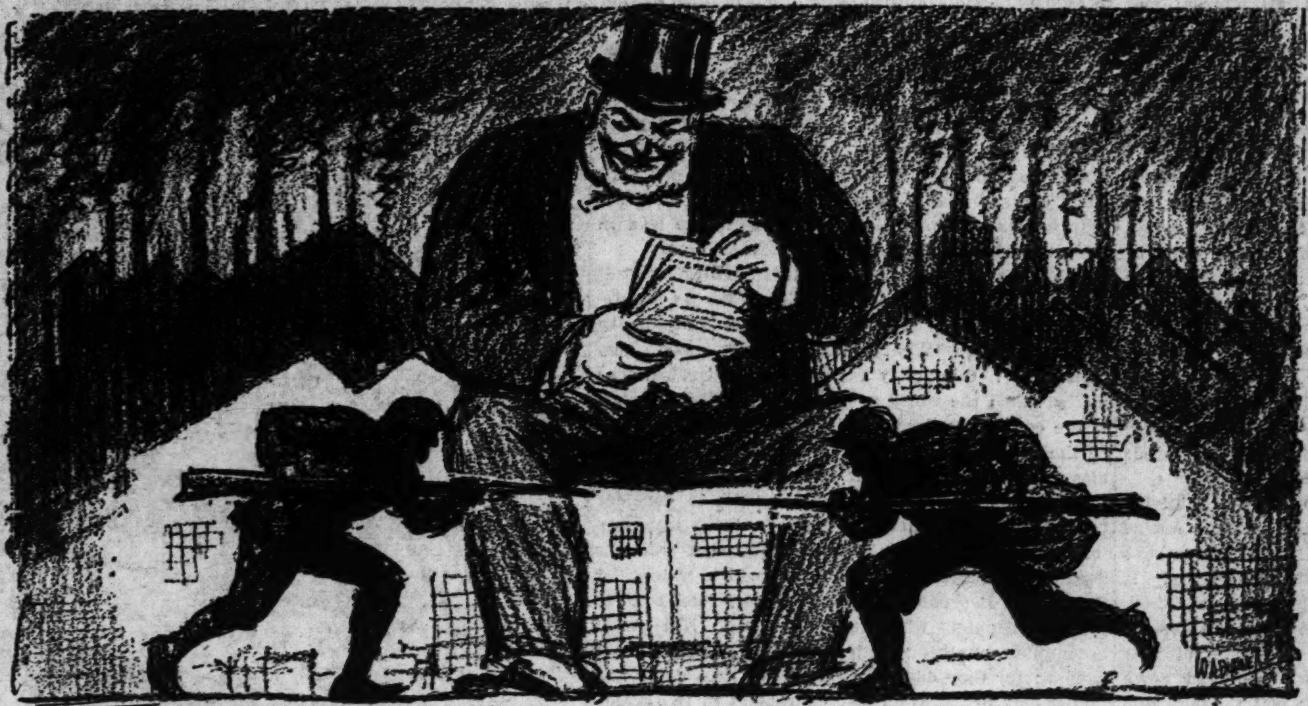
Armament Trade Biggest Racket Of All, Geneva Documents Show

Huge Profits an Obstacle to Cuts in War Budgets



Abolition of Private Manufacture of Machines of Destruction Is Now Urged as the Best Method of Curbing Conflicts Between Nations—Larger Countries Backward in Adopting This Viewpoint.

By ALBIN E. JOHNSON.

GENEVA, Switzerland.

REVELATIONS tending to show that the private armaments trade, especially in Europe, is an "international racket" and one of the greatest obstacles to disarmament and the reduction of the $5,000,000,000 annual burden that excessive armaments places upon the world's taxpayers, are made in documents which were submitted this summer to the Geneva Disarmament Conference delegations. As a result a powerful drive is getting under way to bring about the abolition of the private manufacture and trade in death-dealing war machines, and to put the industry under Government ownership and control in the various states where it is established.

The armaments industry, it appears, knows no nationality or frontiers, nor has it any political or national prejudices. To it all governments and peoples are friendly in proportion to their ability to become its customers. At the present moment, as in the past, its sole aim is the promotion of trade in armaments, and to attain this end it "disseminates warlike atmosphere among peoples, influences the European press and the public through press campaigns and the magnifying of diplomatic incidents until they become international disputes," according to Leon Jouhaux, French Liberal leader and a "minority" delegate to the Geneva conference.

Accusers of High Station.

Direct and serious charges against the industry are made by such internationalists as Viscount Cecil, Sir Austen Chamberlain, Henri Rolin and Senator Louis de Brouckere of Belgium and others. They claim that the armaments interests of Europe had "a great deal to do with the development of the present war in Manchuria" and that it is "so all-powerful that practically nothing about the international trade in armaments is allowed to leak out, for if it did the scales would fall from the eyes of nations."

While, at Geneva, Ramsay MacDonald, Paul-Boncour, Edouard Benes and other members of the League's Council and Assembly were seeking by every peaceful means to halt the Japanese attack upon China, both in Manchuria and at Shanghai, French, British, Swiss, Czecho-Slovak and even German armaments firms were working overtime on munitions orders for both countries—especially Japan, it is revealed. The British Foreign Office officially admits that the Board of Trade, between November and April, issued licenses to British firms to export 10,000,000 cartridges and many machine guns to both Japan and China.

But what is more striking is that Czecho-Slovakian armaments firms—the Skoda Works—recently sent to Hungary by devious routes 4000 machine guns and 125,000 infantry rifles. Hungary is Czecho-Slovakia's bitterest foe, Hungarian boys and girls by tens of thousands every day turning their faces toward their "lost provinces" which were given the Czechs by the Trianon treaty, and repeating fervently. "Nem! Nem! Saha—No! No! Never!"

It is also shown that even despite the economic depression, shares in European armaments firms (Hotchkiss Machine Gun, Schneider-Creusot, Skoda Works and several others) have been practically unaffected. The Hotchkiss firm has repaid its share capital three times over since 1914 and, in addition, paid huge dividends for many years.

Expenditures of Billions.

According to the League's Armaments Yearbook considerably more than $37,500,000,000 has been spent on armaments by various states in the past 10 years. Of this amount at least $8,250,000,000 has gone exclusively for war material such as guns, cartridges, explosives, etc. The profits on war material alone according to authoritative statistics, are between 200 per cent and 300 per cent, after production costs have been paid.

Ambassador Hugh Gibson, head of the American delegation, speaking to the disarmament conference, estimated the cost of a heavy tank at $45,000 and a heavy mobile gun at $450,000. According to armaments experts, manufacturers would make a fair profit if they charged only $18,000 and $180,000 respectively for these machines. Their complete abolition is demanded in the first American proposal put before the Geneva conference. If the excessive profits were taken out of the private armaments industry existing frontiers could still be fortified as effectively as they are now at a saving of $3,750,000,000—were the scrapping of heavy offensive arms agreed upon.

The most striking evidence produced, however, is from official documents on the World War. A few of the charges, aired before conference delegations are:

"German war industries, during the war exported hundreds of thousands of tons of iron through Switzerland to France and Italy where it was made into bombs, barbed wire, etc., and used against German soldiers.

"French firms sent entire trainloads of carbon bisulphide to Germany via Switzerland (through the firm of Stoltzenberg) because the Germans paid 10 times as much for it as was received from the Allies. French carbon bisulphide was used for the manufacture of phosgene gas by which thousands of Allied soldiers were suffocated.

Krupp's Many Customers.

"Krupps, according to their official records, sold munitions to 52 different countries. Exports were chiefly to Russia and hundreds of thousands of German soldiers were casualties during the war of cannon and rifles they themselves had manufactured in the Krupp and Gontard-Mauser factories.

"The French Government has lent 40,000,000,000 gold francs (10 billion dollars) mainly for the purposes of financing foreign orders for munitions given to the French firm of Schneider-Creusot.

"Fifty thousand tons of iron, used as material for civilian industry—rails, tools, agricultural machinery, etc.—bring in a return of approximately $10,000,000; converted into war material—armor plating, guns, cartridges, rifles, bombs, etc.—they bring in 40 millions. The per-ton cost of manufacturing artillery is 25 times that of locomotives."

Abolition of the private manufacture of armaments, which has been advocated energetically ever since Woodrow Wilson incorporated the idea in his world peace program in 1918, has made little progress because of the closely knit organization of war industries. The inter-relation of these industries internationally probably explains why they can make such huge profits. For example, Sir Basil Zaharoff, a Levantine Greek who dominated the French and British (and allegedly the Krupp and Skoda firms) munitions industries, is known to have been largely instrumental in fomenting the Greek-Turkish, the Russo-Japanese and the Boer wars, profiting through sales of armaments to all sides.

The Civil War which has ravaged China for the last 15 years has also been made possible through the intriguing of European armaments interests, it is charged.

World-Wide Understandings.

"It is becoming ever clearer," says the Disarmament Review, "that today, as before the war, the armaments firms of various countries with their exchange of patents and specialists, with their financing of holding companies, and—still more—their price and sales agreements, are more closely bound together internationally than the organizations which profess internationalism and peace."

If profits are taken out of war (in the last war it cost between $23,000 and $30,000 to kill a soldier, of which a considerable sum was clear profit to armaments firms) the biggest argument for heavy armaments will be removed, experts argue. Likewise much of the organized opposition to disarmament will disappear. At this writing, however, there are less than a dozen countries ready to agree to complete suppression of private manufacture of war materials (armaments) and among them are not to be found any of the states, including the United States, in which armaments industries flourish.

Home Is Nation's Best Market; Ending Tariffs Will Not Bring World Trade, Says Economist

Henry Kittredge Norton Points Out That "Internationalism" Merely Means Greater Competition and Constant Lessening of Wages to Meet It.

HENRY KITTREDGE NORTON, author of the article which follows, is a writer and lecturer of international reputation on matters of political economy. He has taken part in a number of conferences to consider problems of the present day and has traveled extensively in Europe and Asia. The paper which is printed below was an address delivered at the Institute of Politics, Williamstown, Mass., about a week ago, during a general discussion on "The Disintegration of the Modern World Order."

By Henry Kittredge Norton

LIFE has been on the earth, so it is calculated, for at least 240,000 years, and we may assume for the moment that it will be here that much longer. That makes 480,000 years.

Now, let us consider all of that time as one day of 24 hours, and that we are now at noon of that period. We have no human record whatever before 20 minutes of 11. The Golden Age of Greece happened six minutes ago; the steam engine was invented about 30 seconds ago. All of this modern industrialism and democracy of the moment has happened in the last 15 seconds. In fact, the part which is now pointed to as most dangerous, mass production, demanding a world-wide market, is a matter of the last two or three seconds.

Now then, if the tempo of humankind has increased in that proportion, and we have already, in three seconds since the arrival of mass production, filled up the national borders, of what use is it to extend to a world-wide area these same forces, with the knowledge that within a very few "minutes," if not a few "seconds," they will be breaking down those very barriers and, having no place else to go, except possibly to the planetary system, we shall be faced with the disintegration of the world order again?

That seems, to me, a black outlook. We must at least cast about before we get to this desperate end, to see if there is not some other solution possible.

Why "Inter-Dependent?"

At the risk of being declared unredeemably heretical I venture to question two of the major assumptions of those who advocate the establishment of some new form of world political organization to meet the demands of what they designate the new world economic order. I am not at the moment arguing against "international co-operation" or for "American isolation" in the sense usually given to these phrases. Nations will continue to co-operate as in the past whenever it is to their advantage to do so. But before we join in an undefined "world solidarity," I think we should examine the basic assumptions and appraise somewhat objectively the aims and purposes of this line of reasining.

The first of these assumptions is that the peoples of the world have become so interdependent that they no longer continue in the enjoyment of "life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness" without submitting themselves to an enlarged measure of supernational control. This idea of a new interdependence is bolstered by all of the evidence which symbolizes the shrinking of the world in modern times—railway trains, steamships, motor cars, airplanes, cables, radios, etc.—the ramifications of international trade and finance. Because my morning coffee comes from Brazil, the tires of my motor from the Malay Peninsula, my afternoon tea from China, and my wife's silk stockings from Japan, therefore, I am supposed to have achieved a new kind of "interdependence."

The second assumption is that because Brazil, Malaya, China, Japan and ourselves do business with each other, therefore it is necessary to set up some political organization which would include Brazil, Malaya, China, Japan, and ourselves in order that we may properly control our economic activities.

The second assumption rests entirely upon the first. Except for the supposed need for an international political organization, I take it there would be no urgent demand for it. The world rarely sets up political organizations for purely decorative purposes. The second assumption therefore falls of its own weight, unless the first assumption can be validated.

Reason for World Trade.

Let us then examine the claim that the peoples of the world have in the last few years reached a new degree of interdependence so different in degree from anything they have experienced before that it is essentially a difference in kind. A hasty glance at bits of evidence from times long past raises a doubt on this point.

The Phoenicians braved the dangers of the seas beyond the Straits of Gibraltar to fetch tin from Cornwall. The wealthy Romans of Caesar's day were dependent upon China for their silken gowns. America was discovered because of the interdependence of Europe and the Indies. Medieval Europe was unacquainted with the services of the mechanical refrigerator, and as a consequence its meats were ofttimes over-tasty. Spice from the Indies made its meals more palatable. When the advancing Mohammedans cut across the land routes between Europe and the Indies, the sea-going nations began searching for sea routes to the spice islands of the East. Magellan doubled the Cape of Good Hope and Columbus went westward.

There was interdependence with a vengeance. If Europe had not been so dependent upon the spice islands in the fifteenth century, America might not have been discovered, and Europe might have been spared all the disconcerting consequences.

More recently in our colonial times we shipped raw materials to England and received in return manufactured goods we were not equipped to make on our own side of the Atlantic. Certainly England and the United States were as dependent upon each other then as they are now, and I have no doubt that there were good Englishmen in those days who argued that unless that political structure was kept co-existent with the economic structure a disintegration of the world order would follow.

Calls Theory a Fallacy.

But after all, the question is not whether we are more interdependent than at some former time, or less so. The question is whether the peoples of the world are now so interdependent that it is necessary for their future well-being to set up some political structure co-extensive with the world's economic structure.

The affirmative answer to this question seems to me to rest upon a fallacy similar to those which have so frequently destroyed the peace and enjoyment of mankind. That fallacy is that because a certain sequence of events has happened in the past that it will continue to happen invariably in the future. In our search for security or ideas, in our desire to avoid the difficult task of thinking, we are prone to let events, ideas, interpretations, purposes and methods form grooves in our minds and try to make a dynamic and vibrant life run forever in those grooves.

In the smaller affairs of life we are more pliant. If we start out in a motor car on a road running east and the road turns to the south, we accept the inevitable and turn with it. But in economic or political affairs, if we start going in one direction, that direction becomes a principle, a faith, a dogma, or a moral ideal, and we insist upon driving straight on in the given direction, even though it leads us over curbs, rocks, ditches, and deep into a morass—such as the economic and political dismal swamp in which we now find ourselves.

I am going to put before you the reasons that I believe we are doing something of that kind at the present moment.

In the infancy of industrialism there was a very obvious principle involved. The producer hired his labor from the non-possessing classes at the lowest wage which he could persuade them to accept, and he sold his products to the owners of the land, the soil, the mines, the forests, the propertied classes, the economic aristocracy,

Enmity in Europe for America Is Just a Myth, Mussolini Says; Has Plan for Economic Recovery

Italian Premier Believes Restoration of Gold Standard Is Essential, and Also Removal of Tariffs and Other Trade Barriers.

By BENITO MUSSOLINI.
Premier of Italy.

ROME, Aug. 20.

OF all the conferences held during the period of the peace treaties, namely from 1919 to the present—and they have been exceedingly numerous—the Lausanne conference is undoubtedly the one which has achieved most practical results.

However, even Lausanne was lacking the courage to dive to the rock bottom of the question, at least as regards European problems. But it cannot be denied that an important lap in the race toward a common ideal has been won.

On the other hand, the Geneva conference has closed, in my opinion, with a distinctly negative balance, ending, as it did, in the superficial and equivocal Benes declaration which was the result of underhand agreements and an anti-disarmament plot by that group of Powers captained by France.

It is proposed to hold a third conference in this year of 1932 in London, but I for one make most ample reservations as to its probable results, despite the promised participation of the United States. These joint efforts, if accomplished in perfect good faith, should place the sick world well on the way to economic convalescence.

I say "the world," not only Europe. This magnificent work of united effort and solidarity cannot be put through successfully without the whole-hearted co-operation and good will of the United States.

Enmity Tales Rubbish.

The idea that as a result of recent decisions some of the principal states of Europe are bound together in a sort of aggressive and united front against America is pure rubbish, the nightmare dreams of minds rendered morbid by chronic suspicions.

Rather I should say that the contrary is the case. In fact, since the World War the group of European states have agreed to invite the great trans-oceanic power to help work for general reconstruction in a spirit of friendly cordiality and human and social good will.

It is thus fully recognized that the United States, a nation so young but already so powerful, possesses full right to wield authority, advice, and direct intervention in a conference met to discuss the immediate future of our civilization.

America cannot shut her eyes to the fact that the very life or total wreck of Western civilization are grave responsibilities or threats directly concerning her own future, in fact, her own future in the first place. This was the reason that prompted America to participate in the armed conflict of the World War and in the same way, but in a peaceful, conciliatory spirit, she will undoubtedly contribute towards solution of the economic conflict.

The word "reparations" has been definitely eliminated from international negotiations. We have reached a more "breathable atmosphere" after having removed one of the most obnoxious obstacles in the international field. It has taken 10 years of laborious study to bring the nations and the Governments of Europe to a decision which in all probability they would never have taken had Europe not found herself with her back against the wall.

Evils of Reparations.

As the best solution for the reparations problem I proposed in London in 1922 a "clean slate" policy, since continual recurrence of the problem in its various aspects could not but retard re-establishment for cordial international relations and delay the world's post-war adjustment. The years which have since elapsed have proved to what extent international instability has been caused by reparations. Too much suffering had been borne by every country and when human resistance seemed to have reached its utmost limit of endurance the agreement reached at Lausanne canceled all reparations.

Facts have shown what unexpected complications may arise from a solution which should be most simple and logical. The present world crisis with closed factories, the failures of banks, and half-starved children amply proves we are not well equipped for the difficult art of guessing the future.

We were told production would be stimulated by means of new systems and up-to-date methods in all branches of human activity, which would notably increase individual and collective wealth, thereby enabling debtors to pay off creditors with ever increasing facility. Quite the contrary, unfortunately, has been the case. As the years went by we found that payment of debts, instead of being facilitated, became daily more and more difficult. It cannot be denied every effort was made to adopt new systems and new methods, but even when they succeeded it was impossible to place increased production.

The economic world was stricken with dyspepsia. It could no longer breathe and its lungs were irresponsive to the vital flame.

Many years, a sad decennial of years, have been needed to teach us the tragic lesson that a great nation dragged to edge of failure will very probably drag other nations into the abyss. When great disasters occurred in the Danubian states they passed almost unobserved, but, nevertheless, they have dealt a formidable blow to the whole of Europe which did not react to the train of these misfortunes. It is essential that international exchange of merchandise and monetary values be placed on a basis of sane equilibrium.

Lausanne a Milestone.

The first step in this direction has already been made. Lausanne was the first milestone. We must now give fresh impulse to commerce and industries. We have now cleansed the machinery of obstacles which impeded its working and nothing remains but to give it the necessary motive power.

It should be remembered that Italy was the first to tender a friendly hand to Austria and the other small Danubian states at the time of their sorest need. Italy's renouncement of reparations represents a considerable loss and a formidable void in the Italian budget, but my Government clearly understood that, unless the obstacles paralyzing trade were eliminated, even greater danger would have derived to Italy and the whole world. We were not prompted by egotistic desire for our own profit, but rather that of the human commonwealth. This has been Italy's constant aim and the keystone of her policy with regard to reparations, war debts, and disarmament.

It would be a mistake on the part of the nations to rely on war reparations if collecting them must necessarily paralyze their trade. Almost all countries have seen their exports and imports cut down by 50 per cent and in some cases even more. Only think of the enormous loss in national wealth caused by this stagnation, a loss which might have been sufficient to pay outstanding war

"Corruption and the City Committees."

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

IT IS delightfully invigorating to live in a city that possesses a newspaper that has the vitality and aggressiveness to publish an editorial such as that headed "Corruption and the City Committees," which appeared in your issue of Aug. 18. The Post-Dispatch has contributed many very wonderful acts to the cause of good citizenship in this city, and I simply want to say that the type of bombardment as exemplified in this editorial should be more frequent. We have won many victories here in the cause of good citizenship, but only after vigorous and persistent effort.

As long as we have an element which masquerades as good citizens and trains with depraved politicians, these impurities you comment on are going to prevail. Perpetual criticism of political depravity and leadership that represents nothing but a desire for personal gain will always produce results.

While decorating you on the battlefield for very meritorious effort, may I ask you to keep it up until the elemination of all the political buccaneers is achieved?

What's in a Party Name?

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

SHAKESPEARE'S query, "What's in a name?" is extremely apt during the 1932 congressional campaigns. What's in a name, a party name, to cause a prohibitionist to vote for his party's wet nominee when there is available the dry nominee of another party or a dry candidate running as an independent? What's in a party name to justify him in so sacrificing his principles, in so shirking his responsibility as a citizen, in so helping to bring back upon his country what he believes to be an unmitigated evil? What's in a party name to cause free-born men and women to submit to being led as with a halter in a direction they do not wish to go? What's in a party name when the party has abandoned its most vitally important principle?

The County Coroner Fight.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

FORMER Coroner Louis H. Bopp, who was fought by the Post-Dispatch a few years ago while he was in office, is a candidate again. Throughout the primary none of the newspapers informed their readers that Mr. Bopp was the same Kirkwood undertaker whose practices were condemned in 1928 by a St. Louis County grand jury, which urged that the law provide that undertakers be declared ineligible to hold the office of Coroner. In the confusion of the record-breaking primary, new voters who never had heard of Mr. Bopp and others who may have forgotten his record probably helped to nominate him.

All of Mr. Bopp's primary opponents, as well as all of the Democrats who ran for the nomination, were physicians—men of high standing in their profession. These men all had the same aim in seeking office, to raise the dignity of the Coroner's job, save the excessive expenditures occasioned by a non-medical Coroner and to prevent a return of the office to the status of an adjunct to an undertaking business.

No doubt newspaper space was scarce in the pre-primary days, with many candidates seeking more important offices. As a result, Mr. Bopp went before the voters with virtually a clear record. Will he be permitted to do so in November?

Are the facts in connection with his previous administrations of less importance now than in 1928 when he was under fire? If a third of the space were given to reviewing those facts as a public service to the county voters, it would prevent a recurrence of the conditions to which columns were devoted a few years ago.

A TIERNON BOOSTER.

An Illegal Procedure.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

MANY families have been driven from their homes in Missouri, their crops and gardens, by reason of the unjust procedure of the farm loan companies. These loan companies have a clause in their deeds of trust which provides for immediate possession after the foreclosure, in direct conflict with the statutes, calling for ejectment suit in the Circuit Court.

Contrary to the law, the corporation lawyers seek out an illiterate and uninformed Justice of the Peace and force immediate possession so as to get the poor farmers' crops.

A court of justice should know that a contract which conflicts with the statutes cannot be legally enforced. This is another evidence of the fact we have arrived at a time when more competent Judges should be elected to enforce our laws.

GEORGE W. BAILEY.

An Obstacle to World Recovery

"We favor," says the Democratic platform, "an international monetary conference to consider the rehabilitation of silver and related questions and an international economic conference designed to restore world trade and facilitate exchange."

"We favor," says the Republican platform, "the participation of the United States in an international conference to consider matters relating to monetary questions, including the position of silver, exchange problems and commodity prices and possible co-operative action concerning them."

Such a conference, said President Hoover in his address of acceptance, "will bulwark the whole international fabric of finance, monetary values and the expansion of world commerce."

So, with the blessing of both parties, our Government has accepted the invitation of the League of Nations to attend an international economic conference in London this fall.

Included in the agenda of the conference are questions of monetary and credit policy, exchange difficulties, the level of prices, the movement of capital, tariff policy, producers' agreements, restrictions on exports, and other barriers to trade.

The conference will concern itself with "the vital need of facilitating the revival of international trade." Excluded from its agenda, however, at the request of our Government, are the questions of reparations, war debts and specific tariff rates, "as distinguished from tariff policy."

This is the program. What are the prospects of accomplishment within these rigid limitations?

Certainly the questions which the United States has left open for discussion are matters of great importance. The world has suffered from monetary and exchange troubles. Abandonment of the gold standard by leading commercial powers is unquestionably a bar to recovery. Capital movements, too, have complicated the problems of international finance. Falling prices have everywhere depressed industry. Export restrictions have hampered trade. These problems are vital; their solution imperative. But can they be solved within the limitations which the United States has imposed upon the conference? It is our emphatic opinion that they cannot.

Why have world prices fallen so precipitately? Why have national monetary systems broken down? Why have the exchanges been deranged? Why have leading powers been forced off the gold basis? It is not because the world's gold supply is insufficient. It is because American tariff policy and American war debt policy combined to drain the debtor of their gold. It was American policy which forced down European prices. It was American policy, too, which forced England off the gold standard. Nor can any conceivable hocus-pocus with silver undo the damage.

If the conference contents itself with a recommendation that silver replace paper in general circulation, it will merely saddle us with a wasteful and inconsequential medium. If it undertakes to put silver into the monetary base by establishing international bimetalism, it will provoke a raid on the world's gold reserves which will complete the disorganization of its monetary structures. Even if international bimetalism could be attained without disaster, it could not rescue us from the dilemma which we create when we demand payment of our debtors and then raise our tariffs so payment cannot be made. No possible monetary system can be made to work in a world where the greatest creditor at once demands and refuses to receive interest.

Similarly with the other items on the proposed agenda. What is back of the capital movements which the parley proposes to discuss? The major movement of capital in the post-war period was the foreign lending of the United States, which held up the world's financial house of cards until the crash came in 1929. This can no more be separated from our tariff and our debt policy than can the one blade of a pair of scissors from the other. Our simultaneous insistence on payment and refusal of it compelled our debtors to borrow more money from us so that they could meet our demands. It is scarcely likely that we would have been called upon to lend so heavily abroad after the war had we not closed our markets to the products of our debtors.

So, too, with the questions of export restrictions and systems of quotas and licenses. Why have recent years marked such a rapid growth of these new types of obstruction to the world's trade? These are but defensive devices adopted in retaliation for the rising barriers of customs duties. No one can seriously contend that they would have made their appearance had America, instead of taking the lead in raising tariffs, led the world to freer trade.

The conference will consider tariff policy. But it will not consider "specific tariff rates as distinguished from tariff policy." Surely this is diplomacy at its maddest. What is tariff policy apart from tariff rates? Our policy has been to boost rates. The policy which the world needs is a reduction of rates. If the conference does not discuss rate levels, it will be limited to the adoption of pious resolutions which mean nothing and commit nobody.

The conference has been summoned to consider "economic and financial difficulties which may prolong the present crisis." It has excluded from its agenda the three major problems which fall under that head. It proposes, as Senator Borah has said, to present "Hamlet" with Hamlet left out. Nor can it accomplish anything with the other items on the agenda; for they depend upon reparations, debts and tariffs as truly as the other characters in the drama depend upon the difficulties of Hamlet for their motivation. If the conference goes beyond the terms of its call, it will inevitably place the responsibility for world recovery upon American shoulders. If it remains within these terms, it will be a farce.

The Next Step in the Illinois Coal Strike

The march of the protesting miners on Christian County, Ill., has had the result which the participants desired. All work under the new $5 basic wage scale is at an end. With the strike thus enforced throughout the mid-State fields, it may be said that the protesting groups have effectively disowned the agreement which their officers declared in force and, as well, have repudiated those officers. Before this was accomplished, one miner was shot to death, mine guards and strikers clashed, shacks were burned and dynamited, and the militia prepared for action.

It is now time to take stock of the situation. The miners know the operators of old and, looking back on their long uphill fight for better working and living conditions, they regard the reduced scale as a deliberate attempt on the part of the mine owners to use present conditions against the men who risk their lives in digging and loading coal. The operators, in turn, declare that they cannot meet the competition of the unorganized fields in Kentucky and elsewhere, and continue to pay the old basic scale of $6.10.

Hardly less severe than the strife between the miners and operators is that between the miners and their leaders. Long at odds with their national president, John L. Lewis, they have now broken with the State president, John H. Walker. That Lewis and Walker, sworn enemies, should stand together, urging the acceptance of the new scale, was too much for the men who had watched the fight between the two. Nor were the rank and file brought any closer to their officers by the latter's story of the stolen tally sheets, used to justify the declaration of an emergency. Similarly, the miners alienated public opinion by resorting to violence, as did the authorities who followed Kentucky's practice of locking up disinterested investigators.

What shall be the next step? The miners know that, with fall and winter approaching, this is the strategic time for bargaining for a higher scale. But if the season holds their hope, so does it also hold their gravest danger. Conditions were bad enough in the Illinois mining towns last winter when the miners were working. A winter of idleness when there might be work would be the cruelest of follies.

Fear for what the future may hold requires that still another attempt be made to put the miners back to work. If the miners have no confidence in their present leaders, it is up to them to use their elective machinery for selecting new leaders. Then let authorized representatives meet with the representatives for the operators' association. If both sides are wise, they will forget past differences and, remembering that technological changes and new fuels have struck their industry a major blow, arrive at the scale fairest to both, and thus resume work. Any other course promises to jeopardize the Illinois coal market and the miners' union. Unwillingness on the part of either group to indulge in the principle of give and take may bring disaster to both.

Work this winter will not solve the perplexing problems of the coal mining industry, but it will be a major contribution to the relief of unemployment in one of the worst hit states in the Union. Miners and operators, now is the time!

Progress of the Five-Day Week

The Prince of Wales is changing from a playboy to something of an economic thinker, to judge by recent utterances of his on Empire and world problems. In keeping with his new reputation, he spoke as follows before the International Congress on Commercial Education, in London:

> The potential output of the existing means of production in the world is far greater than ever before. If all the employable labor were employed for a reasonable number of hours per week, the world would have at its disposal a volume of commodities and services that would enable the entire population to live on a higher level of comfort and well-being.

This royal utterance adequately sums up the reasons for the rising world-wide sentiment for shorter working hours as a sound step toward recovery and as a means of preventing over-production while increasing consumption. In this country the movement, not so long ago considered radical and impracticable, has been advancing by leaps and bounds. Organized labor is pushing it aggressively, the administration has approved the plan and many business concerns have adopted it.

The Government, it is agreed, is best qualified to set an example for employers in adjusting its own working hours to the labor supply and, by shortening the work week, giving employment to more persons. It has now taken several steps that will result in removing thousands from the ranks of the dependent unemployed and restoring them to the body of consumers, on whose revived buying power the recovery of business depends. The Federal relief bill provides employment in road building, flood control and harbor projects, and it is announced that all work thus financed will be done on a five-day week basis. The five-day week has been adopted by the Department of Labor, Civil Service Commission and Employes' Compensation Commission. In addition, President Hoover has reacted favorably to the Federation of Labor's request that he use his influence toward adoption of the shorter week in industry, and has ordered a survey of its possibilities.

The President recently received advocates of the so-called New Hampshire plan, which is a modified form of the shorter-week proposal. It falls short of the Labor Federation's ambitious project, but nevertheless presents some valuable points as an emergency measure. William Green, president of the Federation, recently pointed out that reduction of the average work week from 45 to 36 hours would have created employment for all the 10,500,000 persons estimated March 1 to be unemployed. The New Hampshire plan envisages only the increase of existing employment by 10 per cent, or about 3,000,000 workers, by a reduction of about 6 per cent in wage and salary scales, with an accompanying curtailment of working hours. The New Hampshire group thinks that such a sweeping change as the A. F. of L. proposes would "create a shortage in materials and labor and so rapid an upturn that a new chaos would be created." We believe the restoration of mass buying power and the automatic end of the relief problem which the labor plan offers would speedily counteract any maladjustments that might result.

It is encouraging that the problem is being rationally discussed and that steps are being taken to put shorter work schedules into effect. With the rise of the machine, it was inevitable that the need for human labor would fall correspondingly. It is only by equalized working hours and by the more equitable distribution of the machine's profits that the worker can be enabled to make a living for himself and family, and to buy the products of the machine. With three men employed to every one jobless, it is only common sense to spread work so the fourth man may be provided for.

Wages may be decreased for the moment by adoption of the five-day week in this crisis, but they are certain to rise to their former levels, just as the remuneration for an eight-hour day now equals or surpasses the former pay for a 10-hour day. Jobs and buying power will be restored by the plan, and they are what the country most needs today.

A Plea for Monticello

Jefferson's beautiful historic home, being bought for preservation as national shrine, may be lost to public unless $127,000 still due is speedily raised; children and citizens gave $400,000 already paid and $324,000 spent on repairs, but Government gave nothing; nation will be disgraced, writer says, if appeal for funds fails.

Claude G. Bowers in the San Francisco Call-Bulletin.

AN appeal has been made to the American people to save Monticello, the home of Jefferson, dedicated as a national shrine several years ago.

Nine years ago an organization was perfected to acquire this beautiful mansion for presentation to the nation because it was the home of the great philosopher of democracy. It was designed by Jefferson, one of the real American architects of his day. It was in this house that he planned his battles for a free society. It was here that he spent the years of his retirement on leaving the presidency, and for 20 years the great of all nations made sentimental journeys to the house on the hilltop. It is associated with Washington, Madison, Monroe, John Adams, Lafayette, Webster, Clay—all the great patriots of the time. It was here Jefferson died and here he is buried.

For generations this historic shrine with its sacred grave was private property. Americans could visit it on sufferance only. The public had no rights in the most historic shrine of patriotism aside from Mount Vernon. It was a reflection on the nation that this was so.

Nine years ago the Thomas Jefferson Foundation was organized. It took over the mansion, the outer buildings, the 650 acres and such relics as the one-horse gig in which Jefferson rode to Philadelphia to write the Declaration of Independence.

The cost was $500,000; and in the intervening years the foundation has paid $400,000 on the purchase price and spent $324,888 on repairs. More than $100,000 worth of relics and old furniture has been contributed. Many thousands of people, from children of the schools to the great of this and other lands, have journeyed to this shrine annually.

There is not a more inspiring spot for Americans in all the land today.

The shrine was presented to the nation and accepted for the nation by Secretary of State Kellogg—though the nation so inseparably associated with Jefferson's philosophy and services has not paid a penny. This is not to the credit of the nation.

Men of all parties have contributed to the purchase; leaders of both parties are on the board; and never once in nine years has any ceremony there been remotely partisan in its character. Monticello is preserved as the symbol of Americanism.

But when the depression came, the board decided to ask no further donations to the purchase until times are better. The depression has continued longer than expected—and now an organization, rendering a great service to the country, which has a property dedicated to the nation of the value of $800,000, is compelled to ask the American people to save Monticello.

Four hundred thousand dollars has been paid on the purchase price. Thousands of school children have contributed their dimes and quarters to this end; and thousands of people of ordinary means have given their dollars. But still outstanding on the purchase price is $127,000, for which provision must be speedily made or the whole achievement may be lost and the shrine revert to private ownership. That would be a disgrace to the nation.

On several occasions when money was required for the purchase, school children in America rallied to the cause with all the enthusiasm of youthful patriotism. They made their sacrifices in pleasures because of what Jefferson had done for the country and mankind. They assumed that, of course, the American people would generously respond.

If in all America it should now turn out that the patriot whose principles Nicholas Murray Butler says are essential for the preservation of our free institutions means so little that even in these days it is impossible to secure as much as $127,000, we should not want to be the one to tell these children the shameful story.

Of course, such a tragic collapse of all patriotic sentiment, even in these days, seems incredible. Of course, in this land of 125,000,000 people there are 25,000 Americans who would give a $5 bill. Of course, there are 12,700 Americans who would give a $10 bill.

But the only way to reach these Americans is by a popular appeal through the American press. To solicit contributions individually through agents or correspondence would entail a prohibitive expense. All the expenses of the Jefferson Foundation have been cut to the bone—because of the depression.

There should be no need for individual solicitation. Mere announcement of the fact that $127,000 is required to assure Monticello to the nation forever should be enough.

I have scant patience with the fact that the American Government has done absolutely nothing. It has appropriated vast sums of money for memorials less sacred, impressive and meaningful than this. It accepted Jefferson's services—and not two men in all our history have served it so gorgeously. When, because of his long public services, poverty darkened his old age, it took his library for a song—and laid the cornerstone of the Congressional Library.

Lincoln said the year after Jefferson was dead and his grave was shut off from the public by private ownership that "the principles of Jefferson are the definitions and the axioms of a free society."

Speaking for myself alone, I think it would be a contemptible thing for the Government of the nation of which Jefferson was a foremost founder to permit this enterprise to fail—because of $127,000.

But this Government is not asked to help. The help must come from the people, the children for whose educational privileges he fought; the press for whose freedom he waged such a tremendous battle; the churches of all sects and creeds whose rights he guaranteed.

Everyone who feels this way should immediately send whatever he can, from a dollar bill up, to the Thomas Jefferson Foundation, 70 Pine street, New York City, and for every $10 contribution an honorary guest card for life will be issued.

"Thomas Jefferson still lives," said the dying Adams.

Well, we shall soon see.

Cost of Too Many Counties

From the Philadelphia Public Ledger.

THE depression has taught Americans several necessary lessons about their government. The fact that it costs money is one lesson. The fact that it is slow to economize is another. The fact that there is, generally speaking, too much government is still another.

But only now are we beginning to see where the painful overhead of too much government really lies. It lies in unbridled paternalism, in intrenched patronage and duplication of necessary government. It costs money to produce pamphlets on bullfrogs and baby dresses. It costs money to support vast bureaus to supervise hog statistics and reports on the state of business in Bulgaria. And it costs money to support more than 3000 county governments, with a separate set of officials for every parcel of these United States measuring 30 miles square.

Elimination of bureaucracy, paternalism and waste at Washington will help the taxpayer. Genuine economy at Harrisburg and Trenton and Albany will help still more. But there will be no real relief until the costs of local government—the cities, the townships and the counties—come down to bedrock. This year the cost of local government will be almost twice the total cost of Federal Government and almost four times the total cost of state government.

County government is one of the great bulwarks of democracy. To weaken it is to breed more centralization in state governments, which already are over-burdened with self-appointed tasks. But America today is county-governing itself to death.

Pennsylvania has 67 counties, each with its own courthouse, court, officials, law officers and jails. The average Pennsylvania county contains only 673 square miles. It is only a little more than 25 miles square. Half those counties could be abolished and the remaining counties would still be only about 35 miles square. Such a change would cut the number of county officials almost in half and would cut the taxpayers' county tax bill proportionately.

New Jersey's situation is even more to the point. That State, with only one-sixth the area of Pennsylvania, has one-third as many counties, averaging less than 20 miles square. It has 21 sets of county officials on top of nearly 600 municipal governments.

Throughout the East, the Middle West and the South the same condition exists. New York has 62 counties averaging less than 30 miles square. Virginia has 100 counties averaging less than 20 miles square. Tennessee has 95 of about the same size. Ohio has 88, only slightly larger.

Tennessee and Georgia, two states hard pressed financially, have already merged counties to give the taxpayers relief. There is talk of similar action in 32 other states, but thus far only talk. Local pride and the resistance of office-holders are both strong. But local pride weakens under constant pressure on a flattened pocketbook. And economy eventually speaks louder than the office-holder.

The automobile has pretty well wiped out county lines laid down in horse-and-buggy days. Tax pressure is weakening the case of excess officials. America has too many counties and county governments, and before the demand for a scaling down of government is silenced, some of those counties will have to go. Unless they do go and county costs are scaled down to modest levels, the people will have to choose between bankrupt counties and centralized states burdened with county functions.

URGES THAT CITY REJECT LOCAL BID, LOW BY $24,560

Director of Public Utilities Pritchard Would Buy Sludge Machines in Chicago Instead.

DOUBTFUL ABOUT ST. LOUIS PRODUCT

Official Says Stupp Bros. Never Built Apparatus Before — Business Groups Oppose Action.

Although there was a difference of $24,560 between two bids for four machines for removing sludge from sedimentation basins at the Howard's Bend waterworks, Director of Public Utilities Pritchard has recommended award of the contract to the higher bidder.

The Board of Standardization will consider his recommendation tomorrow and decide which bidder shall receive the contract. The Dorr Co., Inc., of New York and Chicago, made a price of $81,060, and Stupp Bros. Bridge and Iron Co. of St. Louis bid $56,500.

Pritchard said Stupp Bros. never had built apparatus of this nature, and he questioned whether their product would operate satisfactorily. He said he was unwilling to make the waterworks "an experimental laboratory for manufacturers." The specifications were for equipment "as manufactured by the Dorr Co.," which he said was the only concern known to have been producing such devices.

Appeal for Home Firm.

It had not been anticipated that any bid except the Dorr Co.'s would be received, the director added. The two bids were taken by Supply Commissioner Meston on Aug. 5. Since then, while Pritchard has been considering them, the Industrial Club, the Chamber of Commerce and other interests have been importuning Pritchard, Comptroller Nolte and other city officials in favor of Stupp Bros. as a home company.

Several years ago the city purchased four similar clarifying machines from the Dorr Co. for $104,000. These have been in operation at Howard's Bend. The equipment of each unit consists of a steel framework revolving from a central support in a concrete basin 150 feet square. The outer end is supported and moved by a traction device. Sludge, or mud deposit, is forced from the water into a sewer opening.

In a letter to Meston, Pritchard said: "The Dorr bid complies with the specifications. It is questionable whether the machine on which Stupp Bros. have presented a bid can qualify under the specifications. In fact, if this equipment is acceptable under these specifications, in my opinion other manufacturers of structural steel work should be permitted to bid also on their original designs.

Never Been Built.

"My great objection to the Stupp Bros.' equipment is that it has never been built. The manufacturer, of course, believes it will work. However, he does not know that it will work, nor is there anybody on earth who can state definitely that it will do what we want it to do. It might turn out to be a successful machine; on the other hand, there is an equal possibility that it might be a source of great grief to the Water Department during its entire life.

"In my mind the matter resolves itself to the question of whether the Water Department should purchase experimental equipment and turn the Howard's Bend plant into a laboratory for the development thereof. I do not feel that I can recommend this, and therefore I suggest consideration be given to the purchase of the Dorr equipment. Whichever company obtains this contract, the work will be fabricated and erected in St. Louis, with St. Louis material, by St. Louis labor."

Pritchard formerly was Water Commissioner, and is a hydraulic engineer.

Economist Says Ending Tariffs Will Not Bring World Trade

which in that case happened to correspond more or less with the social aristocracy. The lower he could make his wage and the higher his price, the more his profit. That was a perfectly reasonable thing to do.

Reaching for Consumers.

In this straight line production from the laborer through the producer to the artistocratic market, technical improvements soon brought the producer to the point where there was no longer an economic aristocracy which could absorb his goods. He looked to the economic aristorcaries of other countries, first those nearby, and then reaching out to the farther places of the world, to seek the people who could pay the high prices which would bring his profits to the highest figure. That was the springtime of industrialism, and in that springtime the British merchants romped and cavorted all over the globe with a reckless abandon of acquisitiveness. No one was so cruel as to suggest to them that there should be a world solidarity then. In fact, they even picked up the Birtish Empire in a fit of absent-mindedness.

Great Britain was perfectly willing either to export shoes or to export shoemaking machinery, to export textiles or textile-making machinery. And, as you sell the machinery to other countries, you invite them (and the invitation is accepted in due course), when they get the machinery in, to shut out your manufactured products so they can sell their own. It is the most obvious thing in the world and I suspect that all of the complaint against tariff restrictions, against quotas, against trade barriers of all kinds, will not prevail against the fact that when the industry of another country reaches the point where it can supply the needs of its country for any particular commodity, there is going to be some kind of refusal to admit the goods of a competing country to that market. And all our efforts to break down the barriers must hurtle against that resistance.

Foresees Lower Wages.

If we could conceive of breaking down all these walls and the establishment of some international solidarity which would open the world to the efforts of this industrial force which Prof. Toynbee fears to confine within national boundaries, we should only perpetuate that straight line economy, the hiring of workers at a low wage and selling to wealthy classes at a high price. We should only increase competition, continue the bearing down of wages, and help perpetuate all the evils of the infancy of capitalism, against which Socialism and Communism are natural repercussions.

Thus we come to the era of mass production which you may date from 10 or 20 years ago. It is a somewhat indefinite line, but at any rate it is a new factor, and very possibly the indication of the beginning of an era far more important, far more significant, than the World War itself. I think most of us would agree that the industrial revolution is a more important event in history than the Napoleonic Wars, and I suspect that the arrival of this new factor in our economic life is a more important event in the world's history than the so-called Great War.

The significant thing about this mass production, as about any other production, is that it is perfectly useless and valueless unless you can move its products away from the machine just as fast as they are produced. In other words, mass production demands for its very life a mass consumption, and mass consumption is possible only when the masses of the people are given the power to consume. This is the turn in the road which I suspect we have failed to notice and which has left us driving on into this economic morass.

Increase the Home Market.

For the effect of this coming of mass production is that instead of beating against tariff walls of other nations, we have a market at home which is worth vastly more, which can be far more productive to the capitalist than chasing off to the top of the Andes to catch Bolivian Indians and lend them millions of dollars so that they can buy our products and then not pay the loan. Why not spend this money at home and let our own people enjoy these things, instead of pursuing this will-o'-the-wisp of some buyer somewhere else who will give us a larger profit?

There is no use seeking these consuming masses for our mass production abroad. If the time has not already arrived when the sum total of the world industrial capacity can over-furnish, oversupply, all the economic aristocracies of the world, it will in the next fraction of a second or so on our world clock.

The great market is here at home as far as we are concerned. America has a peculiar opportunity in this matter because we have the resources, the people, the economic machinery, the trained leadership, the willing labor, the capital. . . . We have all but the knowledge of how to get it going—for the moment.

We can choose between an effort to pursue world solidarity on the line which has been suggested here, not refusing to co-operate in conferences on disarmament, on anything which shall be to the mutual advantage of the nations which may be concerned. But that we shall seek for any political structure which shall take in dictatorships in South America and various other sorts and kinds of governments which, whatever their virtues may be, do not seem to be to our liking nor to the pattern which we feel that we can work for ourselves. We can pursue this world solidarity, but only by enhancing the depressing competition which goes on now. If you have more wheat in the world than people are willing to eat, how are you going to get any more people to eat that by removing tariff barriers?

New Adjustments Needed.

You have sooner or later to face the problem of adjusting your economics in a mass production economy to the group, to the unit; certainly a unit as large as the United States can handle its own affairs, and foreign trade will become a vastly less important matter.

We can proceed, then, either pursuing the false ideal of a world solidarity, which presupposes, as its foundation, an economy which is passing, or perfecting the possibilities of mass production. I am not talking Socialism; I am not talking Communism, I am not talking a "planned economy." I am simply talking about capitalism making use of the new opportunities which have come to it through its own development of its own technique. I am not abolishing profits. I should much rather see them go to new high levels along with the standard of living of the whole country.

Many countries are not so equipped. Many of them are too small. In many of them the industrial structure is built, as England's has been, on the basis of exporting a great part of the output. England is already making adjustments to the new conditions. In the southeast of England there are small industries springing up which have enjoyed, even during the period of depression, almost a boom, because they are supplying local consumers in England itself. In other words, England is now in the process of readjusting the economic efforts so that it can supply its own 40,000,000 people to a greater extent than it has in the past with its own products and be less dependent upon its export trade.

The smaller countries will very naturally have to be brought together in units in which mass production can operate, but that is a different problem from erecting a world political organization.

Forced Sales Not Good.

I conceive that in a world so organized, with these various units adjusting their economic activity to their own needs, a very large portion of the sources of international friction would be removed. We should no longer be fighting for markets abroad. All of this forced sale of our goods, in which we compete with each other, would give place to a foreign trade which was based on the demand to buy rather than the demand to sell. We should not have a huge building covering a solid block in Washington devoted to helping our manufacturers sell goods, in some country which does not want them, and in order to sell them we must buy dollar for dollar products of that country which we should prefer to make here.

Foreign trade is a wholly uneconomic process so far as forced sales are concerned. That part of international trade which is based on the things that we want will take care of itself. The people who send those goods in here are perfectly willing to sell them to us: they are paid in dollars, they have to spend the dollars here to get any benefit out of them and the goods they buy are willingly received by them. That part of our foreign trade carries itself along without the aid of a Department of Commerce, and almost without the aid of a Department of State.

With all of the nations operating on an economic basis of that kind, you bring within the grasp of all the peoples of the world the thing they have been struggling for since the beginning of history, the solution of the problem of material security.

Now my query is, would not America, by making a contribution of that kind to the world, add infinitely more to the world's material welfare than by encouraging the vain pursuit of a wholly illusory solidarity?

FLETCHER REPLIES TO MILLS

Says Secretary Was "Hard Put" in Defense of Administration.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—Criticising yesterday's campaign address of Secretary of the Treasury Mills in Providence, R. I., Senator Fletcher (Dem.), Florida, today inquired whether the positions of President Hoover and Vice-President Curtis on prohibition represented the Republican "unity and consistency" of which Mills spoke.

Mills, Fletcher said, "apparently was hard put to say anything in defense of the Hoover administration" and "ignores the record of his party." "He cannot defend it," added Fletcher. "The country, however, knows it."

GERMANY DEMANDS LIFTING OF TRADE BARS

Minister Says Nation Must Export Goods to Pay Foreign Debts.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Aug. 20. — Barriers hindering the exportation of German goods must be removed if Germany is to meet its foreign debt payments, Prof. Hermann Warmbold, Minister of Economics, declared today.

The Cabinet member—the only one held over from the old Bruening administration—denied emphatically that the Government was considering a one-sided reduction in private debts or that the Reich was about to send a special debt mission to the United States.

With equal emphasis, he called for the removal of trade barriers that the nation might meet debt service totaling 1,500,000,000 marks (currently $357,000,000) a year.

"Some days ago New York financial organs claimed that Germany still was flirting with the idea of reducing her private debts, especially in America, by a one-sided operation," said Warmbold, former director of the German dye trust.

"During the Lausanne conference beginning in July I stated that the German Government had not even considered reduction of private debts as regards either capital or interest.

"Even at that time I observed that the Reich Government would do everything humanly possible to render the Reich's service on debts safe under all circumstances and that private German debtors would do all within their power to live up to their obligations. That still is my standpoint.

"It cannot be denied, however, in the event the general deflation assumes still more severe aspects, that the disparity in value between money and goods and between old and new debts will increase. That is why treatment of private indebtedness is not a special German but an international question. It cannot therefore be clarified by an exchange of views between Germany and America alone.

"The German Government always took the standpoint that it is solely up to the German private debtors to negotiate with American and other foreign creditors whenever they believe they no longer can meet service on their debts.

"Governments concerned could interfere only insofar as, through measures of a political-economic nature, they might attempt to call a halt to deflation and thereby create sound foundations for the debt situation.

"The governments also could contribute to alleviating debt service by removing the legal or other hindrances obstructing an arrangement between creditors and debtors."

Warmbold remarked that Chancellor Franz von Papen in July announced that Germany firmly intended to pay its debts.

"If the question of reducing the interest rate on Germany's private debts to foreign countries should become a topic of discussion," the Economics Minister continued, "Germany would not take one-sided steps in this direction but would seek an arrangement with the creditors.

"I cherish the confident hope that, by agreement with Germany's private creditors, a transfer moratorium may be averted."

NITRATE-WHEAT EXCHANGE NEGOTIATIONS ARE RESUMED

Investigated by Chile With U. S. Farm Board; No Definite Offer.

By the Associated Press.

SANTIAGO, Chile, Aug. 20.—Barros Jarpa, Finance Minister, said today that negotiations had been resumed for the exchange of Chilean nitrate for United States wheat and that favorable results were expected. It is understood Chile needs 40,000 to 100,000 tons of wheat to relieve the shortage expected this winter, and might take more if satisfactory arrangements could be made. It was reported that the Cosach nitrate interests and the United States Farm Board were interested. The initiative is entirely local, but the Americans were said to be receptive.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—Farm Board officials said today that there had been discussions with Chilean interests of a deal involving the exchange of board wheat for nitrate, but that no definite offer had as yet been made by Chile. The negotiations are continuing, but officials refused to express an opinion on whether they would result in an exchange.

U. S. S. WEST VIRGINIA GETS HIGHEST AWARD IN THE NAVY

Battle Efficiency Pennant Won for Work in Gunnery, Engineering and Communications.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—The battle efficiency pennant, the most coveted prize in the navy, was awarded today to the U. S. S. West Virginia, now on the Pacific Coast.

The prize—a red silk pennant 15 feet long with a black disc in the field—was won by a higher combined score in gunnery, engineering and communications than any other battleship during the year ending July 1.

In making the announcement, Ernest Lee Jahncke, Acting Secretary of the Navy, said the vessel also would receive the gunnery trophy for the battleship class for excellence in shooting.

The commanders of the ship during the year, Capt. Cyrus W. Cole, San Francisco, and Capt. Walter S. Anderson, Carlinville, Ill., will receive letters of commendation from President Hoover and the ship will carry the pennant for a year.

Mussolini Denies Europe Is Hostile Toward America debts and reparations 20 or 30 times over.

Taxation necessarily depends on national prosperity and when the latter is non-existent taxation becomes the weight of oppression. It is far better that a nation should be prosperous through supporting the weight of taxation rather than to allow the commercial life of the nation to languish while awaiting doubtful payment by debtors.

The world economic conference which is to meet next autumn will have an arduous task cut out for it in order to complete what has already been done at Lausanne.

Free Trade Urged.

We have visualized a plan for European agreement on questions which have held Europe in a state of stagnation during the past 10 years. There is now open before us a way which will lead to more ample international co-operation. We have never believed in a policy of isolated Italy.

Exchanges must be encouraged and stimulated if the world is to re-acquire its long-lost prosperity. It will be the task of the economic conference to discuss and solve this problem together with another important problem, namely, the gold standard.

Any financial project or adjustment must necessarily include this point which is of essential, I may say, vital importance. When values are unsteady trade is timid and shy against engaging in any speculation owing to risks incurred through fluctuating values of exchange. Inflation is only a palliative which renders the situation worse instead of mending it, and there can be no lasting and practical solution of the problem until international monetary exchange is firmly established on the gold standard.

It may be said that recently not a week has passed without the free movement of international trade coming up against all sorts of obstacles. Every means has been devised to immobilize commerce within the confines of each single country, but the only result has been stagnation. Tariffs, prohibitions and limitations on the transfer of values. The control of markets and other arbitrary measures of the same kind must give place to the free exchange of goods and values if we want to get on with real economic reconstruction. The resurrection of trade should be the first duty of the world economic conference.

Unity of Action Needed.

If there is still suspicion lurking that the Lausanne conference represents a united European front against the United States of America such suspicion should be most emphatically dissipated as absolutely baseless.

At Lausanne, Europe came to agreements on subjects of exclusively European interest, but the world conference will be faced with far more important problems, and it is from co-operation between Europe and America that we may hope to see the world healed of ills which now afflict it.

It would be impossible to conceive hostile groupings, for we have learned from bitter experience that what the world most urgently needs are international forces working together towards a common object and an elimination of that atmosphere of fear and distrust which has hitherto hampered the economic ebb and flow.

It must not be forgotten that a prolongation of the crisis must necessarily give rise to increasing circles of people with doubts and misgivings as to the advisability and efficacy of political and social ordainments which still form the basis of Western civilization.

42D DEATH IN TEXAS STORM

Money, Food and Clothing Given to Hurricane Victims.

HOUSTON, Tex., Aug. 20.—The list of fatalities in last Saturday's hurricane stood today at 42 with the death of Mrs. Theresa Viola McArthur of Freeport from injuries.

Contributions of money, food and clothing to aid the storm's numerous victims in Angleton, Freeport, West Columbia and Brazoria still were coming in to Red Cross headquarters. The cash contributions totaled $7238. The immediate housing problem will be solved, at least temporarily, with the distribution of 500 additional army tents which arrived today from New Orleans.

Three Scientific Broadcasts Planned.

SCIENTISTS on the ground and in airplanes will attempt to describe the total eclipse of the sun in a broadcast over the WJZ chain, presumably including KWK, between 2:15 and 2:45 Wednesday afternoon. The pick-up will be at Magog, Canada, about 90 miles east of Montreal . . When William Beebe attempts to descend in his diving chamber, the "bathysphere," to a depth of half a mile in the sea off the Bermudas, he will take a microphone with him. He has descended in the chamber to a depth of 1426 feet and has lowered the sphere, empty, to 2450 feet. An NBC chain will carry the broadcast, probably next month . . . Explosions of T. N. T., dynamite and nitro-glycerine will be heard during a broadcast over the WJZ chain, at 8:45 Friday night, commemorating the birth of Anton Laurent Lavoisier, who discovered principles governing combustion in chemical combinations.

Gossip From Networks Studios.

GRAHAM HARRIS' classical network concerts are drawing 2500 letters a week, and all are loud in praise. . . . Amos 'n' Andy began their fourth year on the network Friday. Freeman Gosden and Charles J. Correll have not taken a vacation since the skit went on the chain. . . . "Princess" Jue Sue Tai, press-agented as the daughter of a Mandarin of high rank, now Broadway's first Chinese "torch singer," is billed with J. C. Flippen at 7 o'clock Tuesday night on KMOX. . . . Walter Damrosch will begin his fifth season Musical Appreciation concerts over the WEAF and WJZ chains on Oct. 14. KSD and KWK probably will carry the concerts Friday mornings as in the past. . . . George Fassnacht, the Christus in the Freiburg Passion Play, will sing over KSD at 4 o'clock Tuesday. . . . Len Small, Republican candidate for Governor of Illinois, has bought time for campaign talks over KYW and will deliver the first the night of Oct. 4. . . . Harry Herschfeld has written a series of "Meyer the Buyer" skits that KMOX and the CBS chain will carry at 6:30 Thursdays, beginning this week. . . . The "Singing Lady" is Irene Wicker. . . . Ben Bernie and his orchestra will shift from the CBS chain to KSD and the WEAF net when they return to the air Sept. 13. . . . KSD will broadcast a "Tom Thumb Review" with a cast of midgets at 4:30 Saturday. . . . Artists who have qualified in auditions as chain possibilities will be featured in a "Guest Review" series on the CBS chain early next month.

Sees Promise in Marconi Achievement.

COMMENTING on the reports from Rome of Senator Guglielmo Marconi's success in "bending" ultra-short waves and application to radio broadcasting, William H. West, station and operations director of KMOX, says: "It is possible that we may see these extremely high frequency waves used for communication purposes other than broadcasting in congested areas. Instead of being limited to transmission between points which are visible to each other, they may be of service over distances comparable to those covered by the lower frequencies in common use today. Their most important application would seem to be for telephone communication. But they will undoubtedly be used for program relay and possibly television in connection with the broadcast art."

On the Chains

RALPH KIRBERRY

"The Dream Singer," who may be heard over KSD.

Father Coughlin Signs 25 Stations.

FATHER CHARLES COUGHLIN has added WOC-WHO to the 24 stations, including KMOX, that he has signed for his 27 Sunday afternoon broadcasts that will begin Oct. 16. As a result of 27 weeks of broadcasting last season, he received requests for 2,500,000 copies of his sermon and for 613,000 books of his complete radio addresses. At the height of the season he employed 117 stenographers, and even now he keeps 63 busy.

Labor Organization Wants New Station.

APPLICATION for a permit to build a new station and for the facilities of WLWL, New York has been made by the Wage Earners' Protective Association, whose president is Matthew Woll, a vice-president of the American Federation of Labor. WLWL, which is operated by the Missionary Society of St. Paul, has asked to be shifted from 1100 to 810 kc . . . The NBC chains will take in KDYL, Salt Lake City, when KSL goes to 50,000 watts power and joins the CBS net Sept. 1. KDYL has been the CBS station in Utah. . . .

New Microphone.

A "VELOCITY" MICROPHONE, which is said to reproduce from the lowest audible notes to 14,000 cycles without sound peaks, is being introduced. Instead of a diaphragm, it uses for its moving element a thin duralumium ribbon suspended between the poles of a permanent magnet, which are so cut away as to permit sound waves to pass freely through the microphone. Increased fidelity and valuable directional characteristics are claimed for it.

Radio Trade Notes

New General Electric Sets Shown to Dealers.

A complete new line of General Electric receivers, all using the new pentode and 46 power tubes, was inspected by dealers Wednesday at a meeting at the Coronado Hotel.

There are three principal divisions of the line—four-eighth-tube superheterodynes, including mantel set, two consoles and a radio phonograph combination; four 10-tube superheterodynes, including a mantel set, a console with doors and one without, and a radio-phonograph combination that has an automatic record changer and a home record-making device, and the new 12-tube Convention model. There are also a seven-tube mantel receiver, a nine-tube superheterodyne automobile set and two battery sets—a portable and a console. The Grandfather and Georgian clock models are continued with 10-tube superheterodyne chassis.

All AC sets use the new pentode tubes and 82 mercury vapor rectifier tubes, and the 10-tube and 12-tube receivers have Class B audio amplifiers with 46 tubes and a driver stage to handle extremes of volume.

All the new General Electrics are designed for tone quality as well as distance range and selectivity. Of interest is an automatic low tone compensator which holds the tonal range of the set even so that even when the volume is turned down the bass notes still are heard in proportionate volume. This is the first time that this principle has been used in a commercial set.

The cabinet tone equalizers have been improved to do away with cabinet resonance. The tone control gives very smoothly graduated control of high and low notes. Two tubes are used in operating the automatic volume control, with the result that the control operates at any and all times.

The meeting was in charge of L. C. Arnold, merchandising manager for the General Supply Corporation; C. J. Watson, supplies manager; C. H. Hunter, district representative, and H. A. Spokesfield, factory representative for the General Electric Co.

"Vibro Power" Bosch Receivers Featured at Meeting.

Five new lines of Bosch receivers were shown to dealers and salesmen the past week at a three-day session at the Chase Hotel held by the James C. Gordon, Inc., distributer.

The new Bosch sets come in four-tube, six-tube, eight-tube, 10-tube and 12-tube chassis. A powerful automobile set with automatic volume control and system for doing away with use of B batteries also was shown.

Bosch uses the term "vibro power", according to James C. Gordon, head of the distributing firm, to describe the synchronization of a chassis designed for tone quality with two speakers, one for the higher notes, the other for the lower tones. The result, he said, is to produce a life-like tone throughout the range.

The new 12-tube superheterodyne has Class B audio amplification that will stand without distorting an amazing volume of sound. The final audio stage has two of the new 46 type tubes and these are driven by another 46. The cabinet is exceptionally thick of sides and massive to do its part toward avoiding "boomy" tone. Automatic volume control is of the full band type, while the tone control is of a new kind that does not sacrifice either high or low tones when volume is turned down or on full.

Another Bosch feature is designed to do away with the annoyance of "blasting" by static and stations mixed up in the noise level that are passed over in tuning from one channel to another.

The Bosch "personal" receiver comes in a new superheterodyne version. It is both powerful and selective and has excellent tone quality.

Oldsmobile Today 35 Years Old as Auto Manufacturer

First Directors' Meeting Held on Aug. 21, 1897—Paid 105 Per Cent in 2 Years.

Oldsmobile, the veteran of the automobile industry, is 35 years old today.

Aug. 21, 1897, a small group of men held the first directors' meeting of Olds Motor Works. The minutes of that meeting contained just 52 words, the more important of which were "It was moved by Mr. Stebbins that the manager be authorized to build one carriage in as nearly perfect a manner as possible and complete it at the earliest possible moment."

The manager did so, and this first "carriage"—a single cylinder Oldsmobile with runabout body—is a museum piece in the Smithsonian Institution, Washington, D. C.

Later, a directors' meeting authorized production of several hundred automobiles. So far as records go, this was the real start of quantity production. Prior to that the few automobiles in use had been built as orders were received, but none had ventured to start manufacturing for a possible market that most people did not believe existed.

How well these pioneers had gauged conditions is described by Mark Sullivan in the first volume of his book, "Our Times." He writes:

"The capitalization of the firm was $350,000, but $200,000 was all the cash that ever went into the company. The first two years it paid 105 per cent in cash dividends. That was the indisputable demonstration that the automobile could be more than a rich man's toy. This event, in 1900, was the birth of the automobile as a commercial reality."

In 1905 Oldsmobile brought out a two-cylinder, curved dash car. During the succeeding years it developed larger and more luxurious automobiles with the Oldsmobile Limited, produced in 1910, the peak effort. The Limited had a 5x6 motor and 42-inch wheels and won fame by racing one of the fastest trains in the country from Albany to New York.

The same year the company was acquired by General Motors. Since it has continued a conservative progress and has made many contributions to the industry. These include pioneer work with multiple cylinder engines, the introduction of chromium plating and several of the mechanical advancements found on the 1932 Oldsmobile Six and Straight Eight.

Approximately 600 different cars have been introduced by the industry since the first Oldsmobiles were manufactured. Today but 33 names remain in the industry and Oldsmobile is oldest of all.

Never Such Values In Automobiles, Says Chairman of Nash Co.

There has never been a period in America when the automobile buyer has had so obvious an opportunity for sound and advantageous investment as today, says C. W. Nash, chairman of the board of the Nash Motors Co.

"Motor car prices right now are the lowest that have ever been established in proportion to actual automobile values, and are probably the lowest that we will experience for many years to come," he said. "At the same time, engineering advancements, improved materials and recently perfected mechanical devices have made the current motor car models generally finer performers and more attractive, substantial and safer vehicles than the industry has ever before been able to offer to the American public.

"How long this great buying opportunity will last is problematical. It is freely predicted that, with prices of other commodities, motor car prices must soon go higher if manufacturing volume remains at its present level. Volume alone can hold today's prices in the bargain basement. With volume, the manufacturer can continue to do business and can continue to supply that most important of today's economic necessities—employment for labor. Without it, prices, which are abnormally low, must rise to meet increased costs of doing business and employment totals must of necessity dwindle to lower levels."

St. Louisan Designs Car Body

Streamlined sport phaeton on La Salle Eight chassis designed and built by F. Marion Weir, the radio singer, which has been attracting much attention on the streets of St. Louis. The car has racing type radiator grille, beaver tail rear end and special long hood and flowing fenders.

Chevrolet Reports Best Six Months For Sales of Fleets

A gain of 13.7 per cent in the first six months of this year over the same period of 1931 in the sale of fleets of cars and trucks for commercial use, is reported by H. J. Klingler, vice-president and general sales manager of the Chevrolet Motor Co.

The period was the best in fleet business the company has ever had, and fleet sales for the first half of this year were greater than in the full year of 1929, Klingler said.

Among purchasers were the United States Government, states and municipalities and large packing, tire, utility, taxi and drive-yourself companies. Such organizations keep a strict record of cost of maintenance and operation of their equipment, and replace trucks as soon as the mileage expense of the old units exceeds that of new vehicles.

Much of the equipment now being replaced was purchased in the boom years of 1928 and 1929, and because of the hard service it undergoes in commercial usage, it has now reached the age of obsolescence, according to Klingler. He also pointed out that Chevrolet, due to the operating economy and durability of its product, is constantly getting an increasing proportion of total available fleet business.

In the first six months of this year the Government has purchased more than 1000 Chevrolet sixes valued at $750,000 for use in the postal, interior, agriculture, commerce, treasury and other departments. More than 3000 others were sold to states and municipalities for use in police work, and for expanding highway maintenance and construction.

Wiemeyer Co. Now Gives Harrison, Long Radiator Service

The F. S. Wiemeyer Co., 2625 Locust street, has been appointed factory service station for Harrison and Long radiators, according to J. P. Freymann, general manager.

Under factory supervision, complete radiator service equipment for flushing, checking, recoring and testing has been installed in a separate department. A stock of radiator cores and repair parts for all makes of cars is being carried. This, with motorcycle special delivery, means for dealers and garages prompt attention to their radiator requirements.

Medart Distributes Autolite Auto Radio

The new Autolite automobile radio manufactured by the Electric Autolite Co., Toledo, O., is being displayed by the Medart Auto Electric Co., 3134 Washington, distributor.

The new set, said to be the smallest, most compact of its kind, is a seven-tube superheterodyne using the new pentode tubes, comparable in tone quality and volume to large home radios. Shielding eliminates motor noises, "scratching" and local electrical disturbances. The set has an automatic tone control in addition to volume control.

Pennzoil Co. Moves District Offices Here As Business Increases

The Pennzoil Company, until last week at 731 South Main street, has removed its St. Louis district offices to larger quarters at 4425 Clayton avenue.

The new building, a large stone structure having an area of 3000 square feet, unites office, sales and oil warehousing activities under one roof. Improved terminal facilities are provided by a siding to adjacent Wabash tracks. The new location is under a five-year lease with privilege of renewal and of adding a second unit of 3000 square feet.

According to C. W. Lunger, Pennzoil district manager for Eastern Missouri and Southern Illinois, the change was made to administer properly the increased business resulting from a recent extensive merchandising and advertising campaign, the results far exceeding those anticipated.

In addition to Lunger, C. A. Mahoney and F. T. Mayer, contacting the St. Louis trade and three territorial representatoves, compose the St. Louis sales force.

Says Free Wheeling Prevents Breaking Of Car Rear Axles

More than 75 per cent of the failures of rear axles in cars is due to braking the car against the engine, according to W. C. Starkey, president of the L. G. S. Devices Corporation.

"The structure of steel is such that when strain is thrown on it in one direction continuously, it lasts much longer than when sudden strains are thrown against it in both directions. When the driver brakes his car against the engine, there is a sudden snapback against the rear axle shafts, which often causes the steel structure to give way, resulting an a small crack in the body of the axle shaft. A succession of such jerks or twistings enlarges these cracks, finally resulting in the axle breaking.

"When the driver of a car without free wheeling steps on the accelerator in low gear and suddenly lets up on the throttle, five times the power of the engine is thrown against the rear axle, twisting it backward with terrific strain. Most axle failures take place in low gear and are caused directly by this sudden geared-up strain. In a car with free wheeling this strain does not happen."

Harold Bell Wright, the novelist, has just taken delivery of a new Nash convertible coupe.

Wright, long a Nash owner, made the purchase in Los Angeles, upon his return from an eight months' stay in the tropics.

Railway Autos in France.

The features of the airplane, automobile and the autobus are combined in the design of the railway autos that have been in experimental operation in France for a few months and so successful has been this test that it is quite probable that the new system will be extended over the entire country. The vehicles are equipped with pneumatic tires which are guarded by flanges to hold the tires on the track.

Worst Accident in His 1,000,000 Miles on Road Scraped Fender

Ab Jenkins, Seeking Records With Pierce-Arrow, Drives to Do It Safely.

Already credited with speed, hill-climbing and endurance records unequaled by any other, Ab Jenkins in his Pierce-Arrow 12-cylinder roadster the past week drove his millionth mile. In the last six years he has driven more than 500,000 miles.

He drove that distance without an accident of consequence, his most serious mishap being a scraped fender.

Included in Jenkins' million miles of driving were two transcontinental record-breaking trips and a 24-hour record-breaking run on the Atlantic City Speedway. His trips have taken him into Canada, every state in the Union and Mexico.

Discussing the causes of motor car accidents, Jenkins attributed a majority of them to two things:

"In the first place," he said, "many drivers actually ignore the fundamentals of safe driving. Almost equally serious is the fact that very few people are alert when on the public highway. Every day I see average drivers taking chances that I would not dare attempt. Almost every week I see some of these highway maneuvers end disastrously.

"One of the most common violations, and certainly one of the most dangerous, is passing cars on hills or curves. When approaching the top of a hill, I always try to determine if there is enough room for me to pass, should I meet two more cars coming abreast. If there isn't, I keep my speed down, so that I can deal with any emergency.

"Speed is not particularly dangerous if road and traffic conditions are favorable. While my Pierce-Arrow is capable of 107 miles an hour or better, I often throttle down to 25 or 30 miles an hour. Of course, when the roadway is clear, I travel at higher speeds. Fast driving through cities and towns jeopardizes pedestrians as well as motorists.

"On the highway I make it a point always to keep my side of the road—about a foot or a foot and a half from the edge. To run closer it involves the risk of a slight swerve off the road into a soft shoulder. This is especially dangerous in the spring, when the ground has thawed.

"The safe driver always is alert to the skidding tendencies of automobiles on different road surfaces. Roads are most slippery when it starts to rain. After the rain has fallen for some time, surface oil is carried away on top of the water."

Plymouth Shipments In First Six Months Show Large Increase

Shipments of Plymouth cars to De Soto, Dodge and Chrysler dealers throughout the United States in the first seven months of this year were 162 per cent of those in the same period in 1931, according to H. G. Moock, general sales manager of the Plymouth Motor Corporation.

The increase represents more than 30,000 units, and comparative figures include shipments in July of 1931, the first month following the introduction of the original floating power Plymouth car, when approximately 25,000 units were built and shipped.

Plymouth shipments in the first half of this year, not including July, show that this manufacturer shipped 285.1 per cent as many cars in the first half of 1931.

Kansas City Police's Armored Ford Eight Has 3 Machine Guns

Bullet-Proof Glass in Car Is More Than an Inch Thick —Tires Protected.

An armored, specially-equipped V-8 Ford radio car is being operated by the Kansas City Police Department.

The body of the car—a phaeton—is lined with nickel manganese steel a sixteenth of an inch thick. This bullet-proof steel also lines the doors, the cowl and the rear wall up to the top.

The windshield and the windows in the rear curtain are made of bullet-proof glass, which is one and one-eighteenth inches thick and weighs 14½ pounds to the square foot.

The car carries three machine guns, one in a bracket on the rear of the front seat, and two under the top of the car, which was reinforced for the purpose.

Even the tires have been protected from bullets by steel flaps on the front bumper, in front of the wheels, and on the rear bumper, behind the wheels.

The car, which can run 80 miles an hour has a siren, red lights, five in front, two on the cowl, one on each fender, a large one just below the radiator, two stop lights and four red flares.

There is a dual generator system, one for lights and ignition, and the other for the siren and the radio.

Eugene C. Reppert, director of the Kansas City police, said other Fords, similarly equipped, would be ordered later.

These armored cars are an addition to the Kansas City police fleet of Fords.

Goodyear Truck, Like Section of Tire, Built Of Wood, Tours U. S.

Eighty years ago Ezra Meeker, American pioneer, born in Huntsville, O., started with an ox team and covered wagon, with his wife and child, from Ohio across the plans and mountains over what is known as the Oregon Trail to the Pacific Northwest.

Today "Jack" White, Goodyear salesman, is following practically the same trail to the Pacific coast, also making the journey by "covered wagon," but his is a replica in wood of a section of a Goodyear all-weather tread tire mounted on a truck chassis and fitted with Goodyear airwheels.

Meeker's clumsy wagon, with its heavy wheels, lumbered along the rough, weary way, jarring and jolting its occupants, the discomfiture at times reaching the unbearable point, but White is rolling over the route in ease and comfort, riding on wheels of cushioned air.

Meeker spent about 10 months in making the trip, while White plans to reach the coast in 10 days.

Dodge Executive Says Dealer Sessions Show Better Morale

Reporting on the country-wide meetings of Dodge-Plymouth dealers just concluded, A. Van der Zee, general sales manager of the Dodge Brothers Corporation, says that since the series began in May there have been a total of 344 meetings with an attendance of 8160 dealers, retail salesmen, service managers and department heads.

"The improvement in dealer morale was apparent following every meeting. Orders were placed on the spot and on every hand we received assurance of greater confidence in the outlook for business in general and the automobile business in particular.

In the first five months of 1932, in the number of passenger cars and trucks sold at retail in the United States, Dodge dealers occupied third place in the industry. This likewise holds true for the six months ending June 30."

A $1000 Car Now Taxed $25.

Under the new Federal tax law, on an American automobile listing at $1000, the dealer now pays a tax of $25.41 on car, tires and accessories.

Chevrolet Leads in Car Registrations for First 6 Months

Registrations in 48 states from Jan. 1 to July 1, 1932, show that Chevrolet registered 215,811 passenger cars, based on figures furnished by R. L. Polk & Co., according to C. E. O'Meara, St. Louis zone sales manager of the Chevrolet Motor Co.

This is 92 per cent more than were registered by the second car in the low priced field, according to O'Meara.

Willys-Overland Cars Put Through 100,000-Mile Tests

The equivalent of more than 10 years of average driving was covered by two of the new Willys-Overland streamline sixes before they were introduced. Two standard roadster models were selected for this test, the goal being 50,000 miles each, but at the end of this distance they were both in such running condition, despite their average of 1000 miles in each 24 hours, that Willys-Overland officials decided to increase the run to 100,000 miles each.

The tests were completed shortly before the new streamline series was presented to the public. One of the cars made its entire run over highways while the other car, with a crew of three drivers alternating each eight hours, made its first 50,000 miles on the brick track of the Indianapolis speedway and finished the run over coast-to-coast highways.

This engine has the same basic constructional features as the models that won the annual Pike's Peak climb in 1930 and 1931 and in addition established 16 A. A. A. speed records which have yet to be surpassed.

The "100,000-mile Silver Streak Motor" develops 65 horsepower, will do 48 miles an hour in second and better than 70 miles an hour in high.

Reichardt Co. Opens New Used Car Display

The Reichardt Motor Co., authorized Chevrolet dealer, 220 West Lockwood, Webster Groves, has opened a new used car department at 5920 Easton avenue, according to C. A. Reichardt, president.

Facilities have been prepared to display 25 used cars at this new location.

Gasoline Diluted in France.

Motorists in France are urged by government officials to use gasoline diluted one-third with commercial alcohol, of which there is a surplus. The mixture costs less than pure gasoline, but gives less mileage.

Ford V-8 Timed Doing 87.9 M. P. H. On Two Speed Runs

Goes From Zero to 50 M. P. H. in 10 Seconds—Tops Airline Hill in High at 36 M. P. H.

The new Ford V-8 proved itself to be an outstanding performer in hill climbing, acceleration and top speed, in a series of tests conducted Thursday under the supervision of newspaper men.

The first test was made on Airline Hill, at the southeast entrance of Chain of Rocks Park on Riverview Drive. With five men in the car, starting from a dead stop in high at the bottom of the hill, the Ford V-8 went over the top at 36 miles per hour.

Previous tests conducted by St. Louis newspaper men recently have been with the idea of seeing how fast the various cars tested got over certain hills. However, the Ford V-8 was then put to the test of seeing how slowly it could climb Airline Hill. The car, again from a dead stop in high, climbed the hill at five miles per hour, all the way up without bucking.

The V-8 was then taken to Switchback Hill in Chain of Rocks Park, and with five men again in the car went over the top at 32 miles an hour.

The car was then subjected to a series of acceleration and speed tests. In a run in opposite directions over a measured half-mile course this Ford V-8 tudor sedan average 87.966 miles per hour. This high speed run was characterized by freedom from vibration as well as excellent roadability.

From a standing start in low and going through the gears, the Ford went from zero to 50 miles per hour in 10 seconds flat. Rolling along at 10 m. p. h. in high, the V-8 smoothly accelerated up to 50 miles an hour in 14.2 seconds.

Gasoline of ordinary grade, costing 16.6 cents per gallon, was used in this test.

The speed tests were timed exclusively by stop watch. Although the V-8 did better than 87 miles per hour in both directions, at no time during this run did the Ford speedometer show higher than 77 miles per hour.

The test was conducted by H. R. Andrews, St. Louis manager of the commercial division, with T. E. Lauck and E. (Red) Kauffman, all of the Ford Motor Co. of St. Louis.

Winners of Coach Building Competition To Be Told by Radio

The dinner to winners of the $5000 scholarships in the Body Craftsman's Guild competition, in which two boys from Missouri and as many from Illinois were State winners, will be broadcast over KSD at 7:30 tomorrow night.

Floyd Gibbons will be master of ceremonies. Alfred E. Sloan will speak, and W. A. Fisher, president of the Guild, will announce the winners. H. J. C. Henderson, secretary of the Guild, will talk on Guild plans for next year.

There are 352,000 members of the Guild. The competitors in the 48 states and Canada built miniature Napoleonic coaches.

Idle Cars in Michigan.

It is reported in Michigan that about 100,000 cars are standing idle in garages in that State because the owners cannot pay for 1932 license plates.

BOND MARKET AVERAGE UP 3 1-2 POINTS DURING WEEK

About 85 Per Cent of March to June Loss Has Been Recovered — Stocks Quieter After Wide Range for Time.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Aug. 20. — Bonds climbed briskly throughout the week. About 85 per cent of the March-to-June loss in the investment market had been recovered. Some professional traders were said to be shifting their operations to this market, as stocks seemed weary of bullish stimulation.

If stocks had run ahead of bonds in the two or three preceding weeks, the bond market was doing its best to get back into the lead. The price index of 60 leading corporate issues ended the week at 75, up 3½ points for the period, one of the most sweeping advances ever made in any week in the history of this index. It finished only about 3 points under the 1932 peak reached in March, and somewhat above the 1931 low reached in December.

Early in the week, stocks endeavored with only partial success to better the peak levels of the recovery reached in the previous week. Meeting considerable resistance around that general level, the list fluctuated rather widely for a time, but quieted down to dull, narrow trading as the week finished. The closing session was the quietest in a month. It was notable that there was no anxiety to sell, trading usually turning dull on recessions.

The price index of 90 shares ended the week at 60.1, slightly under the peak of the recovery, and 5 points above the final level of the previous week, which reflected that sharp setback toward the end of that week. Most of this week's comeback was accomplished on Monday.

Car Loadings Increase.

Of domestic business barometers, the most encouraging was the weekly report of freight car loadings, showing a gain of 16,398 cars, which a little more than made up the drop shown a week previously, and boosted the level to the highest figure since mid-June. Electric power production, however, showed negligible change, and building contracts as reported for the first half of the month by F. W. Dodge Corporation were aff about 17 per cent from July. Textiles were still the bright spot of the industrial future, with mills increasing their output, a number running on full time, and a few in the South actually increasing.

The outstanding item of the week's corporate news, probably, was the ordering of the regular quarterly dividend of $2.25 by directors of the American Telephone and Telegraph Co.

The expectantly awaited announcement of the final plans for the Commodities Credit Corporation finally appeared toward the close of the week. Bankers made it plain that the purpose of the corporation was purely to provide credit in orthodox banking fashion to help move raw materials to manufacturers in localities where normal credit facilities might be inadequate or impaired.

Quietest Saturday in Weeks.

The market was overshadowed today by the still briskly advancing bonds, but shares were at least able to throw off the reactionary tendencies of the previous session.

Shares sagged a point or two here and there in the first hour, but came back in the last hour to finish with a number of gains of fractions to more than a point in prominent issues. The turnover of 661,350 shares was the smallest for a Saturday session in four weeks.

Rail shares stiffened in the last hour, on appearance of the weekly report of the movement of revenue freight, showing a total of 512,431 cars in the week ended Aug. 13. This represented a gain of 16,398 cars over the preceding week, and was the best for any week since that ended June 18, although it was only slightly above the week ended July 30.

Among rails gaining about a point were Chicago & Northwestern, Rock Island, Baltimore & Ohio, and Illinois Central. New York Central was up a fraction, but Union Pacific, after sagging 1⅜, failed fully to recover, closing off ⅜ net. United Fruit was a strong specialty, closing nearly 3 points higher at 30¼, or 20 points above the year's low.

News of Day.

Standard of Kansas rose about a point on news of sale of some of its properties to Sandard of Indiana. Chrysler gained about a point in a fair turnover. Such stocks as American Telephone, American Can, Eastman, General Electric, North American and U. S. Steel closed about unchanged.

Outstanding among the day's developments was the conclusion of the Ottawa conference, with indications that American exports may be somewhat hampered, particularly of steel and textiles. Export trade has already fallen to such low levels, however, that Wall street seemed not much impressed. The United States' exports in July were the lowest in 24 years.

At Chicago wheat futures lost nearly a cent a bushel. Cotton in New York, however, was firm, closing 11 to 12 points higher.

Week-end business surveys added little to the general financial picture. One service estimated next week's steel production in the Youngstown area as somewhat lower. Nevertheless, some improvement in buying of lighter steel products was reported for the week. Heavy steel, however, remains stagnant.

$6,001,300 MORE GOLD TO FRANCE; NO LOSS BY U. S.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—A net increase of $12,200 in the nation's monetary gold stocks was reported today by the Federal Reserve Bank of New York.

The gain consisted of an import of that amount from Mexico. Another shipment of $6,001,300 gold to France was reported, this being the seventh of a series of eight miscellaneous shipments which it was stated last June still remained for that account. Only one more shipment, it was understood, is still to be made.

The French export, however, was completely offset so far as this nation's total gold stocks was concerned, through the release of a corresponding amount of gold which had been held in earmark for foreign account. In effect, the release completely washed out what would otherwise have been a loss in monetary gold.

STOCK EXCHANGE TOPICS

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—The new week will be comparatively free of anything in the way of dividend news either favorable or disappointing in character. Action by the American Telephone directors on Wednesday marked the passing of the last really important dividend meeting for the quarter so far as the stock market was concerned. Only a handful of board meetings are slated for next week.

Since Monday's sharp rebound which followed the shakeout in the closing period last week, the market has been swinging about aimlessly in about a two-point range as measured by the Standard Statistics index of 90 active issues. Rail shares have succeeded in negotiating new high levels, but both industrials and utilities have been less fortunate. The steady advance since July 8 carried the market back over about 72 per cent of the ground lost on the last phase of decline from March highs to the June 1 lows.

REVENUE CAR LOADINGS UP IN WEEK OF AUGUST 13

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—The American Railway Association today announced that 512,431 cars of revenue freight were loaded during the week ended Aug. 13. This was an increase of 16,398 cars from the previous week but a reduction of 231,195 cars in the corresponding week in 1931.

Every commodity classification showed some increase during the week as compared with the previous week. The principal increase, however, was in the western district where 195,706 cars were loaded as compared with 184,871 in the previous week. Some increase was shown in every district except the East.

Miscellaneous freight loaded during the week ended Aug. 13 totaled 181,898 cars, a decrease of 102,197 under the corresponding week in 1931; less than carload merchandise 167,835 cars, decrease 44,936; grain and grain products 40,886, decrease 5125; coal 79,760, decrease 33,056; forest products 15,435, decrease 12,297; ore 8051, decrease 27,252; coke 2808, decrease 1815, and livestock 15,758, decrease 4517.

WEEK'S METAL REVIEW

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—Although no improvement in steel orders or production occurred in the past week, the steel industry is said to remain hopeful that seasonal gains will develop in the fall.

Ingot output remained at approximately 14 per cent of capacity, with declines in orders from the automobile industry offset by moderate increases in miscellaneous demand. A steadier tone to the scrap market and better orders for pig iron were regarded as encouraging developments, it was said. Finished prices held steady and pig iron was also unchanged.

Copper.

Copper continued moderately active with domestic prices steady at 5⅝@¾c for electrolytic delivered in the Connecticut Valley. Buying was mostly in small lots for immediate shipment, but producers were not pressing the market as there was said to be an expectation of expansion in buying as general industrial activity quickens. Foreign buying tapered off further and some easiness developed in export quotations in an effort to attract orders.

Tin.

Tin quotations fluctuated narrowly, but the undertone was quite steady with consumers and dealers fairly active buyers on reactions. Buyers were said to be covering immediate and September needs. World's production in July of 5232 tons was slightly less than half of July, 1931.

Lead.

Lead prices were advanced as improvement was reported in the statistical situation. Decreased production and improved sales in July, combined with continued good buying this month have caused trade expectations for further reduction in stocks. Buying continued fairly active.

Zinc.

Zinc was quiet, but steady, with selling pressure checked by firmness of the ore market. Although buyers appeared indifferent, they were said to be interested in obtaining metal at concessions.

Antimony.

Antimony held steady, with a slightly better demand developing at times. Continued firmness was reported in the Far East.

RAILROAD BONDS ARE FEATURE OF UPTURN

Industrials Are in Greater Demand—Government Issues Quiet.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—The bond market ended the week in another burst of speed today, with the railway group still leading the field.

Transportation issues, especially those of certain class and speculative category, were given additional impetus by the announcement that the Interstate Commerce Commission had approved a loan of $31,625,000 from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to the Baltimore & Ohio. The loan is to be used to finance in part the refunding of a maturity due next March.

Baltimore & Ohio issues advanced from one to more than three points and substantial gains were recorded by some loans of Chesapeake Corp., Chicago Great Western, St. Paul, Chicago & Northwestern, Rock Island, Denver & Rio Grande, Erie, Great Northern, Hudson & Manhattan, Illinois Central, Kansas City Southern, Louisville & Nashville, M-K-T, Missouri Pacific, New York Central, Nickel Plate, Northern Pacific, Pennsylvania, Frisco, St. Louis Southwestern, Southern Pacific, Southern and Texas & Pacific.

The industrials were in greater demand than usual. Anglo-Chilean Nitrate 7s advanced 6¼ points to a new high for the year. Other notable advances were registered by bonds of American Ice Corp., Chile Copper, Hudson Coal, International match, National Steel, Otis Steel and Union Oil of California.

Metropolitan Edison and Detroit Edison loans were up from one to four points, and issues of Columbia Gas, International Telephone, American Telephone and Postal Telegraph were higher.

Both the United States Government and foreign obligations were quiet and somewhat irregular.

The day's sales totaled $8,087,000.

COTTON MARKET ADVANCES IN WEEK-END TRADING

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—Reports of further showers over a good part of the eastern and central belts and unfavorable private crop advices, helped to advance cotton today.

December contracts which had sold off to 7.57c at the start, advanced to 7.74c in the late trading, or within 8 points of the high point of the movement and 14 points net higher. They closed at 7.71c with the general market closing steady at net advances of 11 to 12 points. Spot quiet, meds 7.60c.

The opening was 1 to 5 points lower in response to relatively easy Liverpool cables. There was considerable liquidation together with some selling through houses with Liverpool connections and scattered selling from the South, but offerings were not aggressive and were quite readily absorbed by week-end covering combined with some trade buying. Demand became more active after the publication of the weather map showing a continuance of so-called "boll weevil weather" in eastern and central belt sections and prices worked upward later in the morning, with the active months selling about 10 to 15 points net higher. The close was 2 or 3 points off from the best under realizing.

The wet weather reported in parts of the eastern belt, particularly in Georgia led to expectations of increased weevil or other insect damage. There were also some unfavorable reports from the western belt, and the buying was supposed to be based partly on an idea that if the eastern belt weather did not soon improve, reduced crop figures might be found necessary at the end of the month.

Liverpool cable reported continental and Bombay selling in that market as well as liquidation in hedging and said sentiment in the Manchester goods market was unsettled with the turnover unimportant. The amount of cotton on shipboard awaiting clearance at the end of the week was estimated at 50,000 bales against 30,000 last year.

FINANCIAL NOTES

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.

A slight advance in futures last week was partly in response to some demand from consumers, the weekly review of the New York Cocoa Exchange reports. In previous weeks activity in the market had been confined chiefly to the operations of commission houses, according to the Exchange.

There was a moderate turnover in spot hides last week, with prices generally ½c a pound higher. Futures on the New York Hide Exchange rose from 10 to 30 points.

Hosiery buyers have placed business with more confidence through recent weeks, says the Textile World. Individual orders were small, but substantial in the aggregate, it is estimated.

Sales of ordinary life insurance for July in the New York metropolitan area are estimated at $69,561,000 by the Life Underwriters' Association of New York City. This compares with $72,891,000 in June.

Advances on key raw silk numbers stimulated both the primary and consuming markets, and raw silk prospects were viewed in mid-August as considerably improved, according to the Textile World.

Some slowing down of operations in the Youngstown steel district is expected next week, it was reported today. Mills, it is estimated, will show an average of 10 per cent of capacity at the start of the week, off 3 per cent from the average of the current week.

State and municipal financing scheduled for next week totals $14,740,302 compared with $5,637,458 during the past week, the Bond Buyer reports.

Weirton Steel Co., a subsidiary of National Steel Corporation, will convert 17 giant coast artillery guns acquired from the Government into more than 6,800,000 pounds of heavy melting steel scrap, the company announced today. This will be held in reserve until a quick increase in steel production is needed, as it can be charged into the open-hearth furnaces more rapidly than the bulkier and lighter grades of scrap metal.

Dry Goods Market.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—At the week's close price advances became effective on cotton towels, branded sheets and pillow cases, bed tickings, cheap lines of ginghams, bleached muslin and owend shirtings. Substantial increases were made on quatations on several print cloth and narrow sheeting constructions. A good gray cloth volume was sold today. Jobbing centers throughout the country reported the largest week's business done with retailers in many months. Silk prices were easier. Burlaps were five points lower.

TURPENTINE, FLAX AND LINSEED

Linseed oil in one to four barrel lots was quoted at 6.8c per pound for raw and 7.2c for boiled.

DULUTH, Aug. 20.—Flax on truck, $1.01@1.02¼; September, $1.00½; December $1.01.

MILL FEED FUTURES MARKET

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, Aug. 20.—Millfeed futures were weak and lower in the final session of the week, due to easiness in grains and heavy cash feed markets. Closing price changes for local deliveries were: Bran 10@20c lower; gray shorts 15@25c lower. For Chicago delivery: Bran 5@15c lower; standard middlings 10@25c lower. Sales totaled 800 tons.

WHEAT HAS DOWNWARD RANGE OF FULL CE

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Aug. 20.—Jolted by repor action of the British Empire Econo Conference, grain prices tumbled today.

Wheat fell to about 7 cents a bush under last week's high point, and outdid all bottom records since 1896. General selling and the downward plunge values followed trade advices that Gre Britain had agreed to establish 6 ce preference on wheat from British Emp sources as against wheat originating where.

Wheat closed nervous, ⅝@1 cent lo than yesterday's finish, corn ½@⅝c do oats ⅛@⅝c off and provisions unchan to 5 cents up.

On the breaks in prices wheat went below 50 cents a bushel for Septem contracts, the first time of late. At stage did the market show much power rally. A further disturbing influence talk that 500,000 bushels of Canad wheat had been bought today for overse but that export trade in United Stat wheat appeared extinct.

UPWARD TREND CONTINUES IN JOPLIN LEAD MARKET

By the Associated Press.

JOPLIN, Mo., Aug. 20.—Prices for lead continued an upward trend in the Tri-State district this week, advancing $2.50 a ton for a basis range of $30 to $35. Demand was good, but sales were comparatively light.

Zinc was unchanged at $17 to $19 a ton. Smelters reported purchasing 2230 tons of zinc, the largest sale in 10 weeks. Output for the week was slightly in excess of 1000 tons and is expected to increase to 1400 or 1500 tons the coming week.

Two advances in the pig lead quotations brought about the higher price paid for lead in the Joplin district. Zinc quotations, however, failed to reflect any of the strength of the lead market.

QUIET TRADE MARKS FINAL SESSION OF WEEK ON CURB

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—The Curb market settled down to a quiet trading pace today with price changes mainly confined to fractions in turnover that reached 120,-000 shares, or one-half the 240,000 total of last Saturday.

Electric Bond & Share common sold as low as 21¼. This decline was accompanied by selling of other utilities. However, the stock met buying which resulted in a rally to 22¼, where it closed only ⅛ point below the Friday close. The company's preferred stocks were both up 2 points.

Fractional gains were recorded by Cities Service common, Northern States Power "A" and Niagara Hudson Power, while losses of about equal scope occurred in American Gas & Electric and United Light & Power "A."

Standard Oil of Indiana closed at 24¼, up an eighth. Other oils were steady.

Aluminum Co. moved up 2 points. Deere & Co. reacted a fraction. Swift International was fairly active, advancing slightly.

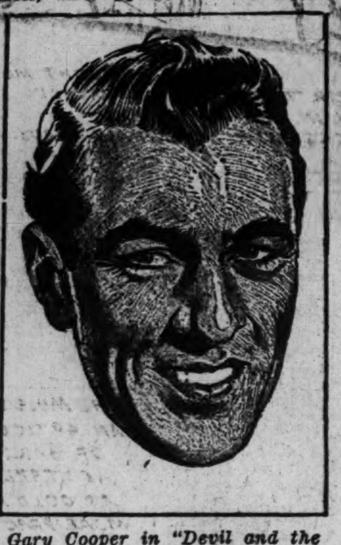
DRAMA-MUSIC-MOVIES

ST. LOUIS, SUNDAY MORNING, AUGUST 21, 1932.

"Cyrano" Ends Park Season

World's Premier of the Pokrass-Locke Musical Version of Rostand's Famous Romantic Comedy Drama to Take Place Tomorrow Night at the Start of Final Week of Municipal Opera—George Houston to Sing Title Role With Natalie Hall as Roxane and Allan Jones as Christian.

MUNICIPAL OPERA goes into its final week to wind up the 1932 season tomorrow night when the company in Forest Park will offer, except for a single amateur performance, a world's premiere of "Cyrano de Bergerac," a most ambitious musical version of Rostand's famous drama. The music is by Samuel Pokrass, a young German-Russian composer, while the Rostand play has been fashioned for the operetta by Charles O. Locke, a newspaper man who hails from Ohio. Both the composer and the author are in St. Louis for the presentation of their work. George Houston, who will create the role of Cyrano, together with Natalie Hall, as Roxane, Allan Jones, as the Christian of the production, and George Hassell, who appears as Ragueneau, the pastry cook, are scheduled for the Broadway presentation of the opera under the banner of the Shuberts early this fall. They are four players in a cast of more than 30, which includes among others such favorites as Harry K. Morton and Barbara Newberry. Tonight will see the final performance of "The Love Call."



Gary Cooper in "Devil and the Deep," at the Missouri.

A production of "Cyrano de Bergerac" was the first suggestion made to the Municipal Theater Association by J. J. Shubert, when he came to St. Louis last year for the first time to assume his post as general productions manager for that organization. "It's a play," he said, "in which there is so much pageantry that I despair of ever getting a New York stage big enough to do it on." As a matter of fact, he confessed the score and the libretto were gathering dust in New York precisely for that reason. His first glimpse of Municipal Opera's stage convinced him that the theater in Forest Park was the place of all places in which to do it. Later, in working over the plans for the original production out here, a way was found to adapt it to Broadway later. Thus, the Municipl Opera's production will be made with scenic designs especially created for the presentation in Forest Park, while the costumes and properties used will be those which have been created for the New York showing a few weeks later.

The work is in essence a melody setting for the fine drama of Edmond Rostand, in which Walter Hampden appeared here last winter. Charles O. Locke, the librettist, has made a new translation of the drama, taking advantage of its innumerable lyric passages by adapting them as settings for the melodies of Pokrass, a composer said to be known throughout Europe as the writer of a cycle of more than 100 Gypsy melodies and of several musical successes for the Paris stage. In the score of "Cyrano" are such numbers as the "Little Musketeer," "Gentlemen of France," "The Song of the Gascon Cadets," a duet between Roxane and Christian, "What My Lips Can Never Say," and a trio of Cyrano, Roxane and Christian, "The Shadow of a Kiss."

IN Locke's version the story opens with that scene in the theater in which Cyrano drives from the stage the actor Montfleury and kills a duelist to the tune of a ballad which he makes the while he fights; it is in that scene he meets again the beautiful Roxane. There follow in succession Roxane's confession of her love for Christian the while she remains in ignorance of Cyrano's adoration of her; the poet's pledge that his sword shall protect the young Gascon, whose handsome face has won the lady's heart; the stupid wooing of Christian and the aid which Cyrano lends him and through which he finally wins his lady's hand; the marriage of Roxane and Christian, the scene at the battle front in the Spanish Wars in which Roxane pays a visit to her husband; the attack upon the Gascon Cadets in which Christian is lost; and then those years of devotion in the course of which Cyrano, still silent regarding his heart's desire, attends upon Roxane, who has taken refuge in a convent.

Rostand's great romantic comedy and consequently this musical paraphrase is based upon an authentic historical character. Cyrano de Bergerac had an actual existence—his poetry, his long sword, his big nose and all. He did actually forbid the actor Montfleury the stage and he kept him off it; he did actually rout the 100 assassins, who had been hired to murder his friend, and he left seven of them on the field when the rest fled before him; he did have a cousin, who married Christian; he did serve as a soldier in the Spanish Wars and he fought innumerable duels, many of them because some one had looked askance at that nose of his; he was in the end killed by a log rolled down upon him from a housetop. He was a notable figure in the French literature of his time and in his work one finds the germs of what Moliere developed later into a play, Dean Swift into his Gulliver's Travels and Edgar Allan Poe into his pseudo-scientific tales.

☼ ☼ ☼ ☼

ROSTAND'S great drama was produced for the first time in Paris in 1897 with the elder Coquelin in the title role. Richard Mansfield presented it for the first time in this country in New York, Oct. 3, 1898, with Margret Anglin as Roxane. Later litigation, arising from the claim of Samuel Eberle Gross, a Chicago lawyer, that Rostand's drama was a plagiarism from his "Merchant Prince of Cornville" caused its withdrawal from the stage. Some eight years ago Walter Hampden revived the drama, produced it with great success both in New York and on the road. He revived it last season for a nation-wide tour, which was the greatest triumph of his career in the American theater, and has announced his plan of presenting it again next season in the course of a transcontinental trip of the United States.

In Paris, Rostand's play is revived many times each season. Although now over 35 years old, it remains as bright and fresh as when it was first presented.

Only one performance of the Pokrass-Locke operetta has ever been given on any stage and that was an amateur one—although George Houston sang the role of Cyrano, which he will sing tomorrow night. The single performance was done by the University Club in Toledo, O., last year for Locke and Pokrass were anxious to see their work in action and to find out, too, if it needed any changing before its ambitious presentation in Forest Park.

The Shuberts are extremely enthusiastic about "Cyrano" and believe they have in it the finest work of its sort the stage has ever seen. J. J. Shubert, already in St. Louis, and other officials of the producing company will be on hand for the opening performance.

Amusement Calendar

MUNICIPAL OPERA—Starting tomorrow night, for the final week of the season, "Cyrano de Bergerac," an entirely new operetta by Samuel Pokrass, with book by Charles O. Locke. Last time tonight of "The Love Call."

Motion Pictures

MISSOURI—Gary Cooper and Tallulah Bankhead in "Devil and the Deep," with Charles Laughton. Also "Igloo."

LOEW'S—Jimmy Durante and Buster Keaton in "Speak Easily."

AMBASSADOR—"Doctor X," with Lee Tracy, Fay Wray and Lionel Atwill. A girl and music stage show with Jay Mills and Armida in person.

FOX—Richard Dix and Gwili Andre in "Roar of the Dragon." Guy Robertson in a third week on the stage with Eddie Peabody appearing with a new Fanchon and Marco show.

Sir Nigel Playfair Falls for the Films

SIR NIGEL PLAYFAIR, well-known London actor-manager, has finnally succumbed to the lure of the movies after 30 years upon the stage and after several years of refusal to have anything to do with the new medium. The English veteran will make his screen debut in "Perfect Understanding," Gloria Swanson's next picture, which is being made in Europe.

Sir Nigel's capitulation makes the Swanson cast much more English than American, although a number of its personnel were imported from Hollywood. Laurence Olivier and John Halliday, both English players, journeyed from California to appear in "Perfect Understanding," and so did Genevieve Tobin, who is well known in London for her appearance there in "The Trial of Mary Dugan," and other stage hits. Heather Thatcher, London musical comedy star, has a prominent role, and so has Michael Farmer, Miss Swanson's husband. Thus five of the seven principal roles are being portrayed by English players.

Miss Swanson's company started work at Ealing, just outside of London, last week, after having spent nearly a month on the French Riviera, where regatta and shore resort sequences were photographed.

Rhymed Dialogue Used.

Rhymed dialogue through the entire characterizations of screen players is introduced for the first time in Maurice Chevalier's starring production, "Love Me Tonight." Director Rouben Mamoulian has followed this procedure with the lines delivered by Elizabeth Patterson, Blanche Friderici and Ethel Griffies, who play the three aunts of Jeanette MacDonald.

Fay Wray in "Doctor X," at the Ambassador Theater.

The Week's New Films

—:— By NIE —:—

GARY COOPER, back from a long vacation in Africa and looking better than he has looked in years, was teamed up with Tallulah Bankhead for a sea and shore meller called "Devil and the Deep" at the Missouri this week. It is a dandy picture, a smart and interesting film from start to finish but the acting honors do not go to either of the stars although they do everything, perfectly enough, that is required of them. Perhaps if Charles Laughton had not been in the cast Gary and Palulaka, or whatever her name is, might have come into their own but Mr. Laughton is very much on deck—or rather under it for the shipboard scenes are laid in a submarine. Making his first picture, or, at least playing his first important role on the screen, this English actor completely smothers everyone else in the story with an amazingly fine performance of a navy Commander who imagines that all of his young officers are making love to his wife. His suspicions are not founded upon fact until Lieut. Gary Cooper comes along. Then the commander could have gotten a divorce in any country in the world, including Africa, where all hands are enjoying shore leave. Instead he cooks up a diabolic plot for revenge when he finds his wife and Gary aboard a sub in the harbor. Taking charge of things he orders the ship to dive and then brings it up under a passing steamer. In an intensely dramatic scene Gary saves the lives of everyone except the jealous husband. He would have saved him, too, but the Commander, a madman by this time, locks himself in a hatch, or whatever it is they lock up on a submarine, turns on the faucets and drowns to death very realistically. Laughton's performance is the outstanding one of the picture year. Also on the Missouri's bill is a sort of novelized travel picture called "Igloo" which tells a story of life, and a bit of love, in the Arctic regions. It, too, is interesting but a trifle long.

Murders at Midnight.

GOOD old "Dr. X," in the film by that name at the Ambassador, killed so many people and did so many horrible things that before the picture was well under way the customers out in front, pretty well fed up by this time on clutching hands and rattling skeletons, were laughing instead of screaming at the synthetic thrills and efforts of the story to go Hollywoodian psychopathic. We are not sure, as a matter of fact whether it was Dr. X, or one of his assistants in a prominent scientific institute, who had been nothing worse than a cannibal in his early days but who gave up that pleasant pastime to kill men and women right and left and to mutilate their bodies in a sort of research movement to find out a way to make new people out of old. At all events if the good doctor discovered anything it died with him when he made the mistake of trying to kill a comedy newspaper reporter who laughingly burned him to death with a coal oil lamp which had been carelessly left lit, evidently from many years back, in a modernistic and thoroughly electrically equipped old castle down on Long Island. The story is as complicated and unpleasant as it sounds but it is very handsomely made, entirely in natural colors.

If You Want to Laugh.

BUSTER KEATON'S new film, "Speak Easily," at Loew's, is made for laughing purposes only and it succeeds along those lines with a smash. Buster, a college professor whose only kick in life has been reading Aristotle and other works of the pre-restaurant day Greeks, suddenly finds himself engaged in the show business in New York with a small-time theatrical troupe on his hands. How the company makes good and how the professor finds true love in the chorus ranks is really a riot of fun and "Speak Easily" is Keaton's best picture. In addition the star has the assistance of Jimmy Durante, who adds a lot to the comedy.

Bull in a China Shop.

ROUGH Chinese bandits and a rootin', tootin', shootin' American river boat captain get all tangled up in "Roar of the Dragon" at the Fox. As might be expected, the American wins, holding the fort in a Manchurian hotel against all the rebels in the Flowery Kingdom and finally getting clear safely with his passengers and a girl friend picked up along the way. Richard Dix is the he-man Volga boatman and Gwyli Andre, the latest imported exotic European star brought over to show up La Garbo and Dietrich. Maybe she is of the same school, but while they were making daisy chains on graduation day Gwyli was down in the third grade somewhere. "Roar of the Dragon" is a fighting meller which will appeal to those customers who want action and Eddie Peabody, king of the banjo, who is paying another visit to the Fox with a Fanchon and Marco stage show, will appeal to everybody. Guy Robertson, Municipal Opera star, is in his third week at the house and might remain for the rest of the summer if he cared to.

Gayety to Re-Open Today With Films

The Gayety Theater at Fourteenth and Locust streets, which has been closed since last winter, will be reopened this afternoon by C. P. Crawford as a picture house. The feature of the first week's program will be a revival in sound of D. W. Griffith's production, "The Birth of a Nation."

The Gayety, years ago a German theater, and then a burlesque house, opens with plans for all-sound foreign or special pictures each week. Short features also will be used. Films will run continuously each day from 11 a. m. to 11 p. m. at popular prices.

Tour of the Orient On Highland's Bill

A mythical tour of the Orient, with Harry Lange's "Musical Merrymakers," featuring the melodies of each nation of the Far East, will comprise this week's free entertainment program at Forest Park Highlands, with the dance features provided by Melba Vierdag. Popular songs will be interpolated by Glen Weiser, Joe Arriotto and Eddie Pitts and comedy will be supplied by Leslie "Tiny" Durst as an Indian snake charmer.

Arliss Coming Back To Start New Film

George Arliss will return to the United States from England late this month, and his next starring vehicle, "The Adopted Father," will go into production during September, at Burbank, a full month ahead of schedule. "The Adopted Father" will be a screen version of the novel by Edgar Franklin and the picture will probably be directed by John Adolfi, who held the megaphone on "The Millionaire," "Alexander Hamilton," "The Man Who Played God" and "A Successful Calamity."

"Renee," Operetta Of Old St. Louis, Will Get Tryout

THE productions committee of Municipal Opera will listen to the music and parts of the book of a new light opera, "Renee," dealing with life in old St. Louis at the American Theater next Wednesday afternoon with a view to producing it in Forest Park next summer.

The music for "Renee" was written by Edward E. Menges, a well-known St. Louis musician, and the book is by Will La Beaume, a former St. Louisan who now resides in Pasadena, Cal. Mr. La Beaume, who is here now to aid in the presentation of the work, is one of the leading movers in the Pasadena Community Playhouse and "Renee" has been tried out there, where it met with considerable success.

J. J. Shubert and other officials of the Shubert offices will be here to hear the operetta and pass upon its fitness for the general stage after it is done in Forest Park. For the tryout Mr. Menges will play the piano score himself and some of Mr. La Beaume's lyrics will be sung by members of the Municipal Opera Company.

"Prophet," Ancient Play, for the Odeon

"The Prophet," a biblical drama written more than 300 years ago, is to be presented at the Odeon for a week beginning Sept. 4 under the auspices of the Dramatic League of St. Louis. The league's share of the proceeds will be used to extend the work of the organization in St. Louis.

The drama is laid around the life of the prophet Jeremiah and tells of the struggles of Israel 25 centuries ago. Heinrich Ortmann, a German actor, will have the role of Jeremiah and there will be ballets under the direction of Eugenia Repelsky, a Russian dancer. The music will be directed by Nicholas Karlash of Kiev, Little Russia.

Warner's to Exhibit Films in Convention

A convention which will be attended by several hundred film salesmen and office executives from the Middle-Western territory will be held at the Coronado Hotel tomorrow and Tuesday. Some 13 new pictures, ready for release to the picture houses will be shown upon the screen at the Grand Central Theater on both days.

Motion picture theater owners from Missouri and nearby states have been invited to see the new films and it is expected that many of the showmen will attend.

New York representatives of the Warner Brothers Company will also be here during the two days of the meeting.

Gable and Harlow Paired.

Clark Gable and Jean Harlow will be paired in M-G-M's "Red Dust." Victor Fleming will direct the picture.

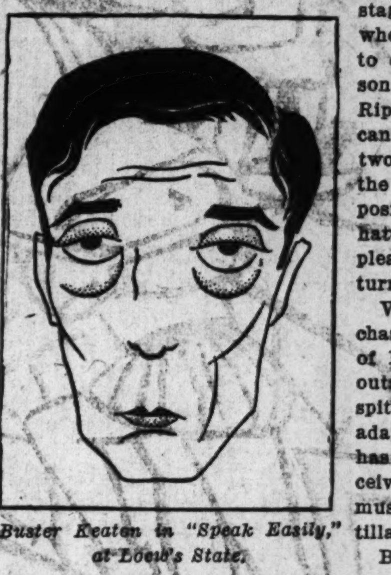
Richard Dix in "Roar of the Dragon," at the Fox.

The Movies and the Stage

Lois Moran Made the Jump to the Musical Comedy Platform With Success, but Rod La Rocque Failed to Please the New York Critics When He Appeared as Grace George's Leading Man—Building a Big Chinese City on a Hollywood Lot.

LAST week in New York we saw the Pulitzer Prize play, "Of Thee I Sing," the best entertainment the stage has known in years and one which, sooner or later, will find its way to the screen. Perhaps when it moves over into the celluloid Lois Moran will move with it for Lois, as you will recall, was one of the lovely little girls of the screen—she made her first hit in "Stella Dallas"—who deserted Hollywood for a chance to appear on Broadway and listen to the applause of the crowd. Miss Moran, as lovely and winsome as ever, does splendidly in the leading feminine role of the George Kaufman-George Gershwin musical comedy and may be lost to pictures forever.

But another screen star did not fare so well on the New York stage. This was Rod La Rocque who, with Vilma Banky appeared to considerable advantage a season or so ago in "Cherries Are Ripe" when it came to the American Theater here. Just a night or two ago Mr. La Rocque essayed the leading part in "Domino" opposite Grace George, and the Manhattan critics were none too well pleased with the movie actor turned, more or less, legitimate.



Buster Keaton in "Speak Easily," at Loew's State.

When William A. Brady purchased "Domino" on his invasion of Paris last spring, it was the outstanding hit of that city. Despite the heavy-handed English adaptation his wife, Grace George has made of it, one can still perceive faint glimmerings of what must have been an amusing, scintillating show in its native Gallic.

But this Broadway version encounters a further obstacle in La Rocque, erstwhile movie star of the silent days, as the leading man. A handsome and earnest fellow, he is not at his nor anyone else's best as the effervescent, gentleman vagabond who hires out as the masquerade sweetheart of a lovely French housewife.

So effectively does he recall to her the raptures of her first love that she leaves her husband and goes off with the handsome vagabond—to Africa and, one suspects, poverty.

With a Leslie Howard or Alfred Lunt in the leading role, the play might have been an amusing bit of whimsy. But, it was the consensus of critics that the combination of a microphone with the cinema camera was an embarrassing incident in the career of a La Rocque.

☼ ☼ ☼ ☼

EVERY week for nearly 14 years Henry Bergman received a check for $75. The other day he ordered the check stopped. He told Charlie Chaplin he wouldn't take his weekly check any more unless he worked for it. And thus ended probably the longest long-term contract in Hollywood history.

Bergman, whose Hollywood restaurant bears his first name, has been "associated" with Chaplin since 1918.

When Charlie begins a picture, Henry leaves his business to the management of his help and spends his days and many of his nights on the Chaplin lot.

He played small parts in Chaplin's pictures, helped assemble the story, suggested gags and acted in the capacity of an assistant director.

Chaplin began paying his friend, Henry, $75 weekly for his services. Henry estimates that the comedian paid him almost $55,000.

Henry is a portly fellow, slightly stooped, and with sparse gray hair. He has a cherubic face, a lot of friends—many don't know his last name—and a snappy wardrobe. He looks best in sports clothes. Some time in the distant past Henry sang in opera.

☼ ☼ ☼ ☼

AND while we are on the subject of money it is estimated that when Will Rogers completes the four pictures he has just agreed to make in the next year and a half, the movies will have enriched him to the extent of nearly a million and a quarter dollars.

He gets $125,000 for each talkie; he has made four already. He also received a considerable sum for a number of silent two-reelers.

☼ ☼ ☼ ☼

IT'S all for art's sake, or what they call "production value," in Hollywood. An unusually large set is a reproduction of a section of the international settlement in Shanghai. One hundred or more carpenters and painters spent a week constructing and decorating it.

On one side of the muddy street is Soo-chow creek. The other side is lined with buildings, colorfully decorated in red and gold and black. Trees, shrubs and flowers, which look real, are "growing" in front of the homes and shops.

In the newsreels a few weeks ago were shots from which this set was copied. There are to be re-enacted in this street scene such as the newsreel showed: hundreds of Chinese, rushing helter-skelter from their burning homes in Chapei, dragging, pushing and carrying their children and a few hastily grabbed belongings.

This part of the picture, "The Bitter Tea of General Yen," is to be filmed at night. Soon after sundown the extras begin arriving in big busses. They are mostly Chinese, recruited from the Chinese quarter of Los Angeles; there are soldiers wearing the uniforms of every nation that leases land in the international settlement.

Property men wheel rickshas on to the set, coax mules, cows and goats, drive in tractors and giant trucks and begin wetting it, to give the effect of a long rain.

The excitement begins to grow as assistant directors, some dressed as soldiers, others in the garb of the Chinese refugees, issue orders. Whistles blow and scores of arc lights pierce the darkness.

☼ ☼ ☼ ☼

FRANK CAPRA, the director, after announcing all seems to be in readiness, fires a gun and the action begins. People rush from one end of the street to the other, toward the camera battery.

There are dozens of Chinese mothers, with children strapped to their backs. Capra points out one woman with a year-old child on her back and another, of four at her side. The three will earn $22.50—$7.50 each—for the night's work. Not bad for the family financially, but how about the children's health?

In a few seconds the scene has been taken. The director decides it must be done again. And still another time. This will go on all night, one is told, because it must be perfect.

This particular business on the artificial bank of the artificial Soochow, which cost at least $50,000 to stage, will consume a minute and a half in the completed picture.

A lot of work and a heap of money for a few feet of film? Yes, but that's production value.

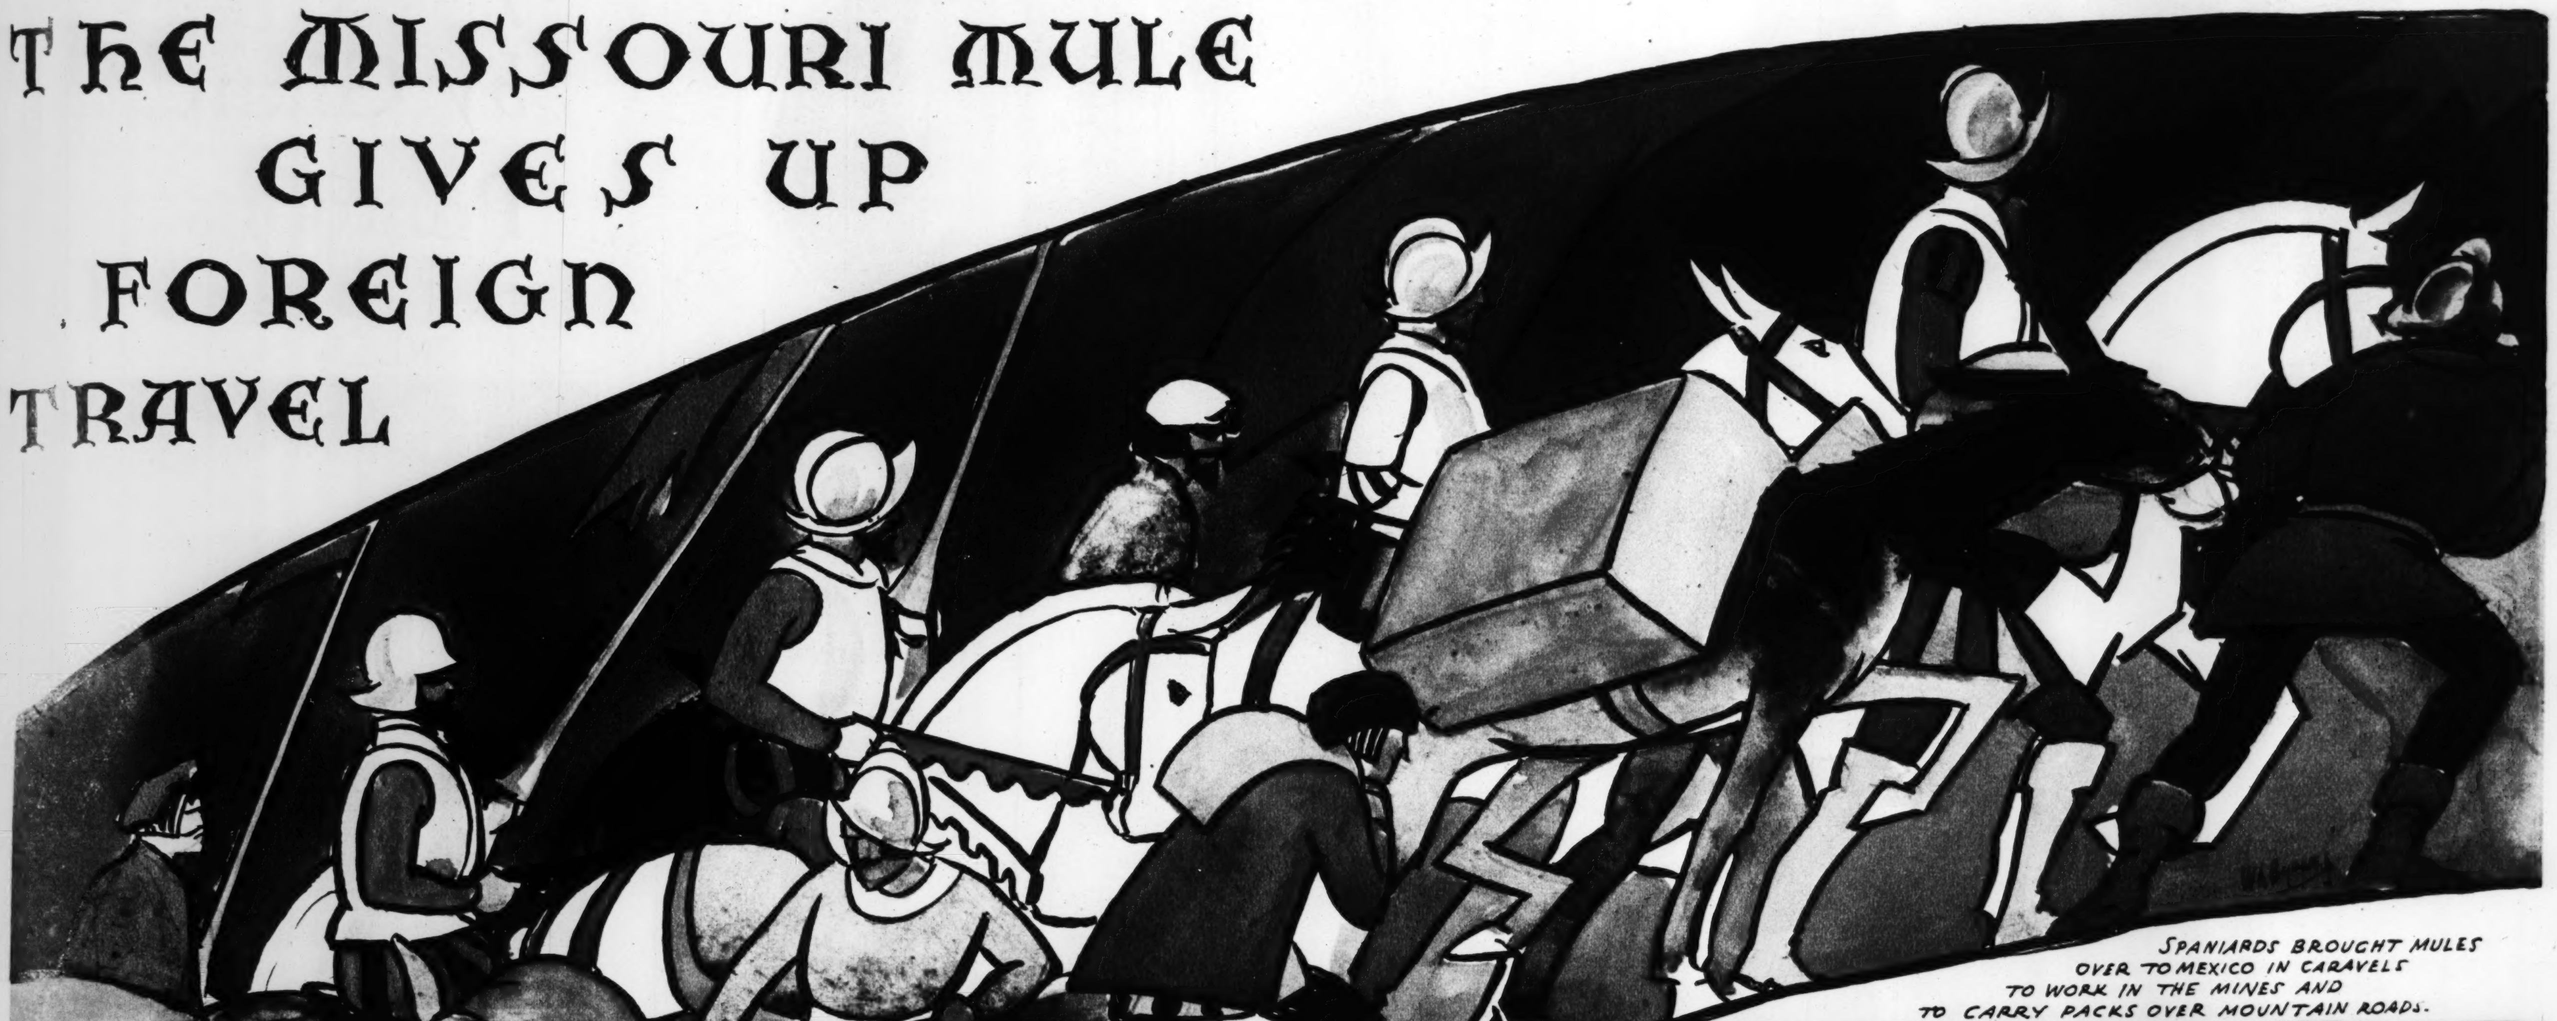
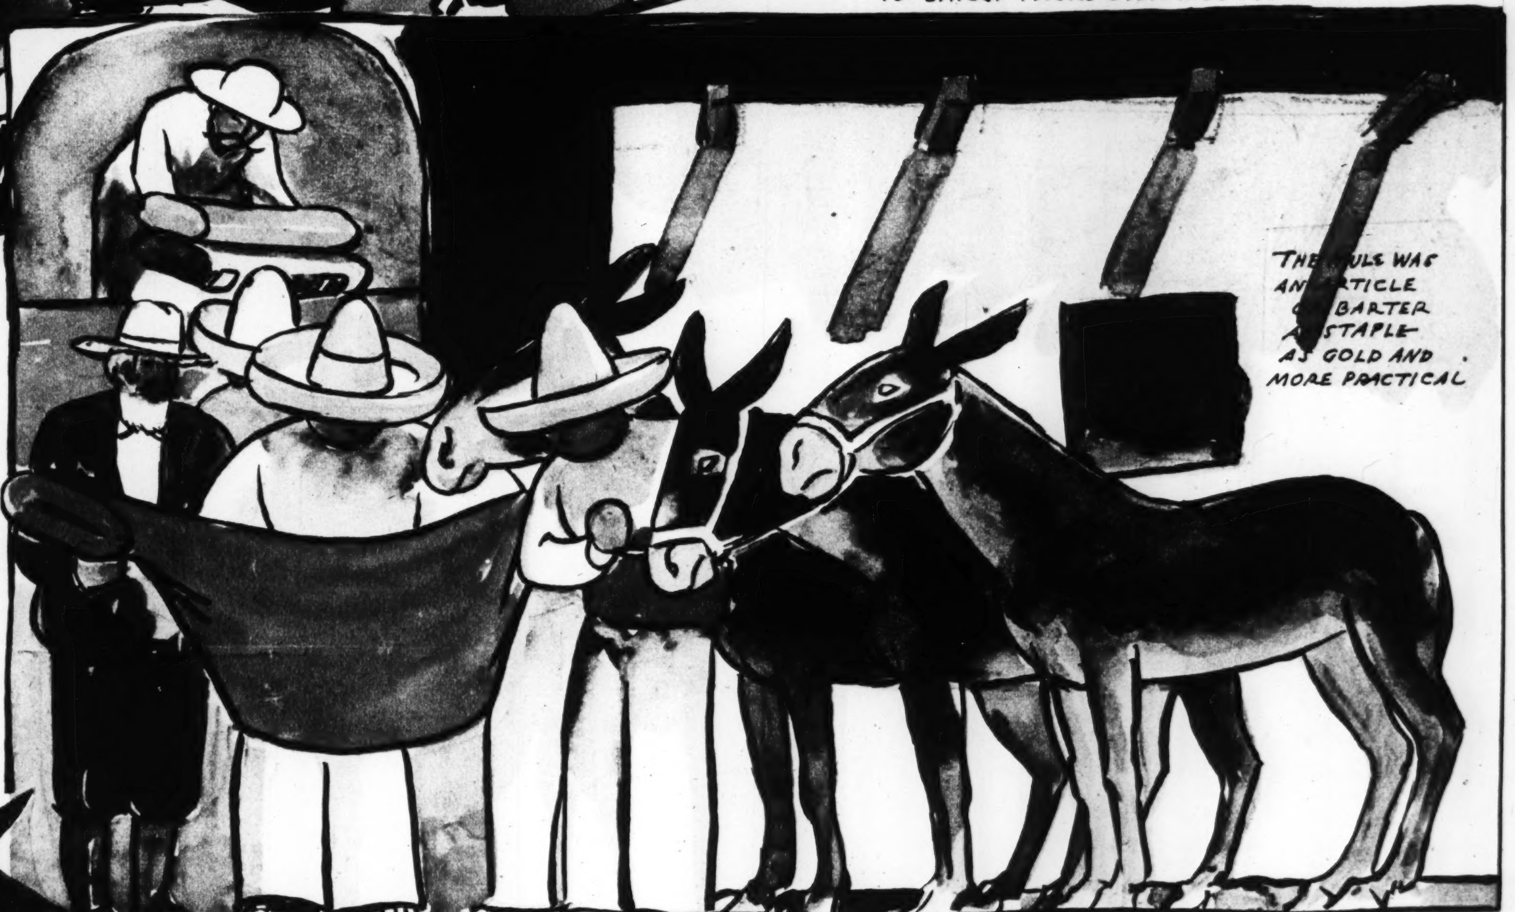
THE MISSOURI MULE GIVES UP FOREIGN TRAVEL



SPANIARDS BROUGHT MULES OVER TO MEXICO IN CARAVELS TO WORK IN THE MINES AND TO CARRY PACKS OVER MOUNTAIN ROADS.



THE MULE WAS AN ARTICLE OF BARTER AS STAPLE AS GOLD AND MORE PRACTICAL

Brought to America by the Spanish Conquerors, Then Bred So Successfully Here That Modern Europe Imported Him, His Journeys Now Have Ceased Due to the Peseta's Decline.

By M. W. CHILDS

Of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine Staff

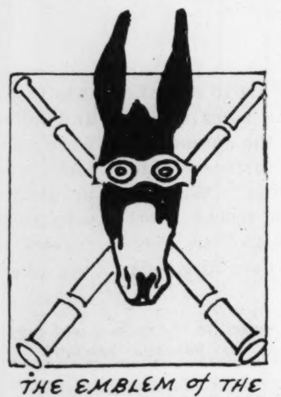
DOWN the road of destiny comes the Missouri mule. History, tradition, the span of centuries from Spain's first conquerors to the newest concrete highway, ride with this humble beast of burden, this humorous half-brother of the horse with his quizzical, half-human eyes.

The mule has had his cycle of history. But now it comes to a full stop. Brought over in the crowded caravels of the Spaniards to work the mines of Mexico and to carry packs over tortuous mountain paths, the mules were small, hot-tempered animals, much abused, much goaded, theirs an unending heavy toil. Then the Santa Fe trail, and the mule was an article of barter as staple as gold coin and more practical. The venturers along the trail bought them from the Apache Indians, brought them back to Missouri, and this State, with its influx of Kentucky horse-raising immigrants, became the mule-raising state of the world.

These hybrids, with a jack for a father and a mare for a mother, were bred, and successfully, for size, docility, endurance; they became all-important in the agriculture of the South. And then, in 1920, Missouri began to ship mules back to Spain—not the same mule—not those little wiry, fiery mules, but almost a new animal that surely the Spanish mules refused to recognize as even first cousin. College boys got free rides to Europe and back as valets to flocks of mules.

Now that has stopped. There are no more mules being shipped over to Spain from East St. Louis stockyards. Spanish importers, with the peseta at about one-third its normal value, can't afford to buy them. And so a cycle of history is marked off, one that can scarcely be matched for blood and thunder in the entire record of man's activities on this planet.

On Missouri's State shield there should, in all justice, be a mule, a pack mule burdened with a grub stake, with pick and shovel crossed argent on a field of blue. Or perhaps it should be the modern mule, the big, rangy, powerful animal that looks out over a rail fence with such a resigned, philosophic air. But the mule has not been altogether neglected in Missouri's official life. The most modern arm of the State, the Missouri National Guard aviation unit, uses the beast as its emblem.



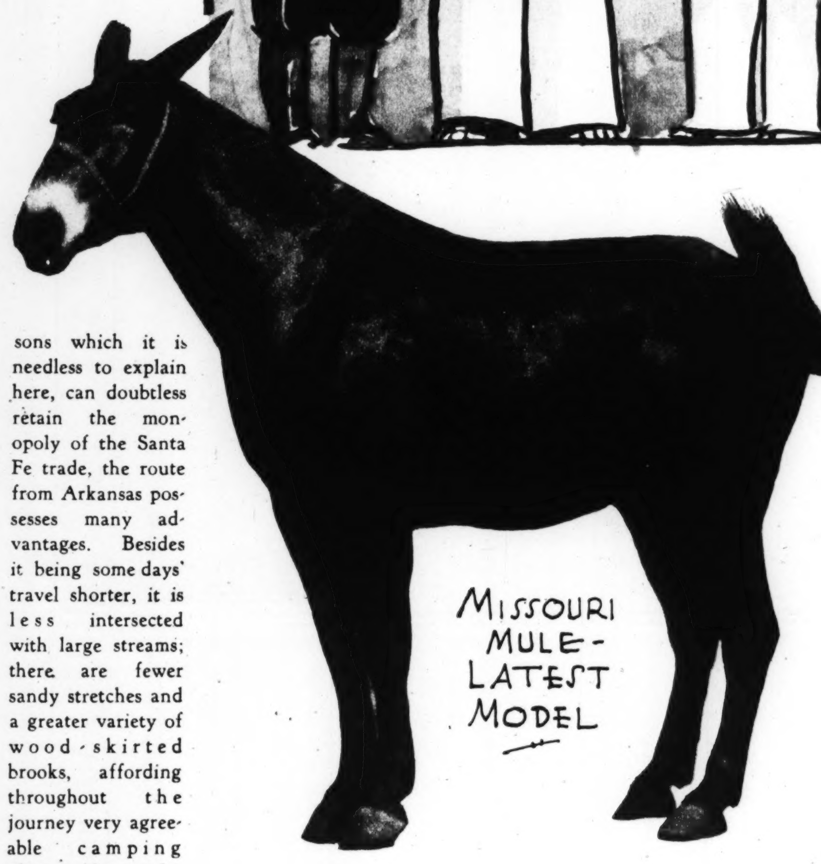
THE EMBLEM of THE MISSOURI NATIONAL GUARD AVIATION UNIT

In the journals of all early travelers there is testimony to the importance of the mule in the settlement of the West. Here is evidence from "Travels in the Great Western Prairies," by Thomas Jefferson Farnham. The year is 1839. The writer was traveling along Turkey Creek, a branch of the Arkansas, on his way to Santa Fe.

"To add to our joy (it was the first day that the sun appeared), a herd of oxen and mules were feeding and lowing upon the opposite bank of the stream. They belonged to the Messrs Bents, who have a trading post upon the Arkansas. One of the partners and thirty-odd men were on their way to St. Louis, with ten wagons laden with peltries. They were also driving down two hundred Santa Fe sheep, for the Missouri market. These animals are usually purchased from the Spaniards; and if the Indians prove to be far enough from the tracks so as to permit the purchaser to drive them into the states, his investment is usually profitable. The Indians, too, residing along the Mexican frontier, not infrequently find it convenient to steal large numbers of mules, etc., from their no less swarthy neighbors; and from the ease with which they acquire them, find themselves able and willing to sell them to traders for a very easily arranged compensation."

Josiah Gregg in his valuable "Commerce of the Prairies," covering journeys from 1831 to 1839, suggested that perhaps Missouri would not be able to dominate forever the Santa Fe trade:

"As regards the two different routes to Santa Fe, although Missouri for various reasons which it is needless to explain here, can doubtless retain the monopoly of the Santa Fe trade, the route from Arkansas possesses many advantages. Besides it being some days' travel shorter, it is less intersected with large streams; there are fewer sandy stretches and a greater variety of wood-skirted brooks, affording throughout the journey very agreeable camping places. Also as the grass springs up nearly a month earlier than in Upper Missouri, caravans could start much sooner, and the proprietors would have double the time to conduct their mercantile transactions. Moreover, the return companies would find better pasturage on their way back and reach their homes before the season of frost had far advanced. Again, such as should desire to engage in the 'stock trade' would at once bring their mules and horses into a more congenial climate—one more in accordance with that of their nativity; for the rigorous winters of Missouri often prove fatal to the unacclimated Mexican animals."



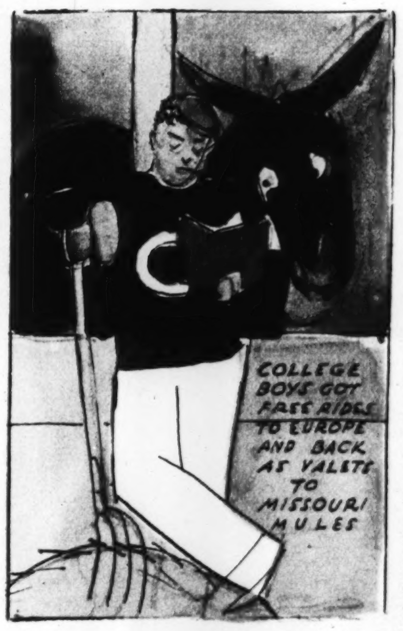
MISSOURI MULE-LATEST MODEL

Despite these handicaps, Missouri's mule industry continued to thrive and grow. In that early day the Santa Fe traders were outfitted here. They bought their pack mules and their horses in St. Louis. There was no greater calamity than to lose the mules on the trail.

Along the border there grew up a regular trade in mules stolen from the Spaniards. The Apaches were so bold and powerful that they dominated whole provinces in Mexico, declared war and agreed to peace to suit their own convenience. "A venta, or quit-claim brand, has actually been marked by the Government upon large numbers of mules and horses which the Indians had robbed from the citizens," Gregg wrote. "It is hardly necessary to add that these truces have rarely been observed by the wily savages longer than the time necessary for the disposal of their plunder. As soon as more mules were needed for service or for traffic—more cattle for beef—more scalps for the war-dance — they would invariably return to their deeds of ravage and murder."

In the war with Mexico and later in the Civil War, the mule did valiant service. Even so early the breed was changing. To Missouri there had come a great flood of immigration from Kentucky. By birth and tradition, these Kentuckians were horsemen. In Missouri they found—perhaps it was one reason for their coming—a soil with a limestone base, somewhat similar to that in Kentucky, excellent for building rangy, powerful horses and mules.

These adopted Missourians from Kentucky began with conscious, painstaking effort to improve the breed. They imported jacks from Spain and bred them to steady, big-boned mares. These expert horsemen desired to change not only the physical characteristics of the mule but they wanted, as well, to improve his temperament. They wanted a quieter, more amenable animal. Here is must be said, in due justice to the mule, that his admirers have always maintained that under decent treatment the mule responds decently.



COLLEGE BOYS GOT FREE RIDES TO EUROPE AND BACK AS VALETS TO MISSOURI MULES

The mule has a kind of canny intelligence. He can't be fooled by man into doing man's tricks, as can the horse. It is only rarely that the mule will consent to race and then he is an uncertain quantity. He can't be bothered by any such foolishness.

For many years thousands of mules have poured through the East St. Louis market, through the Maxwell and Crouch Mule Company, the St. Louis Horse and Mule Commission Company, the Ed Barnett Mule Company. The mule became a vital factor in the agricultural life of the South, to a certain degree in the Southwest, too, particularly in Texas.

Then in 1920 several companies, Barnett and Maxwell and Crouch among them, began to ship mules to Spain. The mule on American soil had bested the European branch of the family. To a certain degree Missouri had lost her dominance (Independence took the lead from St. Louis in outfitting for the Santa Fe trail in later days.) Oklahoma, Illinois and Texas were competitors. Horse and mule breeders had gone from Missouri to the West. A group of Missourians settled in the Gallatin Valley, near Bozeman, Montana. From that source today come horses and mules that would do credit to Missouri or Kentucky.

Many thousands of mules were shipped to Spain. They were the best type of farm mule, bringing $125 a head. Through one

Raising Ships From the Bottom of the Sea by Giant Pontoons

The pontoon, its jaws and the guides.

Ready to raise the wreck.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

NEW YORK.

SINCE the World War littered the floor of the Atlantic with sunken ships, problems of marine salvage have challenged inventors with renewed insistence. Many millions of dollars worth of shipping and cargoes lies on the bottom of the sea awaiting recovery; much of it is so situated, however, that experts think it would be useless to attempt to recover it by established salvage methods. The chief problem has been that of raising ships sunk in water so deep that divers could not reach them.

Some inventors have tried to find a way for men to descend to lower depths than ever before. They have designed improvements in diving armor, various kinds of compartments in which men could be sent far beneath the surface, and numerous mechanical devices to be employed by workers in their submarine tasks. Other inventors have attempted to find a method of raising ships which did not require the use of divers—which made it unnecessary for anyone to touch a wrecked vessel before it was brought to the surface.

Such a diverless salvage system has been worked out by Giuseppe Bontempi, a New Jersey inventor and engineer. Since it provides for human participation in the operations being carried out on the surface, the inventor thinks his device will be able to salvage many ships and valuable cargoes hitherto considered unrecoverable because of the depth at which they rest.

Bontempi calls his invention "controlled grappling pontoons." They consist of a series of air chambers on a steel framework provided with gripping steel jaws. Two sets of these pontoons are lowered from the salvage vessel, and guided so that they settle over the wreck, one fore, the other aft, with the jaws ready to grip it. The pontoons are then filled with compressed air from tanks on the salvage ship, and as they start to rise the steel jaws clamp on the sides of the wreck. Thus held fast, the submerged boat is brought to the surface by the buoyancy of the pontoons. Whether the device has been so tested as to prove it will be successful in actual salvage work has not been disclosed.

There have been other ship-raising methods involving the use of pontoons. The plan which seems to resemble most closely that of Bontempi was known as the Devito method. It provided for the use of two pontoons hinged together at either end, the action of the hinges being controlled by an air cylinder. The pontoons were lowered so that one lay on each side of the wreck. Then air was pumped into the cylinder, which rose, closing the hinges until the pontoons were clamped tightly against the vessel. Then water was pumped out of the pontoons.

The British Admiralty, shortly after the war, built a huge salvage plant which made use of pontoons. The pontoons were constructed of cement and formed a floating dry dock in two halves. The idea was to lower one half of the dock on either side of a submerged ship, pump out the water, and float the vessel to the surface.

IN MOST of the important ship-raising operations divers have been employed. They were needed to pass chains or wire ropes under a sunken vessel if it was to be pulled up by this means. If a ship was to be raised by pumping compressed air into its compartments, men had to be sent down to seal all holes in the compartments. Divers also have been used in pontoon operations, to attach pontoons to a sunken ship.

In shallow water various methods have been used successfully to raise wrecked boats. One is to build a bulkhead around the wreck, pump out the water, repair the hull so it will float, then admit water to the inclosure again until the ship is afloat.

The greatest of marine salvaging operations since the war was the raising of 32 of the 51 vessels of the German high seas fleet, which the Germans scuttled in Scapa Flow. Under the direction of E. F. Cox the salvage job went on for seven years.

A huge floating dock was used. Some of the vessels were lifted by placing parts of the dock on either side of them, slinging steel hawsers under the hulls and hauling them up with derricks. The larger vessels, however, were floated by pumping air into them after holes had been patched and bulkheads made airtight. Divers were employed, and in some cases air locks were constructed into the interior of the wreck to enable the workmen to go down and make necessary repairs. The 28,000-ton Hindenburg was one of the vessels raised.

The wreck raised to the surface and kept afloat by its pontoon rescuers.

MUNICH, Germany.

HERE, far from the madding crowd at distant Hollywood, sits a very distinguished lady on whom the Hollywood overlords have designs. By cablegram, by long distance telephone, by urgent letter, they have broken in upon her vacation languor. As she sips her drink on the terrace of the Regina Palast Hotel comes another footman with another silver salver on which there is another cablegram. Hollywood again.

Miss Katharine Cornell, who is the lady on the terrace, has won all endurance records for holding out on Hollywood. Ever since her first New York success in Clemence Dane's "A Bill of Divorcement" the movies have been after her. And at the conclusion of her amazingly successful tour in "The Barretts of Wimpole Street" the big boys in Hollywood just about offered to pave the streets with gold if she would consent to make a single picture, the screen version of "The Barretts."

When she said "no," they pleaded with her to reserve her decision for six months. That time limit elapsed the other day and in response to urgent appeals from California Miss Cornell cabled another polite refusal.

It is not, as some have had it, that she "snubs" Hollywood. Her enthusiasm, her interests, all are centered on the legitimate stage. And there she will stay so long as she can find an audience. If past popularity means anything, that will be for many years to come. At least, this is Miss Cornell's determination at the present moment, with nearly a quarter of a million dollars of profit from "The Barretts of Wimpole Street" safely stowed away in New York. That was approximately her share and the share of her husband, Guthrie McClintock, producer of the play, in the long New York run and subsequent road tour of the skillful drama about Robert Browning's love for Elizabeth Barrett.

"I love the theater too much," Miss Cornell told this correspondent the other day. "I want to live and die on the stage. When the time comes that I no longer can produce my own plays and appear in leading roles I hope I shall find something whereby I still may be a part of the living theater.

"It was my first love. I cannot remember when I did not want to work in it. I could not hope then that I might have the privilege that has since come to me. I recall that when first I went to New York, armed with introductions, to interview producers, who promptly but courteously tried to discourage my undertaking an acting career, I asked for only two lines to speak. I am sure they thought me a pauper in ambition that I did not crave to appear as Juliet or Lady Macbeth, but my whole being was then centered in putting my foot on the stage. Perhaps the greatest thrill I ever experienced or ever shall experience was the day when a stage director told me that the four-word part I had rehearsed during the illness of the regular member of the company was mine."

Miss Cornell appears from the first to have been marked for success. She rose rapidly and surely to the rank of a star. She was born in Buffalo, the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Peter Cornell, a family with background and comfortable income. As a young girl Miss Cornell went often to St. Louis to visit her cousins, Edwine and Marjorie Thornburgh, the former now Lady Wilfred Peek of London, the latter Mrs. John Halliday, residing with her husband in the Philippine Islands.

Miss Cornell's family did not oppose her desire to go on the stage. In fact, they sent her to a dramatic school. After completion of this course, she made her debut on the stage with the Washington Square Players in "Bushido" in a minute part—that four-word part she spoke about. What she lacked was stage presence. She was frightfully sensitive and shy.

Determined to overcome this shyness, she went to Detroit and got a job with Jessie Bonstelle's stock company. She worked up role after role and soon achieved starring parts with the stock company. She has often said that this early rapid-fire training has been at the bottom of her success. It was such a thorough discipline.

KATHARINE CORNELL
Says 'NO' to the MOVIES

For Ten Years Hollywood Has Pursued Her, Redoubling Its Efforts Since Her Most Recent Success, But This Distinguished Actress Is Not Interested in the Screen's Gold.

*By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

MUNICH, Germany.

HERE, far from the madding crowd at distant Hollywood, sits a very distinguished lady on whom the Hollywood overlords have designs. By cablegram, by long distance telephone, by urgent letter, they have broken in upon her vacation languor. As she sips her drink on the terrace of the Regina Palast Hotel comes another footman with another silver salver on which there is another cablegram. Hollywood again.

Miss Katharine Cornell, who is the lady on the terrace, has won all endurance records for holding out on Hollywood. Ever since her first New York success in Clemence Dane's "A Bill of Divorcement" the movies have been after her. That time limit elapsed the other day and in response to urgent appeals from California Miss Cornell cabled another polite refusal.

It is not, as some have had it, that she "snubs" Hollywood. Her enthusiasm, her interests, all are centered on the legitimate stage. And there she will stay so long as she can find an audience. If past popularity means anything, that will be for many years to come. That was approximately her share and the share of her husband, Guthrie McClintock, producer of the play, in the long New York run and subsequent road tour of the skillful drama about Robert Browning's love for Elizabeth Barrett.

"I love the theater too much," Miss Cornell told this correspondent the other day. "I want to live and die on the stage. When the time comes that I no longer can produce my own plays and appear in leading roles I hope I shall find something whereby I still may be a part of the living theater.

Perhaps the greatest thrill I ever experienced or ever shall experience was the day when a stage director told me that the four-word part I had rehearsed during the illness of the regular member of the company was mine."

Miss Cornell appears from the first to have been marked for success. She rose rapidly and surely to the rank of a star. She was born in Buffalo, the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Peter Cornell, a family with background and comfortable income. As a young girl Miss Cornell went often to St. Louis to visit her cousins, Edwine and Marjorie Thornburgh, the former now Lady Wilfred Peek of London, the latter Mrs. John Halliday, residing with her husband in the Philippine Islands.

Miss Cornell's family did not oppose her desire to go on the stage. In fact, they sent her to a dramatic school. What she lacked was stage presence. She was frightfully sensitive and shy.

Determined to overcome this shyness, she went to Detroit and got a job with Jessie Bonstelle's stock company. She worked up role after role and soon achieved starring parts with the stock company. She has often said that this early rapid-fire training has been at the bottom of her success. It was such a thorough discipline.

Katharine Cornell.

Then offers came from New York managers.

But she accepted first an offer to play "Jo" in a London production of "Little Women." Returning to America, she played in "Nice People," "A Bill of Divorcement," "Will Shakespeare," "The Enchanted Cottage," "Casanova," "The Way Things Happen," "The Outsider," "Tiger Cats" and "Candida." Then came "The Green Hat" and for three years she was the languishing heroine for whom young men were constantly smashing themselves up in expensive motor cars. In "The Letter," which was another success that went on the road, she was again a lady of somewhat easy virtue. There was a brief interlude in which she starred in a rather extraordinary murder play, taking the role of a Scotch girl who poisoned her lover.

Then she had a chance to get Rudolf Besier's play, "The Barretts of Wimpole Street." She has said that one reason she was so anxious to get this play was because the leading role portrayed a virtuous, a noble, romance. Besides it was a better play than almost any other in which she had appeared. Critics up to this point had given her credit for making much of third rate plays but they were becoming a little impatient.

From the opening night "The Barretts" was a success. It ran many months in New York to virtually capacity audiences. Miss Cornell and Mr. McClintock announced, while the play was still at the height of its run, that they were going to take it on the road. Broadway assumed that this was only a publicity dodge. But one day trucks backed up to the New Empire Theater and hauled 50 Wimpole Street away. Terrible Papa Barrett, the Barrett brothers, the cousin, the doctor, Flush, Mr. Browning, and Miss Elizabeth and all her shawls were going touring, Broadway snickered. They'll be back, was the word of the wiseacres. Trying the road in a year of black depression? Madness.

The tour of "The Barretts" is now theatrical history. In Boston Miss Cornell refused to stay more than three weeks despite the fact that the last week the receipts went $2000 over the actual capacity of the house. Five days before they were due to open in Washington every seat had been sold for every single performance. The first six days in Philadelphia brought $32,080 into the till and this in a house with only 1700 seats. The second six days of the Philadelphia run, during Holy Week, reached $33,657.

After four Chicago weeks, during which receipts were limited by a small theater to $100,000, the company gave a special matinee in the huge Chicago Civic Opera House for the benefit of payless teachers. Ten thousand were turned away. In St. Louis late in the spring, "The Barretts" did a good business.

Miss Cornell as Elizabeth Barrett in "The Barretts of Wimpole Street." Robert Browning is played by Brian Aherne.

But the greatest triumph remained for Hollywood. The opening night audience was a convention of stars. Every "name" in Hollywood was there. Ermine and satin and tails were the order in dress and all the Hollywood trained seals watched with respectful awe while Miss Cornell unfolded the thrilling drama of her desperate struggle against the tyranny of her father for the right to love Mr. Browning. At the last curtain the stars rose as one and cheered and cheered and cheered. But whether, as some impertinent person has thought to ask, for the actress who said "no" to Hollywood or the poetess who said "yes" to Mr. Browning it was impossible to say.

Reception of the play in San Francisco was almost as overwhelming. The enthusiasm of the audience reduced the actors to tears. When the curtain fell upon performance No. 541 Miss Cornell was free to board the Overland Limited, Europe-bound. In the 16 months it played, the estimated total of receipts was $1,500,000.

"PLEASE understand me," says Miss Cornell, discussing those rejected movie offers. "I do not underestimate the talking pictures. They can do things our stage never can do, but we can do things entirely out of the range and possibilities of the screen and these are the things I care leeply for. While it is true that I was to be given in pictures the chance to appear in roles I myself chose, in my own theater I can act and produce the dramas I am interested in and if by good fortune these please the public I can play them so long as I feel this justified.

"It was with regret that I read that in some quarters my refusal of the picture offers was construed as 'high-hatting Hollywood,' as the alliterative writers put it. This was far from my intention. I have admired and do admire many film actors who have done fine work and some of the productions I have seen. It remains that at present I am not interested and to do good work one must be, in every fibre of one's heart and body, intent on the project at hand."

Miss Cornell's husband, McClintock, who stages all her plays, has had an active interest in the movies from time to time. He has directed several talking pictures, the last one being "Once a Lady," with Ruth Chatterton. He seconded his wife's refusal to appear in the films, not because he is opposed to them, as he probably will direct other pictures in the future, but because he fully sympathizes with her attitude toward herself and her art.

"I have not said and do not say that I never shall appear on the screen, Miss Cornell continues. "It would be ridiculous for anyone in this age to make a statement so final. It is impossible even to guess at the future of the stage and the screen. But I do know that whatever ability and knowledge of acting I have or have acquired is fundamentally for the speaking stage.

"Fortunately for me the one great temptation of Hollywood—the money that is to be earned there—does not have to be taken into consideration at present.

"The public's interest in the spoken drama is such that it is not necessary for me to give up the stage I love so intensely in order that I may live. Our tour in 'The Barretts of Wimpole Street' should be proof conclusive that the speaking theater has an even greater appeal for the people at large than it ever had. If good plays, well staged and acted, are presented, if the public is given a fair deal and is not asked to pay quality prices for shoddy material, there isn't the slightest doubt of the ready response in every section of this country to our theater. And after such proof of the loyalty of our audiences I am the more convinced that I need not swerve from my earliest ambition—that of being a part of the living stage.

As now planned, Miss Cornell will return to America in the late fall to open on Broadway in Sidney Howard's "Alien Corn."

It is interesting that probably no one has been more surprised at the furor her movie refusal has created than Katharine Cornell herself. It seems so simple to her; it is so extraordinary to the world that there is an actress left who does not want to be a screen star.

SILVER BULLET

By EUGENE CUNNINGHAM

SHELLEY RAINES jerked Rojo to a halt. He sat staring through the darkness toward the narrow, two-story stone bank on his left. It was from somewhere on that side of Mundy's dust-paved main street that the flat, muffled rap-rap-rap of shots had ripped out, close together.

Suddenly a man came hurrying out of the darkness on Shelley's left. Shelley covered the figure with a steady muzzle.

"Stick 'em up, fella—then come on an' let's augur."

"Sheriff?" the dark figure gasped. "Horine? Sanders? O'Day? For God's sake—something has happened in the bank. Somebody's hurt! I heard shots—groaning"——

"Who're yuh?" Shelley demanded.

"Tooley! Relief bartender—Owl."

"I'm Sergeant Raines o' the Rangers," Shelley snapped. "Come on. Let's go see."

"You go—if you want to. I'm no officer," the man gasped.

Shelley snarled and piled off of Rojo. "Then stay here."

He went toward the front of the building. As he passed the Owl bartender he noted mechanically a pungent reek of horse liniment.

Then he came to the rear corner of the building and halted. He edged along the wall toward the back door.

Halting at this door, there came to him a strange, monotonous sound, a tap, tap, tap, tap.

He crouched and went through the doorway. The dripping sound was louder—and slower, the taps more widely spaced.

He shook his head angrily and lifted his Colts.

"Who's there?" he snarled furiously. "Answer up!"

There was no answer, only that monotonous sound within two yards of him. He laid a Colt on the floor; reached up and got a match from his hatband; scratched it and threw it straight ahead.

The match-flare illumined weirdly for a split second a claw-like white hand that seemed to hang of itself in the air four feet away, on a level with Shelley's eyes. The arm of a man who sprawled on his back across a big packing box.

SHELLEY ran out and back to the street, looking for that bartender. The fellow was gone; Shelley could not see Rojo. So he emptied the five chambers of his gun into the air. Within two minutes he was in the middle of a crowd. He demanded the Sheriff—and a doctor.

"I'm Sher'f Horine," a man grunted, pushing through. "Who are you? What's the idee o' shootin' off your"— Shelley cut him short and told briefly his own part in the discovery and of the bartender's. They rushed around and inside.

"That's Edwin Hill—Roarin' Rall Hill's nephew," the Sheriff told Shelley scowlingly. "Roarin' Rall owns the bank an' half o' Mundy. He'll roar right, now. You said you met Tooley, Owl bartender? You're crazy! Tooley's been on watch at the Owl since 8 tonight."

"Better git a doctor—pronto," Shelley grunted, ignoring that. "See if he's really dead. Yuh want me to help in this? Bueno! Then let's keep the crowd back, an' have a look in the bank itself."

One glance inside the long single room of the bank was enough to tell the story. The big, old-fashioned iron vault was open. A litter of small bills was on the floor before it.

A doctor was bending over Edwin Hill, who now lay on the floor. The little, white-haired doctor shook his head at Shelley and it was then that Horine came in.

"Good as dead. Lost so much blood"——

The eyes flickered open in the pale face of the young cashier.

"Denver—Mead!" he gasped. "Denver—Mead! Pulled me—out of—bed. Down—here. Made me—open vault—shot me—shot me"—

A stocky young man—cowboy by the look of him—moved on the edge of the breathless spectators with the dying cashier's first word. Shelley, staring at him, saw his blue eyes widen, his tanned face turn a sickly yellow, his somewhat grim mouth sag open. He glared down at the thin, pale face of Edwin Hill.

"It's not so!" he cried thickly. "What're you saying? You know it's not so. I tell you"—

THERE was an old Mexican among the gaping spectators. He was staring down at young Hill. Suddenly he made a sound as if choking. He lifted a trembling forefinger to indicate the cashier's throat. His face was convulsed, the loose old mouth twisted.

"El Lobo! El Lobo Solo! El Lobo Diabolo!" he croaked. "The Devil Wolf! See the marks of his teeth. On the boy's throat!"

They stared at the thin, white neck of Edwin Hill. There were bloody prints that might have been made by teeth; teeth that had gripped savagely. For fascinated, horrified seconds, the men there were silent. Deep in their throats, they made a savage, growling sound.

Shelley moved while still the dark, sulky-faced sheriff gaped. He caught Denver Mead by the shoulder and fairly charged with him to the door into the banking room. He pushed him through and stood in the doorway, right-hand Colt out, left hand pulling the other gun.

"Take it easy, folks. The'll be no lynchin'."

"You're all right, Ranger. But you jist don't know," a big fellow yelled. "He's got the teethmarks in his throat, ain't he, same's all the others—same's Gonzales' boy. Same's that pore old prospector that was comin' into town out o' the Chagres Hills with his sack o' nuggets. Ranger, we aim to swing him to a corral-gate."

"First man makes a move I kill," Horine cried shrilly.

Sullenly, the dozen men pushed outside. Horine slammed the door.

"Now," Shelley said calmly, as if there had been no interruption, "let's see what's what. Edwin Hill says Mead drug him down yere. Mead says Hill was mistook. I would like to know who that was, that claimed to be Tooley, the barkeep."

There came a pounding on the barred back door. A girl's voice called shakily for her father, for Rall Hill. They opened the door and a slender figure pushed in.

"I heard that—that Edwin was hurt!" she gasped.

She went to the cashier and Shelley saw that Denver Mead watched her somberly. At that moment the doctor removed his stethoscope and shook his head.

"Too bad!" he said.

"He—he's not dead!" the girl cried.

"Denver Mead," her father rasped. "Edwin recognized him. Your ex-beau—Denver Mead!"

"I don't believe it!" Madeline Hill cried.

For the first time, she seemed to see the grim-faced Mead beyond Shelley's big figure.

"Mead," Shelley rasped, "where yuh been, all evenin'? All the she'f an' me want is the fella that killed the boy. For this was lowdown, cold-blood' murder. Got a alibi?"

"None worth a whoop," Denver Mead shrugged. "I—I was in Room 11, down at Ma Follis' hotel. I"—

"Anybody with yuh? Anybody could say yuh was in th' durin' this business?"

"I"— He hesitated, then shook his head defiantly.

Shelley heaved a relieved sigh when Denver Mead was on the second floor of the stone building in a jail cell.

SHERIFF HORINE and his deputies left him immediately, to begin investigations in the town. Shelley went into the Owl and stood at the bar.

"Who's Tooley?" he grunted to the pale, nervous little man behind the bar.

"I'm Tooley. An' I been on watch since 8 o'clock. I do' know who 't was, sayin' he was me, Cap'n. An' I can prove it."

Shelley sniffed.

"Yuh don't have to prove a thing," he grinned. "If it'd been yuh, I'd've knowed it plenty. That fella had hawse-liniment on. I left him the' with my red hawse an'—"

He whirled toward the door. Up and down the street he went. But there was no sign of Rojo.

He went back to the bank and tried to find Rojo's tracks. But there were no hoofprints.

There was a big 'dobe house beyond the bank and a light showed yellow in a window. Shelley was greeted at the door by that old Mexican, Gonzales, who had first seen the wounds on Edwin Hill's throat.

"Yes, I saw a man riding away as I came out when you fired your shots to attract the town," he nodded. "Naturally, I did not think anything of it.

"He went along that track yonder, this horseman who may have been riding your horse. That way leads to the South Road. Once upon that, a man might turn east, to Milliken Siding, where El Lobo murdered the storekeeper, or west toward Finney Crossroads where the American, Hawes, has a store."

He looked nervously about him, then leaned forward with his wrinkled old brown face almost into Shelley's.

"Sarjento, how can a creature like this be killed by an ordinary bullet? Nothing but a silver bullet marked with a Cross, can slay a devil."

He turned and hurried away from the door. Presently, he came back and held out something on his palm. Shelley stared. It was a .44 shell with a roughly-conical projectile of silver replacing the usual lead. Upon the silver a cross was scratched.

Shelley solemnly humored him and replaced a shell in his right-hand gun with the .44 from Gonzales' palm. Then he crossed to the road Gonzales had indicated and found Rojo's hoofprints.

Shelley went grimly back to the sheriff's office.

He found the sheriff in the office with his two deputies.

Horine was telling them that they had the murderer of Edwin Hill, certainly; perhaps El Lobo.

"YUH have—not," Shelley drawled. "His boots never fitted the tracks I found. He wasn't inside the bank—not with the boots he's wearin' now, anyhow—until he come in with the crowd. I'm the nitwit. I had the murderer in my paw an' didn't have sense to know it. He got on my red hawse an' rode off. I want a good hawse, come daylight. I'm trailin' that fella."

"Take mine," said Deputy Sanders. "My black is in the corral out back o' the jail. Take him."

Daylight found Shelley on the South Road, following Rojo's trail westward. About 8 o'clock, the trail turned off into rocky country and vanished.

He went back to the road and headed for Finney Crossroads. Hawes was a tall, gangling and silent man, weary-faced, slow-moving. Shelley ate breakfast from the shelves and talked of the murder and robbery. Hawes had heard nothing of it.

Shelley walked back to get some canned goods to take with him. As he passed the counter-end he stopped and stared at some quart whisky bottles that reeked of the horse liniment with which they were filled.

"Right strong!" he grunted at Hawes. "Sell much o' that?"

"Some. Haven't sold any in a month or so."

"Happen to recall who bought the last bottle?"

He wondered why Hawes should be staring at him so.

"Oh!" Hawes nodded. "The last time I can remember sellin' a bottle was to a cowboy from the Diamond-V, that's Roarin' Rall Hill's big outfit thirty miles from here. But that was seven-eight months ago. I must've sold some since."

"Somethin' is mighty funny," Shelley told himself, as he rode away from the store. "He took my speakin' about the liniment as a kind o' jolt—seemed like."

When noon came and he had not picked up any trail of Rojo, the storekeeper was more and more on his mind. He began to bend his way back in a loop that would bring him back along the edges of the Chagres Hills, against which the store almost touched in its rear.

DARK came and he jogged on, puzzling the murder—and, particularly, the claim of the dying cashier that Denver Mead had pulled him out of bed and, later, shot him.

"Por dios! Mr. Tooley—that wasn't Tooley—was about Denver's size, at a guess. An' a fella that'd claim to be one man he wasn't might claim to be another—claim to be Denver Mead. An' he did have on a boot that was wore almost through the sole—an' Denver's boots are good."

He debated with himself whether to ask Hawes for lodging. He decided not to. Instead, he passed the store at a half-mile distance and made camp by a little thread of a creek, staking out the black horse. He curled up in the slicker and saddle blanket and went quickly to sleep.

Shelley had not the slightest warning of the body that crashed down upon him. All he knew was that he was waked from heavy sleep by arms that encircled him, kept him from getting his Colt up. A shaggy head was silhouetted for an instant against the moon's face; and with a horrible half-whining, half-snarling noise, teeth were grazing his chin.

In all his life, Shelley had never wrestled with anyone who had the enormous strength of arm this inhuman-seeming creature possessed. He whipped up his knees and drove them, swathed as they were by slicker and blanket, into his assailant's stomach.

He was the larger and the heavier. He managed to roll on top of the whining thing for an instant.

He lifted himself, dragging up the other with him. He plunged downward with a force that drove the creature's head against the sod with a terrific thud, his own head banging into its face. The grip of the arms relaxed and Shelley tore himself loose.

Up from the ground the thing got, crouched almost to all-fours. Never in his life had Shelley seen anything that moved with the uncanny speed of it. It vanished behind a cottonwood.

Shelley jerked out his left-hand gun and ran staggeringly after. There was a horse there and toward it the thing was streaking. Shelley blazed away five shots, with no more apparent effect than to increase the incredible speed of the creature. It seemed to bounce from the ground like a ball and land on the horse—and that horse was Rojo!

Shelley whirled and lunged back to Sanders' black. He scooped up and holstered his right-hand gun; ran on. He knew the deputy's horse would have scant chance of overtaking Rojo. A hundred yards away, going toward the store, he saw his quarry.

Everything that black had, Shelley got out of him. But Rojo had to stumble twice to let Shelley gain.

They came up to the store and went by it. And from its dark rear someone opened up with a rifle on Shelley. He lay flat on the black's neck, got his gun out, somehow, and fired twice toward the rifle's flashes. The shooting stopped and he drove the black to a gallop even more furious.

The creature on Rojo was going uphill 50 yards or more ahead. Suddenly it vanished. Shelley wondered if it

BASEBALL fans throughout the land—and a host of people only remotely interested in the game—are today debating the question, "What's wrong with this fellow Hornsby?"

The history, the character, the habits and the eccentricities of this outstanding star and strategist are being discussed, argued and weighed. Today the burning baseball question is not: "Who is going to win the pennant?" It's: "What's wrong with this fellow Hornsby?"

For the "Rajah of Swat" has been got rid of again. This time by the management of the Chicago Cubs, under circumstances which have not been explained to the full satisfaction of the fans. The St. Louis Cardinals, New York Giants, Boston Braves and Chicago Cubs, in turn, have profited through the services of this great player and have all dropped him with shocking suddenness. In four cases, Hornsby was disposed of through trade but this time he has been fired.

Hornsby, himself, answers the query by stoutly denying there's anything wrong with Hornsby. The trouble, he says, lies with club officials.

"There's too many blankety-blank two-faced people mixed up in this game," he spouted, when I talked with him the other day. "It's got to a point where a man doesn't know where his real friends are. In fact, a baseball man hasn't got a real friend. So-called friends turn out to be double-crossers.

"What the club owners want is a good 'yes man'. That's all they'll stand for, and if you don't 'yes' them they get rid of you.

"Well," he added, "they'll never make a 'yes man' of me."

There you have an insight into the character of baseball's enigmatic Hornsby. Rog talks baseball just like he plays it. He hits for extra bases. Bunts don't appeal to him.

It is generally conceded that he never hesitates to "tell 'em." Whether the listener happens to be an umpire or the president of the club that's paying his salary makes no more difference to Hornsby than it would to the unblushing Mr. Popeye.

But the grandstand managers can't see how a man is justified in getting himself thrown out of a $40,000-a-year job and making a habit of it. If a ball club sells, trades or fires a player it usually means that the ball club doesn't want the player any longer. John Zilch, who does his managing from a third-row seat in the left field bleachers, tells his neighbor that he'd say "yes" to the club owners in every language including deaf and dumb, for one-half of $40,000.

In almost every instance, these sudden transfers of Hornsby from one club to another have been attended by rumors. It is known that he has been more or less addicted to betting on the race horses—which some baseball club owners consider dangerous.

BASEBALL fans throughout the land—and a host of people only remotely interested in the game — are today debating the question, "What's wrong with this fellow Hornsby?"

The history, the character, the habits and the eccentricities of this outstanding star and strategist are being discussed, argued and weighed. Today the burning baseball question is not: "Who is going to win the pennant?" It's: "What's wrong with this fellow Hornsby?"

For the "Rajah of Swat" has been got rid of again. This time by the management of the Chicago Cubs, under circumstances which have not been explained to the full satisfaction of the fans. The St. Louis Cardinals, New York Giants, Boston Braves and Chicago Cubs, in turn, have profited through the services of this great player and have all dropped him with shocking suddenness. In four cases, Hornsby was disposed of through trade but this time he has been fired.

Hornsby, himself, answers the query by stoutly denying there's anything wrong with Hornsby. The trouble, he says, lies with club officials.

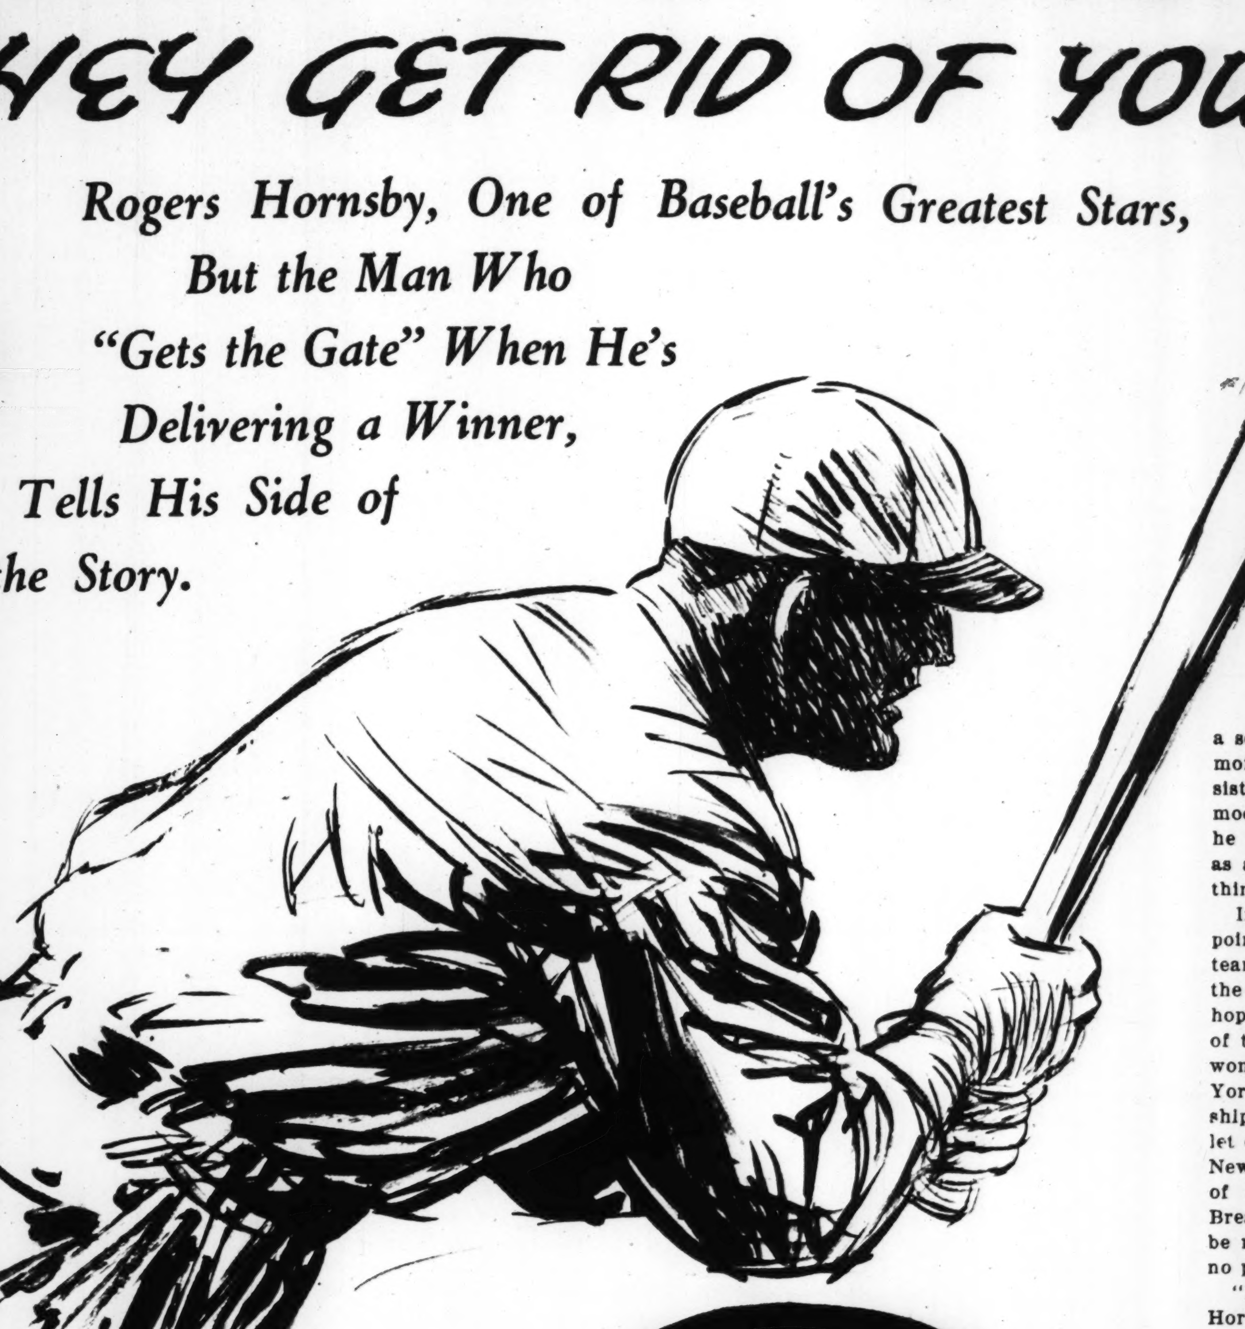
He played with the Boston Braves.



Rogers Hornsby.

"There's too many blankety-blank two-faced people mixed up in this game," he spouted, when I talked with him the other day. "It's got to a point where a man doesn't know where his real friends are. In fact, a baseball man hasn't got a real friend. So-called friends turn out to be double-crossers.

"What the club owners want is a good 'yes man'. That's all they'll stand for, and if you don't 'yes' them they get rid of you.

"Well," he added, "they'll never make a 'yes man' of me."

There you have an insight into the character of baseball's enigmatic Hornsby. Rog talks baseball just like he plays it. He hits for extra bases. Bunts don't appeal to him.

It is generally conceded that he never hesitates to "tell 'em." Whether the listener happens to be an umpire or the president of the club that's paying his salary makes no more difference to Hornsby than it would to the unblushing Mr. Popeye.

But the grandstand managers can't see how a man is justified in getting himself thrown out of a $40,000-a-year job and making a habit of it. If a ball club sells, trades or fires a player it usually means that the ball club doesn't want the player any longer. John Zilch, who does his managing from a third-row seat in the left field bleachers, tells his neighbor that he'd say "yes" to the club owners in every language including deaf and dumb, for one-half of $40,000.

In almost every instance, these sudden transfers of Hornsby from one club to another have been attended by rumors. It is known that he has been more or less addicted to betting on the race horses—which some baseball club owners consider dangerous.

"But," says Rog, "I don't see anything puzzling about my moves. I'm not hard to get along with, either. My record with the players will bear me out. It's just that I can't stand 'second guessing.'

"Look here. If I'm the club owner, or the head of the club, and I need a manager, I'm going to look around until I find a man in whom I have confidence. In other words, I won't sign a man until I have a fellow who is capable. Now, after I sign him I think the best thing I can do is let him run the ball club on the field. I should keep my nose out of the clubhouse. But, if the manager can't get the team anywhere, then I can fire him and sign someone else."

(The reported reason for Hornsby's removal as manager of the Cubs was President Bill Veeck's dissatisfaction with Hornsby's choice of players and methods of running the team, and Hornsby's refusal to be guided by Veeck's suggestions.)

"I GUESS that's all there was to this Chicago business," added Rogers. "Now about my transfer from Boston to Chicago. I engineered that myself, to help out a man I admired, Judge Emil Fuchs, owner of the club. He was paying me a pretty big salary. The club wasn't going anywhere and Fuchs was in a bad way for finances. The fact that I was playing for the Braves didn't seem to help the situation at all. What they needed was a lot of new material. So, just to make it possible for Fuchs to get hold of some money and some new players, I suggested the deal with Chicago. (Hornsby was traded to the Cubs in November, 1928, for five players and $200,000.) That doesn't look like I was tossed out of Boston, does it?

"All my dealings at Chicago with Mr. Wrigley were swell. If he hadn't died I think I would still be managing the Cubs and we would be in first place."

Rog admits that his departure from the New York Giants may have been due to a "run-in" with Secretary Jim Tierney. "He and I didn't get along very well and he had quite a drag with Mr. Stoneham, the president. That's about all there was to the New York deal. I always got along fine with everybody there and even Tierney and I are on speaking terms."

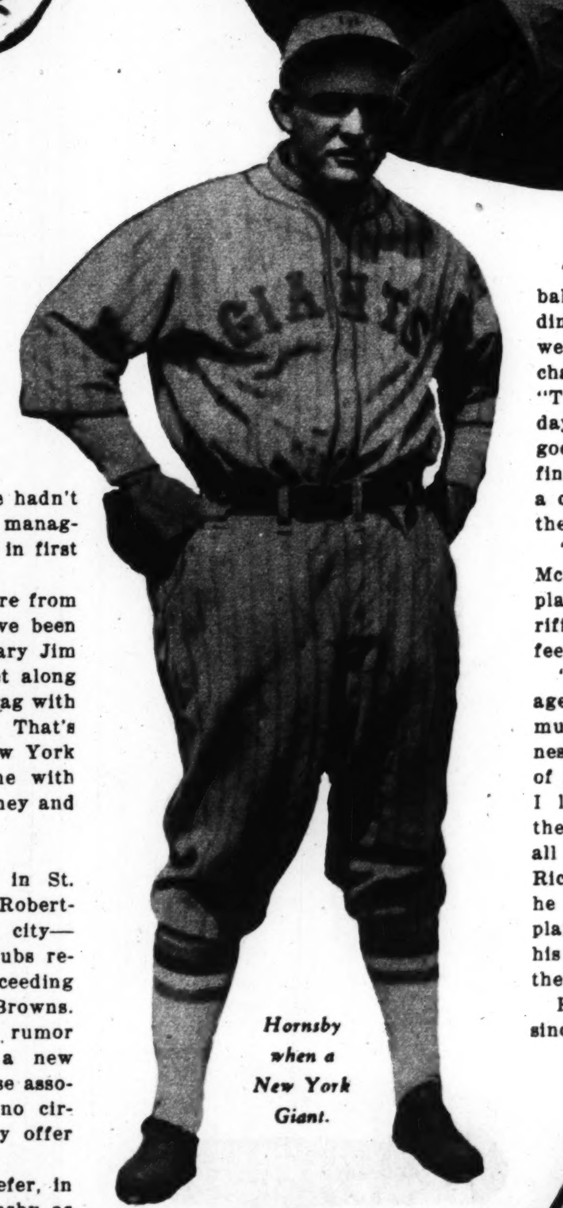
WHEN Hornsby arrived in St. Louis—his home is at Robertson, just outside this city—after his dismissal from the Cubs recently, there was talk of his succeeding Bill Killefer as manager of the Browns. Hornsby himself spiked that rumor even before Killefer signed a new contract. Hornsby told his close associates that "positively under no circumstances would I accept any offer to replace Killefer."

It will be recalled that Killefer, in 1926, declined to replace Hornsby as manager of the Cardinals after Rog had led the team to a world championship with Killefer as his coach With this rumor of his being a candidate for Killefer's job in mind, Hornsby said emphatically:

"I'd like to have it understood that I have never gone looking for any job in baseball. Every job I have held was offered to me. They came after me to take the job. I never sought another man's job since I've been in the game." Although he didn't mention it, this expression of principle may have been intended also as an answer to the rumblings in Chicago in the winter of 1930 when it was predicted that Hornsby would not be a popular manager of the Cubs because he had undermined his predecessor, Joe McCarthy. Hornsby and the Cubs' players have given that story the lie. Furthermore, this colorful, scrappy Texan went right on to capture the fancy of the Chicago fans to such an extent that there is now a report in circulation that he will be signed as manager of the Chicago White Sox next season.

Despite his recent experience at Chicago, Hornsby continues to wear a cheery smile and his eyes twinkle as in the days when his only worry was getting base hits. He looks happy enough but he surely has become embittered toward the game.

Manager of the Chicago Cubs.



Hornsby when a New York Giant.

"I got a lot more fun out of baseball when I was playing with the Cardinals, although for almost ten years we were down in the race without a chance to win a pennant," he went on. "The fellows played to win in those days. Now, if one of them gets a good hard bump or scratches his finger he wants to ride the bench for a couple of weeks. They haven't got the same spirit.

"And that's why I consider John McGraw the greatest manager I ever played for. He would make any sacrifice to win and he got his players feeling the same way about it.

"Miller Huggins was a shrewd manager and Branch Rickey knows as much baseball as any man in the business. Rickey has made a fine study of all angles of the game and I guess I learned more about the inside of the game from him than I did from all other managers. Trouble with Rickey is that he's too smart. When he tried to get his stuff over to his players half of them didn't understand his language. He was talking over their heads. Give me McGraw."

Fans who have watched Hornsby since his advent as a Cardinal player in 1915 are astonished at the change that has come over him since the day he took the St. Louis team to the pennant and world championship, in 1926. For, prior to his success as manager, a success which was nothing short of a sensation, Rog had not been in turmoil. Except for the fact that he consistently batted .300, and created a modern batting record (.424) in 1922, he went through his first 10 years as a Cardinal without disturbing anything but the baseball records.

In June, 1925, Hornsby was appointed manager of the Cardinals. The team was in last place. He instilled the winning, fighting spirit into a hopeless looking team and at the close of the following season, 1926, he had won the pennant and beaten the New York Yankees for the world championship. Before Christmas day he was let out, traded by Sam Breadon to the New York Giants, presumably because of a disagreement over salary, but Breadon admitted that he was glad to be rid of the fiery Texan, pennant or no pennant.

"I had a good club in 1926," said Hornsby in discussing his pennant winner. "A manager can never win a pennant unless he has good material. But spirit was what won for us. Those fellows were fighting for every game and they were loyal to me. It's spirit that wins, provided you have good material to start with."

FEELING strongly as he does about "interference" from the office, Hornsby would naturally consider the circumstances under which McGraw operated most satisfactory. The manager of the Giants, until the time of his retirement this season, not only selected the players who would compose his team but he instructed them in fielding and batting and he directed the pitching. Hornsby, an acknowledged McGraw admirer, adopted some of the methods of his former leader and his attempts to tell his pitchers how to work are said to have aroused some opposition in the Cubs' organization.

Hornsby says there is no truth in the report that the players resented his effort to be generalissimo. "The only pitcher I undertook to coach was Warneke and I think his record shows that the system worked pretty well," explains Hornsby. Warneke has been the outstanding pitcher of the Cubs this season, although a youngster.

"I don't think a manager should be dictatorial, or whatever you want to call it," summarized Rog. "But he should have full charge of the club because he's the man who loses his job if the team doesn't win. Interference and second guessing never did anything but wreck a ball club."

Perhaps, then, I suggested, it would be a good idea to have written into future contracts a clause specifying that there shall be no such interference.

"I don't want to answer that," parried Hornsby. "When an offer is made to me I will discuss terms but I don't want to be making any declarations in advance. I know that I'm no 'yes man', that's all."

Whether there is anything deeper to the mystery of Hornsby's successive transfers may remain an unanswered question. Certain it is that Rog will not divulge anything further—for publication, at least. It is diffi-

ROBBER RAT'S DEFEAT

This is a game that can be played by any child. All that is needed are scissors, paste and some cardboard. The directions for playing "Toy Talkies" are given at the bottom of the game.

THE PLAYERS

TRIXIE—Who is held prisoner by Robber Rat's gang.

JOHNNIE MOUSE—An American vagabond in love with Trixie.

SHERLOCK BONES—A great detective.

BRICKEY—An American who is helping Johnnie Mouse.

ROBBER RAT, TUFFIE AND SPIKE—Who stole the Tabbie jewels.

THE PLAY BEGINS

(Sherlock Bones enters, closely followed by Johnnie Mouse and Brickey.)

SHERLOCK BONES—(In a hushed voice.) Have a care, we are in the gang's hideout.

JOHNNIE MOUSE—I would gladly face any danger for Trixie.

BRICKEY—I wonder where they are holding her prisoner.

SHERLOCK BONES—You two wait here. I will find out. Then we can plan our attack. (He leaves.)

JOHNNIE MOUSE—Wait, I will go with you.

BRICKEY—No, you wait here. Sherlock always knows best.

JOHNNIE MOUSE—I suppose so, but it is torture standing here when Trixie is . . .

(Just then a woman's voice is faintly heard calling, Help! help!)

JOHNNIE MOUSE—It's Trixie. (He dashes off and we hear him calling, Trixie, Trixie, where are you?)

BRICKEY—A brave fellow, but not a good soldier, or he wouldn't have disobeyed Sherlock's orders. (All is silent for a moment. Then Tuffie, Robber Rat and Spike enter, followed by Johnnie Mouse and Trixie, who has her arms around Johnnie.)

JOHNNIE MOUSE—It's a good thing for you that you didn't harm her. Now what have you done with the Tabbie jewels?

ROBBER RAT—Free us and I will tell you where they are. (Sherlock enters, dressed in armor.)

SHERLOCK BONES—Not so quick, Robber Rat! I found the jewels in this armor. Now Brickey, you and I will take these fellows to prison where they cannot interfere with Cupid's darts.

BRICKEY—(As they leave.) Ha-ha. Sherlock always knows best.

DIRECTIONS: Cut out back-drop and pin it on a wall near the floor. Next, take two books and stand them at each end and about 5 inches in front of back-drop. Then take characters, cut them out, and paste them on thin cardboard, folding flap at bottom so they will lean back a little. Attach a piece of thread about 15 inches long. Place the characters back of the book on the right-hand side of the stage and draw them on the stage with thread as they are needed. The operator may talk for the characters, changing his or her voice as different characters go on the stage, or each character's part may be spoken by a different child. MUNY OPERA DRESSOGRAPHS

George Houston

GEORGE HOUSTON, today's selection among the Muny Opera stars who have appeared in this space each week during the Forest Park theater's season, was born in Jersey City, New Jersey, 35 years ago. He worked as a stevedore on the Hoboken docks and as a stoker on the Atlantic before he found a place in a New York choir. During the war he served in the French army, but when the conflict was over he returned to America and taught music. Among his New York successes were his roles in "Fioretta" and "The New Moon."

Accompanying Mr. Houston are three costumes he wears in Muny Opera shows. Cut out the star and paste on cardboard. Then cut out the costumes. Now dress him in his proper outfits.

The three costumes shown here are worn by the star in these roles in the following Muny Opera productions: 1—Josef Stransky in "The Blue Paradise;" 2—Pali Racz in "Sari," in which he is a gypsy; 3—Cyrano, the French soldier with the tremendous nose, in "Cyrano de Bergerac."

The BUCK Who Became C of JEFFERSO

TWO young officers stood at a table in a lonely jungle station in the Philippines 30 years ago. One, a rosy-faced youth, was a "medic," fresh from the States. The second, though equally youthful, was bronzed by the jungle sun, and had a record of service in Cuba during the Spanish-American War.

The young doctor had reached the jungle station late in the afternoon. After unpacking his supplies of quinine, iodine and a few surgical instruments, he had proudly placed on the table a small box, which had a handle protruding from one side and a thin metal horn at the top. The instrument was a talking machine—the first that the bronzed young infantry Lieutenant had ever seen.

But the surgeon's pride in his music machine was dampened considerably when it was discovered that six of the eight records which he had so carefully packed before leaving the United States had been smashed during the long journey to the Philippines. The infantry Lieutenant, eager to experiment with this strange machine, seized one of the two remaining records—and it crumpled in his hands. Crestfallen beyond description, he stood holding the broken cylinder. The owner of the phonograph offered no rebuke. Carefully he placed the last remaining record on the machine and turned a lever. The quiet jungle night was broken by a song, and the tragedy of the broken records was forgotten.

FOR months the two young men sat in their quarters at night and listened to the song, in which someone's eyes were likened to diamonds. The phonograph music helped to break the monotony of jungle duty, and engendered thoughts of "God's country," of dances and girls. For four more years the young Lieutenant of infantry stuck to the jungle and the grim business of pacifying its inhabitants.

Perhaps it was this early deprivation and responsibility which enabled Colonel Walter Krueger, who recently took command of the Sixth Infantry and the post at Jefferson Barracks, to do the things which distinguish him as a scholar and soldier, and which earned for him the award of the Distinguished Service Medal during the World War. It was since his appointment to Jefferson Barracks that he was promoted from Lieutenant-Colonel to his present rank. He is one of the youngest Colonels in the Army.

cult for the fans to believe that he was fired merely because he resented the attempts of the club president to enforce his judgment in the matter of routine detail. But you can't get Hornsby to admit that there is any other reason at the bottom of the case.

The deposed Rajah has a record for sobriety and earnestness of purpose on the playing field. He is admired by the fans and the men of his profession for his eagerness to win, his aggressiveness and his fairness. All of which makes his dismissal by one club after another the more strange. Although he has a reputation for aggressiveness and a determination to see his will enforced, he has had but few physical encounters in his 17 years of big league baseball. He was a winner in his only altercation on the field, when he landed an uppercut on the jaw of Art Fletcher as they argued at home plate at Sportsman's Park—back in the days when the boys were fighting hard for every ball game, on the road to a pennant. However, without the use of fists, he has tamed several unruly spirits.

His only real reverses have been in his debates with club owners.

Colonel Walter Krueger, Holder of the Distinguished Service Medal and Author of Many Military Texts, Is Among the Youngest of His Rank in the Army.

By TED WAGNER

Colonel Walter Krueger.

TWO young officers stood at a table in a lonely jungle station in the Philippines 30 years ago. One, a rosy-faced youth, was a medic," fresh from the States. The second, though equally youthful, was bronzed by the jungle sun, and had a record of service in Cuba during the Spanish-American War.

The young doctor had reached the jungle station late in the afternoon. After unpacking his supplies of quinine, iodine and a few surgical instruments, he had proudly placed on the table a small box, which had a handle protruding from one side and a thin metal horn at the top. The instrument was a talking machine—the first that the bronzed young infantry Lieutenant had ever seen.

But the surgeon's pride in his music machine was dampened considerably when it was discovered that six of the eight records which he had so carefully packed before leaving the United States had been smashed during the long journey to the Philippines. The infantry Lieutenant, eager to experiment with this strange machine, seized one of the two remaining records—and it crumpled in his hands. Crestfallen beyond description, he stood holding the broken cylinder. The owner of the phonograph offered no rebuke. Carefully he placed the last remaining record on the machine and turned a lever. The quiet jungle night was broken by a song, and the tragedy of the broken records was forgotten.

FOR months the two young men sat in their quarters at night and listened to the song, in which someone's eyes were likened to diamonds. The phonograph music helped to break the monotony of jungle duty, and engendered thoughts of "God's country," of dances and girls. For four more years the young Lieutenant of infantry stuck to the jungle and the grim business of pacifying its inhabitants.

Perhaps it was this early deprivation and responsibility which enabled Colonel Walter Krueger, who recently took command of the Sixth Infantry and the post at Jefferson Barracks, to do the things which distinguish him as a scholar and soldier, and which earned for him the award of the Distinguished Service Medal during the World War. It was since his appointment to Jefferson Barracks that he was promoted from Lieutenant-Colonel to his present rank. He is one of the youngest Colonels in the Army.

Born at Flatow, Germany, January 26, 1881, the future soldier was brought to the United States at the age of five by his mother, following the death of his father, Julius O. H. Krueger. They settled in Indiana, where Walter attended grade school at Madison. Subsequently he enrolled in a technical school at Cincinnati, and was in the midst of his studies when the stirring days of '98 caused so many young men to abandon civilian pursuits and respond to the call for fighting men. With a number of classmates, Walter Krueger enlisted in Company M, Second Volunteer Infantry, and went to Cuba. Having reached the grade of Sergeant in the volunteers, Krueger, after the war, returned to the rank of private in the Twelfth Regular Infantry in 1899, having decided on a career in the army.

TWO years later, while serving in the Philippines as a Sergeant in Company M, Twelfth Infantry, Krueger was appointed Second Lieutenant in the regular army. He was promoted to First Lieutenant in 1905, and three years later headed a section of the military survey in the Island of Luzon. Upon completing this detail Lieutenant Krueger became an instructor at the Army Staff College, and subsequently inspector-instructor for the Pennsylvania National Guard.

During the trouble with Mexico, Krueger, then a Captain in the regulars, went to the border as Lieutenant-Colonel with the Tenth Infantry, Pennsylvania National Guard. With the entrance of the United States in the World War, Captain Krueger became Major Krueger, then Lieutenant-Colonel, and in 1919, Colonel. These promotions were for the duration of the emergency period only, and when demobilization of the wartime army was completed Colonel Krueger dropped back to the rank of Major. He attained the rank of Lieutenant-Colonel 11 years ago.

Colonel Krueger's record overseas is best described in the War Department general orders providing for the award of the Distinguished Service Medal:

"For exceptionally meritorious and distinguished services. He served as assistant in the Bureau of Militia Affairs; assistant chief of staff, G-3, and acting chief of staff, Eighty-fourth Division; assistant chief of staff, G-3, Twenty-sixth Division; chief of staff, Tank Corps; instructor, line school, Langres, France; assistant chief of staff, G-3, Fourth Corps; and assistant chief of staff, G-3, Sixth Corps. By his high professional attainments, superior zeal, loyal devotion to duty, soldierly character, and his dominant leadership, he has exercised a determining influence upon the commands with which he has served, and has contributed in a marked degree to the success of the military operations of our forces."

Jefferson Barracks' commandant is a bit backward when one asks him to talk about his experiences.

"It was all in the day's work," he explains. "The professional soldier is never a hero in his own eyes or to his comrades. To him it is simply a matter of duty. He may do things which to the civilian appear heroic. He does many things which to himself and other soldiers are ridiculous. I decline to appear publicly in either role."

Following his service with the General Staff during the World War, Krueger was in command of the Fifty-fifth Infantry, and later of Trains, Seventh Division. Early in his career he was a distinguished graduate of the School of the Line and the Army Staff College. In 1921 he was graduated from and became an instructor at the Army War College.

In 1922 he was sent to Berlin to engage in historical work in the German National Archives. His record for the next few years shows that he was a member of the War Plans Division, War Departmental Staff and of the Joint Army and Navy Planning Committee of the Army and Navy Board, and in command of the Twenty-second Infantry.

Through his connection with the Army and Navy Board, Colonel Krueger became a student in the Army Flying School at Brooks Field, Texas. He is the oldest man of record to take the course in flight instruction, which is designed for youthful daredevils just out of college. He successfully completed the training, although his age, he explains, prevented his qualifying as a pursuit pilot.

The flying experience was followed by a detail with the National Guard in the Seventh Corps Area. In 1928 he returned to the Naval War College, Newport, R. I., from which he was graduated two years earlier, as an instructor. He continued in this capacity until ordered to take command at Jefferson Barracks.

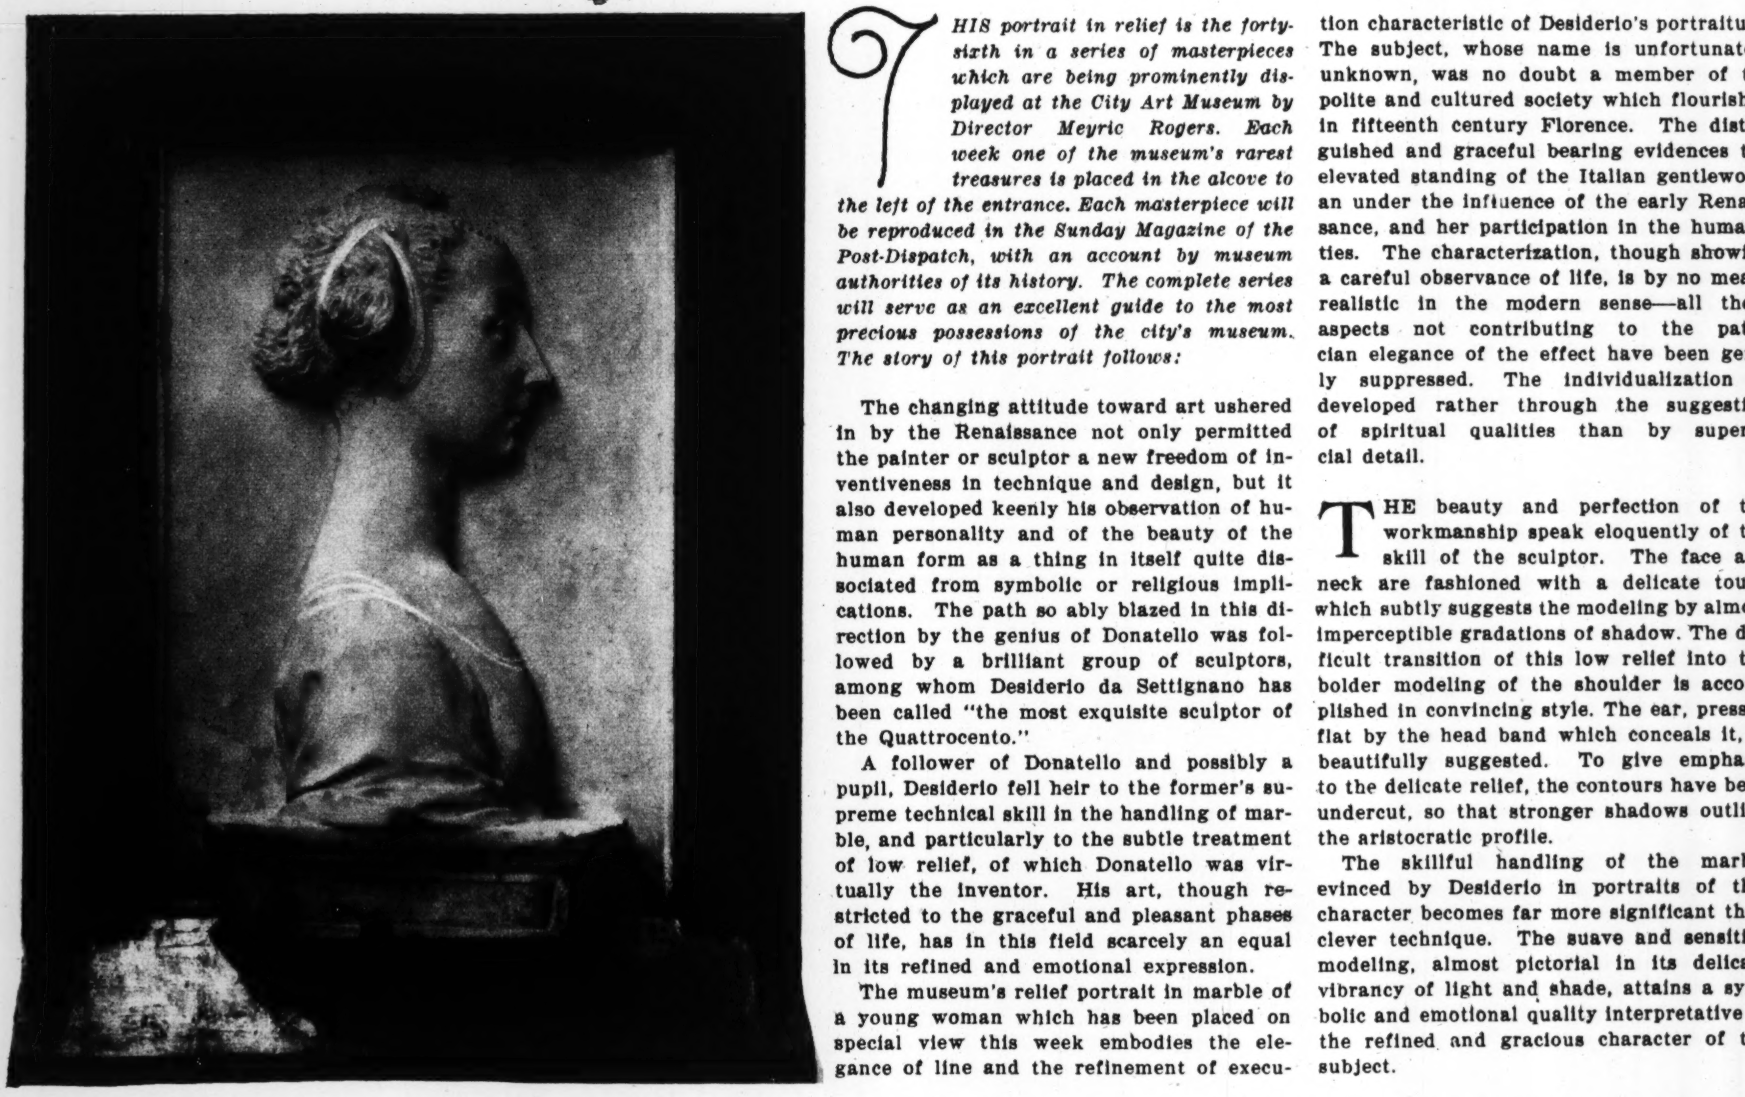
If Colonel Krueger has a hobby it is work. From members of his command he demands, next to loyalty, thoroughness.

WHILE engaged in his varied activities Colonel Krueger has found time for extensive research and writing on military subjects. In this field he translated and published the following books: "The Regimental War Game" (Immanuel), 1907; "Tactics, Infantry" (General Black), 1914; "Tactics and Technique of River Crossings," (Colonel Mortens), 1918. In addition, he has lectured extensively on the strategy of the World War, and plans to write a book on this subject.

Colonel and Mrs. Krueger have two sons and a daughter: Lieut. James N. Krueger and Lieut. Walter Krueger Jr., both of the Corps of Engineers, and Miss Dorothy Jane Krueger, who lives with her parents at Jefferson Barracks.

Portrait of An Unknown Lady

The Forty-Sixth of a Series of Art Objects Being Given a Special Showing at the St. Louis Art Museum.



THIS portrait in relief is the forty-sixth in a series of masterpieces which are being prominently displayed at the City Art Museum by Director Meyric Rogers. Each week one of the museum's rarest treasures is placed in the alcove to the left of the entrance. Each masterpiece will be reproduced in the Sunday Magazine of the Post-Dispatch, with an account by museum authorities of its history. The complete series will serve as an excellent guide to the most precious possessions of the city's museum. The story of this portrait follows:

The changing attitude toward art ushered in by the Renaissance not only permitted the painter or sculptor a new freedom of inventiveness in technique and design, but it also developed keenly his observation of human personality and of the beauty of the human form as a thing in itself quite dissociated from symbolic or religious implications. The path so ably blazed in this direction by the genius of Donatello was followed by a brilliant group of sculptors, among whom Desiderio da Settignano has been called "the most exquisite sculptor of the Quattrocento."

A follower of Donatello and possibly a pupil, Desiderio fell heir to the former's supreme technical skill in the handling of marble, and particularly to the subtle treatment of low relief, of which Donatello was virtually the inventor. His art, though restricted to the graceful and pleasant phases of life, has in this field scarcely an equal in its refined and emotional expression.

The museum's relief portrait in marble of a young woman which has been placed on special view this week embodies the elegance of line and the refinement of execution characteristic of Desiderio's portraiture. The subject, whose name is unfortunately unknown, was no doubt a member of the polite and cultured society which flourished in fifteenth century Florence. The distinguished and graceful bearing evidences the elevated standing of the Italian gentlewoman under the influence of the early Renaissance, and her participation in the humanities. The characterization, though showing a careful observance of life, is by no means realistic in the modern sense—all those aspects not contributing to the patrician elegance of the effect have been gently suppressed. The individualization is developed rather through the suggestion of spiritual qualities than by superficial detail.

THE beauty and perfection of the workmanship speak eloquently of the skill of the sculptor. The face and neck are fashioned with a delicate touch which subtly suggests the modeling by almost imperceptible gradations of shadow. The difficult transition of this low relief into the bolder modeling of the shoulder is accomplished in convincing style. The ear, pressed flat by the head band which conceals it, is beautifully suggested. To give emphasis to the delicate relief, the contours have been undercut, so that stronger shadows outline the aristocratic profile.

The skillful handling of the marble evinced by Desiderio in portraits of this character becomes far more significant than clever technique. The suave and sensitive modeling, almost pictorial in its delicate vibrancy of light and shade, attains a symbolic and emotional quality interpretative of the refined and gracious character of the subject.

The Missouri Mule

commission house alone 1200 were shipped every three months. Hundreds of college freshmen and sophomores got a mule's-eye view of the Atlantic. But it wasn't half bad, unless the crossing to Barcelona happened to be exceptionally stormy. Sometimes, then, the mules got seasick, and that was very, very bad. But once in Spain the college valets were free to dismiss their charges and enjoy the boulevards of Paris, with a return-trip ticket safely stowed in an inside pocket. This free method of crossing to Europe, with 22 mules to each attendant, was enormously popular.

Mules were shipped from East St. Louis to Italy, too, but this was the smaller pack mule, for use in the mountains. These brought $85 a head. And Germany imported Missouri mules. Now all exportation has stopped. The rate of exchange, and the general state of international trade, do not permit it. Because the exchange is so heavily against them the Spaniards would have to pay in pesetas two and a half times what they would pay at the normal rate of exchange. Moreover, the Spanish Republic permits its citizens to send only 5000 pesetas in gold or silver currency out of the country.

The younger members of Marcellan & Sons, chief mule importers at Barcelona, are hopeful that the trade may some day be resumed. But that is in the vague future. The mule's progress is ended. He came from Spain as dangerous as a rattlesnake, as stubborn as a flea. Four centuries later he went back, domesticated, in the American manner, efficient, larger, rangier, subdued by the continent that he helped subdue.

cult for the fans to believe that he was fired merely because he resented the attempts of the club president to enforce his judgment in the matter of routine detail. But you can't get Hornsby to admit that there is any other reason at the bottom of the case.

The deposed Rajah has a record for sobriety and earnestness of purpose on the playing field. He is admired by the fans and the men of his profession for his eagerness to win, his aggressiveness and his fairness. All of which makes his dismissal by one club after another the more strange. Although he has a reputation for aggressiveness and a determination to see his will enforced, he has had but few physical encounters in his 17 years of big league baseball. He was a winner in his only altercation on the field, when he landed an uppercut on the jaw of Art Fletcher as they argued at home plate at Sportsman's Park—back in the days when the boys were fighting hard for every ball game, on the road to a pennant. However, without the use of fists, he has tamed several unruly spirits.

His only real reverses have been in his debates with club owners.

could have taken his precious horse into an arroyo. But it was only a canyon mouth, with a rugged path climbing along one wall.

Rojo stood with head down at the foot of this path. Almost at its top, the thing was bounding upward. Shelley dropped off, rested his pistol on the black's neck and fired two careful shots. The thing leaped on and disappeared.

Shelley charged up the path in its wake and at the top looked down into a small, roughly rectangular valley. His quarry was already in the bottom of the little depression, running toward a stone cabin.

There was no real path down. Shelley half-slid, half-stumbled down the steep slope. He was barely at the bottom when there came the whang of a rifle from the stone cabin. Shelley flung up both arms, spun around and fell.

He heard the uncanny rustling of the thing's feet coming toward him. From the ground he fired—and over the creature crashed without a sound.

Shelley jumped up and crossed the bare 10 feet between them in two great strides, to kick the Winchester out of the creature's hands. But El Lobo was dead.

Shelley turned him over. Under a tangled shock of black, stiff hair was a yellow face that was not a face. It was like yellow parchment drawn taut. The gaping mouth was enormous and the yellow teeth were tusks. Shelley's last bullet had gone straight though the heart.

"Liniment!" Shelley snapped abruptly.

HE stooped to learn why El Lobo had liniment upon him and found a great gash in the left forearm.

The stone cabin drew him. It was one filthy room. A heap of blankets was in one corner. Shelley kicked them aside. They masked a trench, and in that trench———

"The bank money—an' that looks like the old prospector's sack o' nuggets!"

He rode the big black to the store, Rojo following.

Shelley dropped off in shelter. He went on hands and knees or at a crouch.

A tiny scraping sound inside the shed stiffened Shelley. He drew his six-shooter and waited. Around the corner ahead of him a rifle barrel came poking.

Farther and farther it came. Then his Colt barked and the rifle dropped, to accompaniment of a shrill yell of agony.

Shelley jumped to the corner, pounced on the Mexican handyman.

"Don't shoot, patron. Don't shoot. You cut off two of my fingers. I would never have tried to shoot you but for fear of those two—my patron, Don Tomas, and his devil brother. You killed Don Tomas as you raced by. Did you—did you catch The Wolf?"

"He's dead. We are going now to the store. You will walk just ahead of me. You will be my shield. So, if your patron is not dead you had best tell me now!"

"He is dead! Dios a dios a dios! Both dead. . . . Of all the hacienda's people, only I am left."

They approached the rear door of the store. Hawes' body lay just inside the doorway, a .45-90 rifle under the prone figure. The Mexican made a light.

"Tell!" Shelley snapped. "Remember—I know much."

"Don Tomas and I, we loved him greatly," Pancho said simply. "In daylight, he was like a helpless child. But at night—he wandered and finally we came here and built the stone cabin in that little hidden valley I found. The Wolf stayed there.

"A YEAR ago—we know now—he began to range. But not for a long while did we guess that the terrible creature committing bloody, horrible deeds, was our charge. Then we tried tying him up at night. But he was cunning; he could wriggle out of the knots and run away. He knew the people of Mundy; for he prowled there like a wolf, listening and remembering names."

"Well—you'll have to tell all this in the courtroom."

They brought El Lobo's body back to the store. As they laid him down something dropped from his cotton shirt. Pancho picked it up.

"Madre de Dios!" he cried. "A bullet of silver—and upon it the mark of the cross!"

Sweet Odors Kill
And Kill Quickly, Every Fly or Mosquito

Science has discovered that a flower grown in Japan repels and kills winged insects. Now the extract of these flowers is employed to completely free your home—and keep it free—from these germ-bearing pests.

That flower extract is the basis of Fly-Tox, developed in Mellon Institute of Industrial Research by Rex Research Fellowship. Ten years and over $100,000 have been spent by us in perfecting it.

The result is a perfumed mist, called Fly-Tox. Used as we direct, it creates in a room a pleasant cloud of vapor. An all-pervading mist, harmless to people, stainless to walls or furnishings. But that mist kills every insect that it touches. And they can't escape.

Think what that means to your home. Complete and constant protection from these germ-bearing pests. These insects, by their feet or stings, carry the germs of over 30 diseases. They carry these germs to your food or to blood streams. Many thousands of people—especially children—die from these infections every year. Fly-Tox offers you an easy, certain, economical way to complete protection.

FLY-TOX ONLY
A Rex Research Product

Use Fly-Tox only, and always in the new type Fly-Tox sprayer. Use it because of its marvelous efficiency. Every lot is tested on flies in our laboratory. Use it because its extra strength means great economy to you. You cannot take chances in protection of your home. Get Fly-Tox at once. Sold everywhere. Harmless to people. Stainless. Made by the Makers of Moth-Tox.

JEFF, WHAT SHE DOESN'T KNOW WON'T HURT HER! SOFT!
HELLO-POP! I THOUGHT MA TOLD YOU NOT TO PLAY CARDS ANYWHERE AROUND THE HOUSE!
HERE - CICERO - IS A HALF-DOLLAR. PUT IT IN YOUR BANK - AND JUST FORGET THAT YOU SAW US PLAYING CARDS. UNDERSTAND?
SURE!
SIT DOWN! EVERYTHING'S FINE!
BUT YOU TOLD ME YOU WERE BROKE - AND JUST NOW YOU SLIPPED CICERO A HALF-DOLLAR!
DON'T BE SILLY - THAT WASN'T A HALF-DOLLAR I GAVE HIM - IT WAS A NICKEL COLORED HAT CHECK WITH THE NUMBER "50" ON IT!
TEE HEE!
POP TOLD ME TO PUT IT IN MY BANK - BUT I JUST GOTTA HAVE AN ICE-CREAM CONE! I'LL BANK THE CHANGE!
HEY - DEES IS NOTTA MONEY - IT EES HAT CHECK!
DON'T BE SILLY, TONY-

WHAT HAPPENED TO ALICE — by ROBERT O REID

I WISH WE COULD SAY SOMETHING TO HER ABOUT IT.
YES, I'D LIKE TO HELP HER, IT'S HOLDING HER BACK HERE AT THE OFFICE.
A BUSINESS GIRL JUST HAS TO BE FASTIDIOUS — PERSPIRATION ODOR IS SO HORRID AND IT CLINGS TO SILK THINGS
BUT IT'S SO EASY TO LUX THINGS EVERY NIGHT
YES — IN JUST ABOUT 4 MINUTES YOU CAN BE CERTAIN YOUR UNDIES ARE ABSOLUTELY FRESH. LUX MAKES THEM LAST LONGER, TOO — AND IT WON'T FADE COLORS
HERE COMES ALICE NOW, I HEAR SHE'S JUST BEEN MADE SECRETARY TO THE MANAGER MANAGER
I'M SO GLAD SHE HAS OVERCOME THAT THING THAT WAS HOLDING HER BACK.
HERE'S 4 MINUTES A DAY THAT'S WELL SPENT. I WAS ON THE ROAD TO BEING FIRED INSTEAD OF PROMOTED BEFORE I LEARNED ABOUT LUX.

LUX

Avoid Offending

Underthings absorb perspiration odor . .
Protect Daintiness this Easy 4-Minute Way

Nobody will tell you if you're guilty of perspiration odor—yet it can ruin any girl's success. Lingerie constantly absorbs perspiration. But it's easy to avoid offending. Lux floats away all the perspiration acids and odors. Its gentle suds protect colors and fabrics.

Just toss silk things into Lux suds after each wearing. It takes only 4 minutes or less.

Why risk ordinary soaps—cakes, powders, chips? These often contain harmful alkali which weakens threads, fades colors. Lux has no harmful alkali. Anything safe in water alone is safe in Lux.

LUX for Underthings—Saves Colors
